ENTIRE REPUBLIC TODAY PRAYS FOR PEACE

I, WOODROW WILSON, president of the United States of America, do designate Sunday, the fourth day of October next, a day of prayer and supplication, and do request all God-fearing persons to repair on that day to their places of worship, there to unite their petitions to Almighty God, that overruling the counsel of men, setting straight the things they cannot govern or alter, taking pity on the nations now in the throes of conflict, in His mercy and goodness showing a way where men can see none, He vouchsafe His children healing peace again and restore once more that concord among men and nations without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship, nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world; praying also to this end that He forgive us our sins, our ignorance of His holy will, our willfulness and many errors, and lead us in the paths of obedience to places of vision and to thoughts and counsels that purge and make wise.---WOODROW WILSON.

300 More Bales Are Bought By Two Big Firms

The National Screw and Tack company, Cleveland, O., and the Cleveland Belt and Manufacturing company, Cleveland, O., allied corporations, join the buy-a-bale-of-cotton movement by authorizing each of their agents in the cotton belt to buy one bale of distress cotton at 10 cents a pound.

This organization is the largest of its kind in America and has 250 to 300 agents in the southern territory, which means that its purchase will amount to 250 to 300 bales of cotton, or an investment of $12,500 to $15,000.

The Southern Spring Bed company, of Atlanta, and the Beck & Gregg Hardware company, of Atlanta, two concerns which handle the company's products, already have placed their orders here for one bale each, pursuant to the company's authority.

Another concern which announces a liberal contribution to the aid of the south is the Talcum Puff company, an Asheville, N. C., corporation with the home office in Brooklyn, N. Y.

At a recent meeting of the directors the company was authorized to purchase 100 bales of cotton at 10 cents a pound, distributing the purchase over the southern territory and buying direct from farmers in every case where possible.

The Randolph Chair company, Asheboro, N. C., manufacturers of double cane and split bottom chairs and rockers, have issued a circular to their trade announcing that they will take 1,000 bales of cotton at 10 cents a pound in payment for new purchases. They propose to hold the cotton until there is an established market price of 10 cents a pound.

The Bird-Wilcox company, of Atlanta, which does autogenious welding for automobilists and sells automobile supplies, announces in an advertisement in The Journal today that it will take cotton at 10 cents a pound in part or full payment for work done, as its contribution to the buy-a-bale movement.

KHAKI UNIFORMS.

A most excellent suggestion for helping the south tide over the cotton crisis caused by the European war has been advanced by C. H. Hudson, a railway conductor of Augusta, Ga. His plan is set forth in detail in the columns of the Augusta Chronicle, a paper which has given effective support to the buy-a-bale movement.

Mr. Hudson proposes that uniformed employes throughout the United States be clad in cotton khaki next summer instead ofthe usual light weight woolen uniforms.

In his plan he would include the employes of steam railroads, electric railroads, municipal street railway systems, steamship lines, policemen, firemen and other uniformed municipal officers, and forms.

All other employes who wear uniforms he would have to furnish themselves.

He points out that orders for 1915 summer uniforms for these men are now being placed, and that if the adoption of khaki should become general throughout the country there would be an immediate demand upon the cotton mills for enormous quantities of this material, resulting in a very greatly increased demand for raw cotton.

While he has no statistics at his command upon which to base a calculation, Mr. Hudson believes the use of khaki by men in uniform in the United States would go far toward absorbing the surplus cotton left on the American market by the stoppage of European spindles.

Khaki uniforms, as Mr. Hudson suggests, are just as attractive as any other for summer wear, probably cooler than woolen uniforms, and have the additional advantage of being cheaper. For the price of one ordinary woolen uniform, a railway conductor, for instance, could buy two khaki uniforms and thus be able to alternate and have them laundered.

ORGANIZING MOVEMENT.

It would be comparatively simple to organize a khaki uniform movement for the reason that the adoption of khaki by one railroad company would affect hundreds of men, the adoption of khaki by one city government would affect all of its uniformed officers and employes, and thus the movement could be taken up by one railroad after another and one city government after another, until soon it would have gathered such momentum and attracted such widespread attention as to insure its general spread over the country.

But if action is to be taken, it should be taken now before orders for next summer's uniforms are placed to any considerable extent.

That the European war, while it has practically stopped the ordinary consumption of raw cotton by the mills abroad, nevertheless has some compensation, is shown by the fact, announced in a very interesting story in the New York Herald, that extraordinary orders for certain cotton products are being received in this country in consequence of the war.

For instance: An order was received a few days ago by a New York broker for 1,500,000 cotton towels, to be shipped at once to the British and French governments for use in caring for the wounded soldiers. Another very large order was received for cotton gauze. It is believed these and other orders which

W. M. SMITH TELLS WHY HE BELIEVES CONLEY IS GUILTY

NO TEST EVER MADE OF STAINS ON SHIRT

Discovery Started Attorney to Investigating—Smith's Evidence Can't Be Used in New Trial Fight

William M. Smith, attorney for Jim Conley, Saturday night gave to the press a written statement, telling how he came to the conclusion that Conley, as clerk, is guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan and not Leo M. Frank, who has been convicted and sentenced for the crime. Mr. Smith's statement in full follows:

The unfortunate publicity given my personal opinions as to the Frank case, is much to be regretted. My personal opinion is not evidence and legally should not have a feather's weight. It was never my purpose, unless absolutely necessary, to save human life, to give public expression of my views. Such suggestions as occurred to me, it was my intention to privately offer, that the truth might be known, through official action of the public agencies of the law.

In an effort to inspire further search, I was compelled to speak in confidence to some, in whom I had every right to refer. There has been a give way somewhere along the line, possibly through some misunderstanding, for I would dislike to believe that there was a willful betrayal, in order to accomplish a thwarting of my purposes, and a handicap to my endeavors.

While willing to face the crucifixion of blind prejudice and petty slander, it appeared best to me, to help those from whom the public had a right to demand the truth and to whom the public would be more willing to listen, and who have the power to learn the truth, if they will only rise to the needs of the hour.

WILL BLOOD POINT MAIN.

This crime occurred April 26, 1913. Conley, a negro employe was arrested by the Detectives McGill and Scott, after conference with Chief of Detectives Lanford. He was arrested May 1, 1913, being discovered washing his shirt, upon which it was suspected there were stains of the blood of this little girl. A charge of "suspicion" was entered against him upon the police records. Until recently I thought a scientific test was made but find that the bloody shirt was returned to Conley without examination by the city bacteriologist as was done with Newt Lee's shirt. So far as can now be known this negro was washing from his shirt the stains of the blood of Mary Phagan. This was a surprise to me that no scientific test had been made.

During the thirty days after Conley's arrest, he made several varying written affidavits and admissions to the police. During this period Conley had no lawyer, did all of his written statements made to the police, prior to my employment, embodied practically the

ALL AMERICA BOWS IN PRAYER FOR END OF WAR IN EUROPE

Churches of All Creeds Rally to Proclamation of President in Monster Peace Day Program

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Prayers that the great war in Europe may soon come to an end will be offered today in churches of all creeds in the capital and throughout the nation. President Wilson has set the day aside by informal proclamation as Peace Sunday.

The president himself will attend peace services this morning at the Central Presbyterian church, and this afternoon he probably will be among the thousands gathered for open-air services around the "Peace Cross" on the site chosen for the new Episcopal cathedral of St. Paul and St. Peter. Special prayers will be said there for peace among the warring nations, and for the wounded soldiers in Europe and for President Wilson and "all others in authority."

Churches of all denominations in New York City and immediate vicinity will observe peace day. The Jewish churches except those that hold services today, observed peace day Saturday.

Secretary Bryan will deliver the peace address in Carnegie hall at the Free Synagogie service. He will be the first of a long list of speakers, including Stephen S. Wise.

In nearly all churches appeals will be made for the relief of the women and children in Europe. A special appeal is also made for starving children in Servia by the archbishop of Belgrade of the Servian church.

Laymen of the Episcopal church plan to follow up peace Sunday with appeals to bankers, lawyers and all other business and professional men to work for peace. About fifty New York rectors will preach on "The Call to Men" on Sunday, October 18, and a mass meeting will be held on October 16.

GEN. CARRANZA READY TO QUIT FOR CAUSE OF PEACE IN MEXICO

Presents Resignation at General Conference but It Is Not Yet Accepted — Washington Confident of Peace

(By Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 3.—General Venustiano Carranza placed his resignation as first chief of the constitutionalists before delegates to the general confidence of southern chiefs shortly before 8 o'clock tonight.

From that time until a late hour tonight the question whether the resignation should be accepted was fiercely debated with no immediate prospects of a vote.

Orators opposed to the acceptance of General Carranza's withdrawal were repeat edly cheered by delegates and spectators. A motion was made that the first chief be informed that it would be impossible to accept his patriotic act of abnegation, but the hours passed without a vote being taken on the motion owing to the turmoil in the chamber.

Washington Confident Of Peace in Mexico Soon

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Advices to the state department today further assured administration officials that a peaceful settlement of Mexico's latest difficulties would result from the Aguas Calientes conference to convene October 5.

Consul General Hanna, at Monterey, reported "there appears to be a better understanding between all Mexican officials than before." Consul Silliman, personal representattve of President Wilson, telegraphed from Mexico City that the situation there was much improved.

The conference of generals now in session at the Mexican capital, he said, would adjourn to hold open caucus with

ALL ATLANTA WILL PRAY FOR PEACE IN BIG EUROPEAN WAR

Monster Rally Will Be Held at Auditorium Sunday Afternoon as Part of Peace Day Program

While the pick of Europe's manhood is being slaughtered like cattle, and the fertile continental fields are turning into bloody swamps, Atlanta, in the great auditorium and in every church and chapel, will pray for peace today.

This day has been set aside as a "peace day" by President Woodrow Wilson, in a proclamation issued to the nation. From churches in every village and city in the United States today heart-felt prayers will ascend to God, asking divine intervention in the European chaos of cannon and sword.

Since President Wilson's proclamation a month ago, rehearsals of a great chorus of 250 voices, men and women, chosen from Atlanta church choirs, have been held daily under the direction of Organist Edwin Arthur Kraft. This chorus will sing at the elaborate peace exercises in the auditorium this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Handel's Largo, on the great organ, played by Edwin Arthur Kraft, will begin the occasion, followed by a reading by R. S. Wessels, of a peace petition to President Wilson. The magnificent choir will sing Branby's hymn, "Lord of Our Life," after which Bishop Candler will invoke, with a prayer, divine help for the struggling European nations. Chopin's funeral march, played by Organist Kraft, will be followed by a solo, "Let Us Have Peace," by Mrs. Grace Lee-Brown Townsend. The choir will sing Charles A. Sheldon's "Prayer for Peace," after which Bishop Cleland K. Nelson reads the litany and peace-prayers. The exercises conclude with the Centennial hymn, "God of Our Fathers."

MANY VOICES IN CHORUS.

Battle of Aisne Now Turning In Favor of Allies

(By Associated Press.)

ON THE BATTLE FRONT, Oct. 3.—Trench after trench of the German line fell into the possession of the allies today after vigorous assaults carried home with determination combined with the newly-learned lesson of caution. The Germans, who had borne back the allies' western wing slightly Friday, retained their advanced positions near Roye until they became untenable. They then fell back to new lines which had been previously prepared.

DEVELOPMENTS FAVOR ALLIES BUT ACTION IS NOT DECISIVE.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—9. p. m.—Roye, the little town on the main road from Amiens to Noyon, the heights around which have been alternately occupied by the French and the Germans during the past week is still the center of a batile of great violence.

The Germans, who are fighting stubbornly to protect their flank at the point have brought up reinforcements, but according to the French official communication today, all their attacks have been repulsed.

The action, however, is still proceeding and upon it much depends, for if the Germans are beaten, their line of communication at Torgnier will be seriously threatened.

Of other operations on this front, which extends as far north as Arras, nothing has been disclosed since the French themselves announced that their force debouching from Arras had fallen back slightly on the east and north of that town.

There is evidence from other sources that the Germans are making preparations to protect their flank, should retirement become necessary. They have evacuated west Flanders and their attack on Antwerp is believed by many to be designed to keep the Belgians busy and prevent them from operating on what would be General von Kluck's left should he fall back through Belgium.

BATTLE STILL ON.

But the battle is not yet over and it may be many days before either side attains its objective. Except for the forces absolutely needed, elsewhre, the Germans are maintaining their strength in France, and besides fighting off French efforts on their right, are themselves remaining on the offensive on the French right.

The army of the crown prince, which has been in the thick of the fighting since the Germans began their invasion of France, has made an attempt to slip through the wood of La Crurie, but, the French report says, was thrown back to the north of the Varennes-La-Harazee-Vienne-la-Ville road. This road pierces the northern part of the Argonne forest, so that the French must have made a considerable advance in this region and straightened out the line from the north of Verdun to the north of Rheims.

This attack of the crown prince's army doubtless is what the Germans referred to in their Friday's report that the troops advancing in the Argonne had gained ground in a southerly direction.

FRENCH CLAIM PROGRESS.

In the Woevre district and on the heights of the Meuse, the French claim their progress, though slow, continues. The Germans report speaks of vigorous sallies from Toul having been repulsed. Along the center comparative calm still reigns. The Germans have been keeping up a heavy artillery fire on the British and French forces entrenched in front of them, but the British report says little damage has been done.

The real work is being done on the two wings of the troops in the center, who have had much fighting, are being given a respite until the moment comes for them to move again. This, of course, depends on the success or failure of the outflanking operations.

The German attack on Antwerp, which does not appear serious thus far, apparently has not had any effect on the Belgian forts of Lierre, Waelhem and Wavre St. Catherines. At any rate the Belgians say the forts are intact and that the Germans have been driven off with heavy losses to their sides.

A big Russian army is gathering to

NICHOLAS AND KAISER BOTH RUSH TO FRONT WITH TROOPS IN EAST

Despite Reported Reverses of Germans in France, Reports Place Emperor William on Russian Frontier

FIGHTING IN EASTERN WAR CENTER DESPERATE

Belgian Forces Defending Antwerp Have Been Forced Back, According to Dispatches From London

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The determined efforts the Germans are making not only to hold their lines in the north of France, but to win back some of the territory the allied forces have succeeded in taking from them since the great battle of the Aisne began, are indicated in the official announcements from the French war office.

The Germans have continued their series of desperate attacks on the French left wing, and in the center the Crown Prince's army, which includes the Sixteenth corps, has attempted to advance through the wood of La Crurie. But in all of these endeavors, according to the official accounts, the Germans have been repulsed; the Crown Prince's army even has been driven back toward the north a mile or two.

In Belgium, however, the Germans have been more successful, for the Belgian legation at London admits that on the east of the river Senne the Belgian forces defending Antwerp after a desperate resistance of five days, have been obliged to fall back to the river Nothe, so terrific has been the German artillery fire. But the declaration is made that the Belgians intend to resist the attack on Antwerp to their utmost.

The latest offical communication from Petrograd describes the battle of Augustowo, in Russian Poland, as developing into one of extreme violence, the Germans supplementing their artillery fireswith furious counter attacks. In an encounter between the first division of the German cavalry and Russian cavalry the Germans are reported to have been routed with great loss, carrying their infantry along with them. The Russians have occupied Ravgrod, Kalvary, and Mariampol, in Poland.

The Russian emperor, according to a Petrograd announcement, has left the capital for the war zone. The German emperor is said to be at Thorn, West Prussia, close to the Russian frontier. Thus it would seem that swift developments in the eastern theater of war during the past week or two have demanded the personal attention of the heads of the two countries, the kaiser also being reported in the eastern war zone.

Kaiser Talks on "Inevitable Victory of German Culture"

LONDON, Oct. 4.—A Petrograd dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company says the Russian papers announce that Emperor William has been making speeches along the Russian frontier at Bromberg and Thorn on "The Inevitable Victory of German Culture."

of mind, declared that he "was in no position to say anything about it."

Smith would not go into the subject of "handicaps" which he said he had met in his previous attempts to demonstrate the innocence of Frank. He intimated, however, that they would be disclosed later. The publication of his sensational declaration now means that he will hereafter be enlisted in the aid of Frank in an effort to clear the mystery and to obtain the convicted man's freedom.

Smith was linked with the prosecution throughout the trial of Frank. He had been engaged as Conley's lawyer some time after the negro was arrested. He was retained first by an Atlanta newspaper, but declined his services to the paper when a demand was made upon him to divulge conferences between him and his client. He was then employed by the mother and sister of Conley. He has never, he states, been paid for his services to the negro.

IMPRESSED BY PAMPHLET.

Smith is known to have been impressed by a pamphlet written on the Frank case by Colonel J. P. Fyffe, of Chattanooga, a former newspaper man of the Tennessee city, whose investigation was made for The New York Times.

He admitted having read Colonel Fyffe's article and having commented upon it, but would not dwell upon it for publication.

Leonard Haas, associate counsel for Leo Frank, when called over the telephone for a statement in respect to Smith's change of attitude, said:

"I have heard that Mr. Smith has changed his mind, but I would prefer to make no comment."

Early last night Dan S. Lehon, lieutenant of the William J. Burns forces, who is in Atlanta, told a reporter for The Constitution that he knew of Smith's new opinion of the Frank case; that he had known of instances in which the attorney had discussed it with others.

REPRESENTED CONLEY.

Smith had actively represented Jim Conley until the time the negro was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary as an accessory to the murder of Mary Phagan. He had, during that while, professed a firm belief in the innocence of Conley and the guilt of Frank. Whether his change of mind has been influenced by a statement or act of Conley he would not state.

Smith has, perhaps, been closer to Conley than any other person connected with the Frank case. It was Conley's counsel who took such extra precautions in having the negro prisoner isolated in the Tower to prevent private detectives and others from getting to him. During the trial of Frank and the subsequent happenings in his case, Smith held numerous conferences with his client.

ATROCITIES CHARGED TO FRENCH SNIPERS

Franctireurs Mutilated German Wounded and Smothered Them, Says Report.

Washington, October 2.—An official report from the foreign office at Berlin was made public tonight by Count Von Bernstorff, German ambassador, charging that wounded soldiers had been tortured and mutilated by French irregular soldiers, who attacked a field hospital at Orchies, in the north of France. The town was demolished as a result. The report said:

"From headquarters General Von Schjering reported to the emperor that a field hospital at Orchies, in the north of France, was attacked by Franctireurs (snipers or irregularly armed persons) on September 24. A punitive expedition encountered superior forces and had to retreat, leaving thirty-five wounded. On the following day the Bavarian troops met no enemy and found Orchies deserted, but found there twenty wounded Germans, left the day before, horribly mutilated. Their noses and ears were cut off and they were suffocated by inserting sawdust into their mouths and noses. Correctness of the evidence taken was authenticated by two French priests. Orchies thereupon was thoroughly demolished."

Here part of the wireless message was mutilated in transmission, but the embassy statement said in substance, it declared, that, according to the paper Avanti, of Milan, The Malin had reported in regard to the butchery of German prisoners that they should be shown no pity "if they fall into our hands, those nefarious criminals against human law of whom Wilhelm probably formed his bodyguard, but who are worth being butchered like pigs."

As to military operations the dispatch said:

"On September 30 decision as to the gigantic battle still hangs in air. The French attacks from Verdun and Toul were repulsed. The siege of Antwerp is progressing, two forts already being silenced. Mechlein has been occupied. In the battle around Mechlein strict order was given not to bombard the town."

RETURNED FROM CANADA, SIKHS MUTINY IN INDIA

Sixteen of Indians Are Killed When They Fire on Europeans.

London, October 2.—In a dispatch from Calcutta the correspondent of Reuter's Telegram company describes a mutiny of Sikhs brought back to India after being refused admittance to British Columbia. Sixteen of the Indians were killed.

The correspondent transmits a communication on this subject issued by the Bengal government, as follows:

"The Sikh passengers on the steamer Komagata Maru, who were refused permission to land at Vancouver, B. C., and of them refused to board a train for the Punjab and opened fire with their revolvers. One European was killed and several others, including the commissioner of police, were wounded. One Punjab policeman was killed and several were wounded. Troops were compelled to fire to check the rushes of the Sikhs, and sixteen of the rioters were killed. The remainder were scattered to surrounding villages and later were rounded up."

The Hindus who mutinied at Bajbaj are the men who for more than three months resisted the Canadian government's order of deportation, but who finally were compelled to return to India from Vancouver on the same ship that brought them out, the Japanese steamer Komagata Maru.

This steamer, with 352 Hindus on board, reached Vancouver in April of this year. She sailed on her return trip July 23. During this time the status of the East Indians was passed upon by the highest courts of Canada, which finally ruled that they could not land.

Lancashire Newspaper Says Cotton Mills May Close Before Christmas

London, October 2.—(3:55 p. m.)—The correspondent of the Central News at Accrington, in Lancashire, says that the general opinion among cotton manufacturers is that because of the war the mills of Lancashire and Cheshire and in fact, of the whole country, will be forced to close before Christmas.

Thousands of employees are now idle and the suggestion is made that the government come to the rescue with a large grant.

federal reserve agent. He is a prominent lawyer of Atlanta and was related to Mrs. Wilson.

Four of the nine directors of the Atlanta bank are Georgians.

It is reported here that Joseph A. McCord, vice president of the Third National Bank of Atlanta, has already secured enough pledges to guarantee his selection as president of the bank. The president and not the federal reserve agent will be the directing head of the institution. The latter official will represent the treasury department and have merely a clerical position.

The other directors already selected by the member banks are: Class A—L. P. Hillyer, Macon; P. W. Foote, Hattiesburg, Miss.; W. H. Toole, Winder, Ga. Class B—P. H. Sanders, New Orleans; J. A. McCrary, Decatur, Ga.; W. H. Hartford, Nashville, Tenn.

Richard L. Austin, Philadelphia, was named federal reserve agent and chairman of the board of directors for Philadelphia.

Mr. Brown is at present out of the city in New York and could not be seen for a statement last night. He is a member of a prominent Atlanta law firm, Brown, Randolph, Parker & Scott.

gained a brilliant success against the advance guards of Germans leaving Andrejew, government of Kielce, Russian Poland, in the direction of the city of Kielce. The enemy, surprised, threw down their arms and ammunition and fled, while the Russian cavalry cut up a laggard detachment.

"The German operations in Russian territory nearly all have failed, their artillery being defenseless on the roads, which are not macadamized. Most of the batteries become mired as soon as they leave the principal routes."

German Armies Advance.

Petrograd, Russia, October 2.—(Via London, 4:07 p. m.)—Military observers here, who judge the situation from information in Petrograd, say that as a result of the recent fighting on the Russo-German frontier, including attempt of the Germans to cross the Niemen, the German positions are suffering from the efforts to concentrate troops from four directions on the southeast Polish border, where a decisive battle is expected.

The north division of the German army landed between Memel, in East Prussia, and Polanger, in Russia, but proceeded no further than Rossyoni, in Kovna.

The army from the province of Suwalki, repulsed at Brukenliki, on the left bank of the river Niemen, now is attempting to cross this river at Oretch, where a big battle is in progress. It evidently is the intention of this army to flank the Russians under General Rusky.

A third army is trying to proceed from Neidenburg, in East Prussia, southeast in the direction of Warsaw, but apparently without success. Simultaneously the main German forces, starting from Posen, are pressing eastward with Cracow as their objective.

The southern division of the German army already has joined the Austrians at Cracow.

Official Statement.

The general staff has given out the following official communication

"The Russian troops have continued to repulse the enemy from the boundaries of the governments of Suwalki and Lomza. The engagement has been very fierce west of Symno.

"The German troops that were attacking Ossowets are retreating hastily to the north. Considerable forces of the enemy, of which the bulk arrive from the west, are concentrating in the districts west of the governments of Plotrkow and Kielce.

"The Russian cavalry and vanguard are reconnoitering energetically through all this region. Impeding, through vigorous attacks, the movement of the enemy. The Germans always endeavor to use the highways in Russian territory because the other roads, being rough, paralyze their artillery trains.

"An attack by the Russian cavalry against the Germans advancing in front of Andrejew, and marching on Kielce, was governed with great success. The German infantry was caught unawares and is retreating in disorder, pursued by the Russian cavalry.

"The bombardment of Ossowats did damage to only a few private dwellings and a few telephone lines as the garrison was sheltered by numerous concrete walls.

Hand-to-Hand Fight.

"The offensive by the Russian troops marching through the forests of Augustowo was not covered by the artillery. South of Augustowo a hand-to-hand engagement took place. It was particularly fierce in the semi-circle between the Bialobrosog Basin, which was occupied by a Russian column and the Augustowo canal near the Borki basin.

"The issue of this engagement was decided by an attack from Augustowo.

"Northwest of the forest of Augustowo the Russians were compelled to attack the rear guard of the Germans through numerous defiles and in fortified positions, where the Russian infantry received great help from its heavy artillery which caused great losses to the enemy, who were dislodged from the entrenchments and retired under our fire.

"The battle is proceeding over an extensive front, the Germans occupying positions near Mariampol and south of St. Shutshin.

"In the vicinity of Wrescuch the ground is very rough, making it very difficult for troops to keep their battle lines. This has resulted in a series of individual engagements.

London, October 2.—The Petrograd correspondent of The Times sends this comment on the operations in the eastern war theater:

"Colonel Shumsky, the military critic, says the Germans are hastening the concentrate a mass of troops between Breslau and Cracow in order to advance on the right flank of the Vistula and thus compel the Russians to either evacuate Galicia or accept a decisive battle.

"The Germans are displaying an inordinate appetite. Not content with undertaking a decisive engagement in Silesia they are trying a purge at Ossowatz at the other end of the strategic front.

"Evidently they are confident of success at the battle in Silesia, as they are preparing a route across the river Niemen. In any case their attempt to carry out this new and grandiose scheme will lead to a swift denouement."

ANTWERP PUTS UP BLOODY DEFENSE

London, October 2.—(8:20 p. m.)—The Antwerp correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company has sent the following dispatch:

"The German attack on the fort and approaches of Konigshoyck (one of the new forts on the outer line) was repulsed last night.

"A violent attack on Termonde was repulsed at 5 o'clock this morning, the Belgians blowing up the bridge over the Scheldt.

London, October 2.—(3:35 p. m.)—"The Germans have suffered heavily everywhere under the well-directed machine gun fire of the Belgians," according to a statement cabled from Antwerp by the correspondent of the Central News. "At the Wavre and St. Catherine forts alone (outside of Antwerp) the German dead may be counted by thousands. At several points the corpses lie in heaps. Entire companies have been exterminated, while the other troops were driven back at the point of the bayonet."

In describing the attack of the Germans on Antwerp the correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, writing from Antwerp under date of Thursday noon, says:

"From the top of a gas tank at Hoboken (three miles southwest of Antwerp) last night was witnessed a scene of somber grandeur. The line of attack on the city was defined in the clear night air very sharply by flashes of the enemy's great siege guns. Similarly the line of the defense was shown in points of light, which stabbed the night from the Belgium forts. It was almost possible, occasionally, to see the effects of the falling shells.

Outer Villages Bombarded.

"The artillery duel continued throughout the night. The German fire seemed to be directed chiefly toward emptying the outlying villages, and every road into Antwerp was choked with refugees.

"There is no doubt that many alarming reports of the German operations will creep across the frontier to Holland. We cannot give definite information from here on account of the prohibition against news which might be useful to the enemy, but it can be said, with official sanction, that the position, while calling for the utmost vigilance and effort, is not alarming.

"The Belgians have suffered in some quarters, while in others they have inflicted loss. The general balance inspires confidence.

"All scouting officers agree, however, that the German attack is merely a demonstration which is not intended to be pushed home. Belgian aviators have not discovered any great masses of German infantry."

Belgians Blow Up Tracks.

Amsterdam, October 2.—(Via London, 4:46 p. m.)—A dispatch to The Telegraf from Antwerp says:

"The population of the villages between the first and second rings of forts are fleeing into Antwerp. The civil guard here feel certain help will come.

"Fifty thousand refugees have arrived from Ghent, 5,000 from Bruges, 2,000 from Coutral and 2,000 from Ostend.

"Behind and in the enemy's lines in the provinces of Brabant, Limburg and Hainault, Belgian volunteers have blown up the railway track at ten places besides destroying bridges and viaducts."

HARVEST DAY, MONDAY, OCTOBER FIFTH

A Unique Display of Merchandise and the Fruits of the Land

Today is PEACE DAY by proclamation of the President of the United States. It is fitting and proper that we set aside tomorrow as HARVEST DAY, and the whole week for the continuance of a display unique in local storekeeping.

But it has another meaning, and we propose to turn our store into a picture-allegory of it.

America stands big and alone, in amity with the world, and while nature smiles our fields are ripening, our men are left at home these HARVEST DAYS to reap the fruits of the seed of industry that the fecund earth gives back abundantly.

The Scene the Store Will Present Tomorrow Morning and All the Week Typifies the Richness of the Land, the Richness and Variety of Our Stocks of Seasonable Merchandise

We are anxious for you to see the store as it will be tomorrow. It is a harmonious background, a fitting setting for the merchandise we have gathered. Nothing but a sympathetic and active response to the needs of the community could have effected the assemblage.

It was hard, very, very hard at times, to get merchandise that measured up to the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. standard. But our methods of storekeeping see no merit in giving blanket orders for vast quantities. Mere volume is not a virtue.

Interest was centered in choosing the rare, the beautiful, the new things that make their appeal to individual good taste. We searched until we found them.

So the store is filled with SELECTED merchandise, the kind we are proud to own, proud to place before a discriminating and knowing Atlanta public.

These are the Harvest Days.

We present the fruits of our labors. Some are rare exotics; some are sturdy staples; all are worthy.

Garner as you will, WHERE you will, the store is in tempting and ripened fullness; but—

Among the Notable Successes We Have Scored This Season Must Be Recorded the Assembling of Such Smart Suits and Dresses, Exclusive Millinery and Artistic Shoes

The Suits and Dresses

The scope and variety of the styles, their individual charm, must impress all who spend a half an hour in the Ready-to-Wear Section. They were chosen with the discriminating taste that distinguishes between the true and the pretentious. Hundreds of suits and hundreds of dresses are different in hundreds of ways, but all expressing right, approved fashions.

The Shoes

A new store. New in every sense of the word, the only one of its kind in the world. And the shoes—made especially for us, completely to meet the requirements of a city of discriminating women.

Turkey Dinner in the Tea Room

The Millinery

The Millinery Section is in a unique position to serve better than ever this season. Our Paris models and Paris trimmings were selected just in time to warrant their safe arrival in America. So the little shop of Estelle Mershon, 20 E. 46th St., New York, and our own workrooms have had every advantage in evolving exquisite copies of and adaptations from these models.

You shall see how well they have succeeded.

On May 30, 1913, tentative written agreement was made between the Woman who represented herself as Conley's wife and myself concerning a consent Conley, subject to Conley's ratification, and with the understanding that my communication was to be cared for by certain interests, who originally solicited my services in Conley's behalf. With the wife, Lorena Conley, I visited the Fulton county jail, the night of May 30, 1913, and saw and talked with Conley for the first time.

Receiving from Conley ratification of my employment, practically my entire communication with him at that time was relative to a policy of silence that I advised he should adopt. The next morning I immediately advised Chief Lanford, and Solicitor General Dorsey of my employment and assured them as Conley's counsel, I would throw no stumbling block in the way of their effort to find the truth--that personally and professionally, it would be my purpose to help throw all light possible into the search. These gentlemen, as was Judge Bean acquainted with the names of those financially back of my employment, and given a history as to how I was retained as Conley's counsel.

Immediately I set in motion machinery that transferred Conley from the county jail back to police headquarters. I did it in a sincere effort to protect Conley from the perjury of his fellows, and in an effort to have him protected and given a square deal. This was done and only such officials admitted to see Conley as were approved by me. Out of an abundance of caution, on account of the Pinkerton agency's employment by the National Pencil Factory I had them barred.

PROTECTED CLIENT'S INTERESTS.

These actions on my part were a result of my conception of my professional duty, in giving this negro a fair fighting chance. From the date of my assuming this negro's defense to the close of his case, I have stood by him and safeguarded and protected his every interest, at great sacrifice of time and labor. No man, lawyer or layman can point out a time I left untried in his defense. I sacrificed the compensation I was to receive from interests worth millions, rather than possibly jeopardize this negro's interest by premature publication. I was paid about $40 by some negro church members, who expressed themselves as desiring only a square deal for him.

This is not mentioned as self praise. It was no more than any honest lawyer should do. It is advanced now for the sole purpose of showing the public that I am entitled to a fair and unprejudiced study of my views.

As Conley's counsel and later as a lawyer and student much of my time and best thought have been invested in a painstaking analysis of the known facts and in an independent investigation. Few people have had better opportunities to learn the truth and no one has worked harder, I know.

Whatever solution is made of this crime must be the right solution. Regardless of the personal or professional estimate you may have of the writer or the motives that may or may not underlie an expression of his views, though he may believe he is influenced by money, political promise or other influence, the intelligent will at least consider, and when weighed in the balances, if they are not found wanting, the public will accept the truth of the Frank case, though the student may help to dig it out, be the devil himself. Regardless of public conjecture, there is a personal consciousness of which I am proud, that the same spirit for the right that has thus far led me in the discharge of my duty to Conley, is the compelling force that drives me further to learn the truth about this crime and to dare express the same.

Fully aware of the possibly grave public censure that may be mine and wreck of my professional career which may ensue I have not decided on this course of public expression of my views without expenditure of untiring labor and effort for fact that will have the unmistaken ring of truth. I am sensible that mistake of judgment on my part would tend to injure me ruinously and heap much damage upon the cause of truth which I seek to serve.

I have consulted with my seniors in my profession of the highest integrity and learning.

IS A COMPETENT WITNESS.

Conley gave his story to the world voluntarily and in writing before I became his attorney. He voluntarily went under oath as a witness in open court as to the details of his account of the crime. As a matter of fact, therefore, there exists no justifiable limitations upon me as his attorney. Under the law I am both a competent and competent witness to testify for or against Conley as to any matter or thing which I may have acquired in any or no manner while in confidence.

The public may desire to know why I have waited so long to express my views of this case. One reason is that it has been just within a comparatively short time that my whole duty to Conley has been ascertained and my relations as his attorney closed.

As far as Conley is concerned I have placed the bar against any further prosecution of him. The state with the light then before her made charges against Conley and they were found. Conley can never be tried again on this transaction. With the light then before me I represented him and my duty as his lawyer has been discharged.

It may seem strange to some that the light has not fallen across your path during all these months. In the first place the solicitor declined from the very first to allow me to be present when he talked with Conley. A large part of the evidence offered by the state and in behalf of Frank was as much news to me as it was to the general public. I was not in position to be present at all the trial, was in the courtroom but a small portion of the time while Conley was on the stand. I heard a part of Mr. Dorsey's speech and none of the other speeches. I was confident of the state and only recently have had the opportunity to analyze even the testimony of Conley.

I have given more than a month's study at night to the testimony of Conley alone, using a cardfiling system and dissecting his every statement, and grouping it under proper heads.

Many will desire to know what prompted me to take up this work. The worst of us want to do what is right. I found any number of people who believed I had trained Conley in his story. This carried the inference that I had assisted this negro in framing a series of perjuries to save him from punishment and that I assist him in fiendishly murdering Frank that he might be saved. This was offensive to me in the extreme to think that anyone could believe that I would join in perjury and murder for professional preferment. This made me more thoroughly determined to know and do the right in this case.

These and other influences added to my personal misgivings, emphasized the right course to pursue.

CONLEY DIDN'T TELL ALL.

In the first place as to my misgivings, I felt that there was something held back by Conley, and about which he wanted to talk to a woman. He would not let me know about it and would not let me carry the message to her. This so struck me and I was so anxious to learn the real truth, about this case that I went to Chief Lanford and explained to him how I felt about it. Following his directions, I carried the woman to the station house and Chief Lanford placed Detective Vickery over Conley's cell to overhear the conversation between Conley and his woman. The lights were lowered and this aroused Conley's suspicion and he struck some matches when he was replaced in his cell. He discovered Detective Vickery on top of his cell. Thus the plan fell through, but I have always felt that there was something about this crime that Conley wanted to tell that woman and that he dared not tell even me. I have felt that possibly he wanted to tell her something that she might cover up some trace of the crime. I felt I was going a long way to assist the police to eavesdrop Conley, but I did it in the interest of truth in hunting the murderer of little Mary Phagan.

Another reason is that Conley declined to allow his picture to be taken for publication, although both Chief Beavers and I assured him that we knew of no reason why it should not be done. I have always felt that he did not desire his picture shown for fear that someone had seen him coming in or going out of the factory and would identify him.

I also knew that even after Conley had made all of his written admissions and statements and after he had tried to see Frank at the jail and after he was compelled to know that any alleged hope he might have been expecting from Frank was gone that Conley still persisted in lying about the time he was at the factory until almost the very time of the trial and until after the detectives had discovered that Mr. Darley and Miss Mattie Smith were at the factory prior to the time Conley admitted seeing them. In fact, Conley never did get his time element straightened out.

MYSTERY OF COTTON SACK.

It has always been a mystery to me what became of that cotton sack that Conley says he wrapped Mary Phagan in and carried her down to the basement. He says he got this cotton sack on the second floor and carried it to the basement and left it there, yet it was never found in the basement or elsewhere, and I have never believed that the statement about the sack was the truth.

The back door of the basement broken open within a few feet of the body of the dead girl, in the direction that Conley would go if he had gone direct home, has never been solved to my mind. Conly swears that he sometimes used this as a means of exit and the state proved that Frank left by the front door.

Since I heard the statements of Dr. Harris in his office I have never believed that the hair found on the lathe was the hair of Mary Phagan or had anything to do with her death. I cannot remember the details or what Dr. Harris said others said, but I distinctly remember the startling impression made upon me at the time by the language employed, indicating that the hair was unquestionably not that of Mary Phagan.

Reading the official record recently I was amazed to learn that Conley charged Frank with immorality with Daisy Hopkins! two of the five times Conley says he watched for Frank. I know Daisy Hopkins, have represented her, have watched and studied Frank, and I know the types of the two people, their stations in life, their manner of living, their levels in society, their personal accomplishments and appearance, and I know as much as I can know anything in life without actually having been present, that Conley's statement as to this are untrue.

When Conley stated that he was not familiar with the newspaper accounts from time to time as published in the papers and that he could not read well sufficiently well to understand them I knew this was not true. I furnished him practically all of the newspapers carrying these stories and sometimes gave him as many as three in one day. I know that he read them sufficiently well to grasp the thread of the story and that he did have opportunity from a newspaper source to post himself.

Visiting the factory, I was impressed with the fact that I did not believe that Conley, sitting as he says he was, at the foot of the stairs on the first floor, could have heard any screams from the metal room or, tip-toeing from the office to this metal room or back.

I experimented with the question of the soiling of Mary Phagan's face and learned that her entire face was so black with dirt or soil that it was necessary to look at protected portions of her limbs to discover whether she was white or black. I can understand how her face could have been completely soiled by a struggle on the dirt floor of the basement with alive and fighting for her honor, but I have been unable to understand how the hollows of her face could have been so soiled upon the hard surface like the wooden floor of the metal room. The dirty floor of the metal room would have soiled her cheeks, the soil of her nose and other prominent parts of her face, but how the depressions in her face became black, even to the hollows of her eyes on the wooden floor, is difficult to believe, especially when Conley swears that when he found her her face was already dirty and that she was lying on her back with her face turned up.

FRANK NOT A PERVERT.

I have never believed Frank was a pervert. Conley never mentioned it to me before his testimony on the stand. I stood on the steps where Conley claims to have been standing and I do not believe that it was physically possible for him to have observed from that viewpoint even if any improper act had been occurring.

Examining the factory building, I find no hole that fits the description in the death note more completely than the hole by which Conley swears he sat all day and by which Mary Phagan passed going in and must have passed to come out.

The missing purse, hat, ribbon and flowers have always impressed me as Conley's part of the spoils.

Upon a comparative study of the death notes with the evidence of Conley and Frank with the Annie Maud Carter notes I am convinced that the language of these notes is Conley's language and that Frank had nothing to do with their preparation.

These and other things that developed as I studied created in my mind a strong conviction that a mistake of justice had been made, and I feel that with a proper consecration of effort on the part of all and especially those whose duty it is to have justice done that the tangled skeins of the mystery around this affair can be worked out.

Within a few days I will be prepared to submit the results of my study of these notes. With this matter still pending in the courts, as a lawyer I doubted the propriety of making my statement and felt that it was my duty to work quietly and let the results of my efforts be used in a more appropriate way.

In justice to the situation, which has been forced upon me, at least this statement is necessary at this time. No doubt there are many who are severely criticising what I have been unable to prevent, that is the publication of my opinion, but I am willing to face the issue and it is my purpose to continue to do all in my power toward the righting of the wrong that I believe has been visited upon Frank. I have other matters upon which I am investigating and in due time will present them for proper consideration.

Smith's Revelations No Basis for Motion

Any new evidence on which William M. Smith, counsel for Jim Conley, bases his charge that Conley is the real murderer of Mary Phagan, can be used only before the governor and a pardoning board, or in event the supreme court of Georgia grants Leo M. Frank a new trial on the extraordinary motion, the record in which is closed. On this point, all lawyers seem to agree.

The case cannot again be brought into the courts on new evidence, and even if Conley confessed to the murder and was willing to make his confession to any tribunal, it would only benefit Frank in a round about way. One of the paradoxes of the law is, however, that according to many lawyers, that Conley could be tried for murder if new evidence develops.

The extraordinary motion for a new trial in the Frank case has already been made and argued before the supreme court and for many weeks a decision by that tribunal has been pending. That, according to lawyers, is the one and only extraordinary motion which can be made on the ground of new evidence, and the only one which was definitely and finally closed in the superior court.

MUST GET NEW TRIAL.

Of course, if Frank is granted a new trial by the supreme court, any evidence discovered after the first trial could be submitted in the second trial in the superior court, but the second trial must be governed by the evidence already before the courts.

Besides the motion on the ground of new evidence, Frank also has pending before the supreme court the motion to set aside the verdict on the ground that he was not in court when it was rendered. If this motion is sustained, Frank wouldn't need the new evidence of Mr. Smith or anybody else, since attorneys say he would be set free and could not be tried again for the crime.

Mr. Smith says that he and C. C. Teider, who has been employed by him as an "evidence man" and who is also in the employ of the Burns agency, were at the Isle of Palms this summer, when they wired Detective Burns asking him to assist in the search for the Nelms sisters, in whom Mr. Smith was interested, and offering in return to assist Burns in the Frank case.

Practically since that time, Mr. Smith is said to have had the assistance of Dan S. Lehon, the Burns agent, in working on the case.

R. I. PROGRESSIVES HAVE STRAIGHT PARTY TICKET

PROVIDENCE, P. I., Oct. 3.--The progressive state convention today nominated a straight party ticket, headed by Fred D. Thompson, of this city for governor. Factional differences resulted in the absence of a number of former leaders.

FEW MINUTES! NO INDIGESTION, GAS, SOUR STOMACH--PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN

Digests all food, absorbs gases and stops fermentation at once

Wonder what upset your stomach--which portion of the food did the damage--do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated--just take Pape's Diapepsin, and in five minutes you will wonder what became of the indigestion and distress. Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only fifty cents for a large case at any drug store. It's truly wonderful--it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is astonishing. There's none don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.--(Advt.)

MAY REACH VOTE ON THE CLAYTON BILL MONDAY

Michigan Senator Hopes That "Providence Will Interfere to Defeat Such Law"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.--Debate on the Clayton anti-trust bill conference report was continued in the senate today with administration leaders ready to renew their efforts to procure an agreement for a vote on the measure during Monday's session.

Attempts yesterday to get the senate to vote Monday was unsuccessful owing to an objection by Senator Smith, of Michigan, but despite this, senate leaders predicted today that a vote would be had by Monday night. In objecting to an agreement, Senator Smith voiced the hope that "Providence would interfere to prevent enactment of such a bad bill into law." Senators Bristow, Norris and Clapp also vigorously attacked the conference report. Efforts of Senator McCumber to postpone consideration of the measure until December were without success.

Several senators were ready today with speeches in opposition to the measure when the senate met.

IRISHMEN IN AMERICA WILL HELP EQUIP CO.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.--Irishmen of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Montreal are sending a message to John E. Redmond, promising to help equip his company of Irish volunteers, according to Richard McGhee, M. P., who sailed today on the steamship Columbia for Glasgow. McGhee has been in this country as representative of Mr. Redmond and the Irish parliamentary party. He said he had visited Irishmen in these cities and was taking this message back with him.

Suffrage Parade

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 3.--Seven thousand women dressed in white marched today through Cleveland's business district in the interests of the suffrage amendment to be voted on at the November election. Many banks and a delegation of male sympathizers added interest to the procession.

LONE TRAIN BANDIT GETS ONE DOLLAR, POLICE SAY

Los Angeles Insurance Man Arrested as a Train Robber

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Oct. 3.--Confession that he held up passengers of the Sunset limited train of the Southern Pacific at Colton last night was made today by Jesse Carle, twenty-eight, a Los Angeles insurance solicitor, detectives say.

J. O. Gibson, a San Bernardino automobile man, was arrested as an accomplice, accused of having followed the train in an automobile to pick up Carle. The authorities say Gibson fled when he heard shooting.

One dollar was all that Carle netted in the hold-up. Angered at his ill success, he fired a shot in the air. The bullet ricochetted and grazed a passenger's foot.

ANTI-TRUST BILL GOES INTO ANOTHER WEEK

Efforts to End Debate and Get Vote on Saturday Fail

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.--Efforts to end the debate on the Clayton anti-trust bill, and to adopt the conference report on the measure again failed today in the senate and the vote went over until next week.

Senator Sterling, of South Dakota, attacked the conference report, declaring the bill as framed by the conferees was a backward step in the regulation of monopoly. He contends that, by the elimination of the criminal penalty sections of the bill, the conferees had "pulled its teeth."

RUMANIAN KING IS TRAITOR TO COUNTRY, SAYS COURT ATTACHE

Nephew of Prime Minister Declares Stand He Has Taken With Germany Proves Him False to People

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—In a dispatch from Paris the correspondent of the Post relates that a signed statement, attacking the attitude of King Charles, of Rumania, in the present European crisis, has been given out by Victor Jonnesco, nephew of the prime minister of Rumania and at present holding the post of secretary of the Rumanian legation in Paris. M. Jonnesco says in part:

"From the commencement of this European conflict the Rumanian people have been hostile to Germany and Austria. This hostility is pushing the people to drastic action. The cry is for a greater Rumania and the liberation of our brothers in Transylvania. Undoubtedly the situation has placed King Charles in a dilemma, for he already has made his choice between his duty as king of a free people and his duty as a Hohenzollern. The latter proved too dear to his heart; he is serving his caste and will do so until his death.

"When Russia proposed to King Charles that he occupy Transylvania and Bukowina he refused, declaring his troops were needed to guard the frontier. Today Bokowin, which is just as Rumanian as Transylvania, is occupied by Russian troops and has been declared a Russian province.

"This policy of King Charles will place him in history the role of a traitor to the interests of his country, although he is a hero in his stanchness to the Hohenzollern and Hapburg traditions.

"If his policy is persisted in, it will mean that the Rumanian in Transylvania will shortly be delivered from the Austrian yoke by Russia and henceforth incorporated in the Russian empire."

Rumanian King's Illness Believed Political Trick

ROME, Oct. 3.—Via London, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia from Sofia, Bulgaria, says the condition of King Charles, of Rumania, has suddenly become worse. The doctor's bulletin today declares he must have absolute rest to save his life.

The well-informed, however, according to the dispatch, believe the king's illness is really a political step the aim of which is to end the popular agitation to have Rumania join forces against Germany.

CHINA AGAIN DECLARES JAPAN HAS GONE TOO FAR

Reply to Latest Note Asserts Neutrality Has Been Violated by Japs

(By Associated Press.)

PEKING, China, Oct. 4.—1:55 a. m.—Japan's reply to China's protest against the Japanese occupation of the railway line from Tsing Tau to Tsinan was delivered today. Japan says in effect that it is planning the complete destruction of the German base at Tsing Tau and so is justified in taking possession of the railway which constitutes an inseparable portion of the German leased territory in China.

In the first place the Japanese argument says the railway is German owned, directly controlled by the German government, based on an imperial charter and has the character of a public property.

In the second place the railway cannot be regarded as neutral property and Japan's seizure of it does not constitute a violation of China's neutrality. The Chinese proclamation defining the limitations of the war zone does not alter the status of the railway.

Thirdly, it is said that the Chinese government insists that there has been no connection between Tsing Tau and the railway since the Japanese invested Tsing Tau and so Germany is unable to utilize the road, but from a Japanese military standpoint it would be dangerous to leave a section of the railway in the rear of the Japanese forces, in the hands of the enemy.

Indeed, it would be impossible strategically.

The argument concludes with the assertion that instances are not lacking to prove that the Chinese government if unable to restrain the Germans from utilizing the railway for warlike preparations and operations.

The government is permitting Chinese newspapers to report and discuss the Japanese activities in Shan-Tung. It still continues to prevent, however, the boycotting of things Japanese which various Chinese cities have attempted to inaugurate.

OFFICIAL STATEMENTS OF TWO ARMIES CLAIM ADVANTAGE IN BATTLE

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The following official statement issued in Berlin has been received here by wireless:

"The German cruiser Karlsruhe has sunk seven British steamers in the Atlantic.

"When we re-enter Brussels, we will take with us a large stock of matches to set fire to Cologne and every other place through which we pass. Henceforth we will have no more injured prisoners, everybody will be killed."

"It is stated from Vienna that the Austrian advance against the Servians is proceeding slowly, but favorably. Several Servian battalions were destroyed during a revolt among the Moslems. Twenty thousand Albanians have marched against Uskup (a town in the Vilayet of Kossovo, 100 miles northwest of Saloniki) and have demanded the surrender of the town."

French Official Statement Written in Twelve Words

Belgian Troops at Antwerp Forced Back by the Germans

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The Belgian legation issued the following official announcement tonight:

"On the east of the river Senne the defence of Antwerp has been forced to fall back to the river Nothe before the violent attack of the German artillery, after a desperate resistance of five days.

"The position on the Nothe is strong, and the Belgian army will resist with its full energy."

Russian Troops Occupy Three Cities in Poland

PETROGRAD, Oct. 3.—The following official announcement from the general staff has been issued:

"The battle at Augustowo continued to develop with extreme ferocity on October 2. The enemy relaxed his position north of Lake Vigri, carrying out furious attacks on the side of Ratchki and Borginene, in an effort to occupy western roads leading out of the Augustowo forest.

"On the road to Loz and Schihlischki the first division of the German cavalry attempted to check the offensive tactics of the Russian cavalry. This engagement took place at dusk, but the enemy's squadrons were put to flight and completely dispersed, sustaining heavy losses. They carried along in their rout the infantry protecting them.

"The Russian troops have occupied Raygrod, Kalvary and Mariampel (all in Russian Poland).

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Color, Gloss and Thickness

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.—(Advt.)

ALLIES ARE WARNED THEY CANNOT WHIP GERMANY IN A DAY

Hard and Trying Time Awaits Then When Kaiser Is Reduced to Defensive, Says English Military Expert

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The military expert of the Times today says:

"However much we may bend back the German right wing and relieve Antwerp, whatever confidence we have that the shock of the Russian masses in the east will prove decisive, we must not entertain the slightest illusion regarding the hard and trying condition which awaits all the allies in the future in operating against Germany reduced to the defensive.

"Germany is still united. Her resources grow atop. All her might in arms, all her arsenals are working at full pressure. Her fleet will strike when the hour comes probably in cooperation with the army.

"The line of the Aisne when forced may prove to be only one of the many similar lines prepared in the rear of it. It may take a very long time for the allies to compel Germany to feel a weakness. It therefore devolves upon the allies to look forward to a long war."

Germany Can't Be Starved Out, Says Vice Chancellor

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Oct. 2, by way of The Hague and London, Oct. 3.—Germany's position economically and financially is such as will enable her to carry the war to a successful conclusion, in the opinion of Vice Chancellor Clemens Del Brueck. The country cannot be starved out, declared the vice chancellor in a long interview today.

The unemployed was steadily decreasing with from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 in the field, he said. Many industries were working overtime on war orders and measures had been taken to divert labor from idle branches to busy departments until now the unemployed numbered only from six to seven per cent of the working men of the country.

Measures have been taken also to put the finances and the credit of trade and industry on a war footing and these have been so thoroughly successful that a general moratorium undoubtedly will be warded off during the entire war, said Herr Del Brueck, placing Germany in a far better position after the war than that of nations whose industrial life is affected by a moratorium.

Germany Now Drilling 600,000 Fresh Recruits, To Take Field in Month

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Oct. 3, 7 p. m.—In Swiss military circles, according to a Central News dispatch from Berne, it is estimated that Germany now has actually under arms twenty-seven army corps of her regular troops and an equal number of reserves. Of these twenty-four army corps are in France, six in Belgium and Alsace, thirteen in East Prussia, and eleven between Berne and Cracow.

There are in addition, the dispatch adds, what is assumed to be 1,500,000 men of the Landsturm and volunteers serving in the interior, while 600,000 fresh recruits are reported to be in training sufficiently advanced for them to be ready for service in November.

MORE ITALIAN MINISTERS MAY RESIGN, SAYS PAPER

Premier Salandra Is Making Strong Effort to Prevent Threatened Crisis

ROME, via Paris, Oct. 3.—The Idea Nazionale, the new organ of the Nationalist party, says that besides Foreign Minister San Giuliano, the ministry of the treasury, Signor Rubini, will probably resign, although Premier Salandra is making efforts to avoid a ministerial crisis.

The Idea Nazionale says that Cardinal Merry del Val will probably be appointed archbishop at Madrid, which is now only a bishopric under the See of Toledo but will be raised to an archbishopric. Cardinal Merry del Val's mission will be to strengthen the relations between Spain and the Vatican.

FRANCE ISSUES LIST OF CONDITIONAL CONTRABAND

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The French government has announced a supplementary list of articles declared conditionally to be contraband of war under article XXV of the "declaration of London." These are iron and steel oxides, sulphates and carbonates of iron, copper, lead, nickel and ferro-chromo, glycerine, leather and pneumatic and other automobile tires, and the materials used in their construction.

MAMMA, DADDY AND CHILDREN ALL LOVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Harmless "fruit laxative" cleanses stomach, liver and bowels

A delicious cure for constipation, biliousness, sick headache, sour stomach, indigestion, coated tongue, sallowness—take "California Syrup of Figs." For the cause of all this distress lies in a torpid liver and sluggish bowels.

A tablespoonful tonight means all constipation, poison, waste matter, fermenting food and sour bile gently moved out of your system by morning without griping. Please don't think of "California Syrup of Figs" as a physic. Don't think of ever drugging yourself or your children, because this delicious fruit laxative can not cause injury. Even a delicate child can take it as safely as a robust man. It is the most harmless, effective stomach, liver and bowel regulator and tonic ever devised.

Your only difficulty may be in getting the genuine; so ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Say to your druggist, "I want only that made by the California Fig Syrup Company." This city has many counterfeit "fig syrups," so watch out.—(Advt.)

It is an east wind that blows nobody comfort.

Having joined the buy-a-bale-of-cotton club, we will proceed to buy a winter suit.

It was perfectly natural for 1914, having broken so many other records, to break the record for a long battle.

National Interests Demand A Tax on Excess Cotton.

The interests of the entire Union as well as the interests of the South demand that next year's cotton crop be curtailed. We may leave the South wholly out of the consideration, and still find ample reason why the federal Government should exert its power to this important end. Cotton is not simply a Southern asset, it is a national asset. It is largely an export product, and as such preserves the country's favorable balance in foreign trade. A continued decline in the value of cotton would mean, therefore, serious impairment of the nation's income, distressing shrinkage in American wealth. Surely, then, the Government should do its utmost to prevent such injury. And since the curtailment of the 1915 crop is manifestly the one way to maintain the value of cotton in the face of present conditions, the Government should proceed accordingly, that is to say, it should impose a prohibitive tax on the production of cotton in excess of fifty per cent of the existing crop.

Congress is deeply concerned with means to protect and promote the country's over-sea commerce during the stress of war. To that end, it has enacted a law to develop the American merchant marine and has adopted other far-reaching measures to conserve our foreign shipping. This is eminently proper and important, but it is equally proper and even more important to protect the very substance of our export trade, to prevent the economic sacrifice of a staple that brings millions and millions of foreign gold to our shores. Not only the interests of the South, but the interests of the nation demand that this be done. If conditions incident to the war were such as to threaten the grain crop with bankrupt prices, the same course would be warranted. When any great national asset is at stake, the Government should employ every rightful means for its rescue.

The war in Europe has reduced import duties to such an extent that the Government must devise means for obtaining revenue from other sources than those on which it usually depends and which usually are sufficient. An emergency has arisen, and extraordinary measures are required to meet it. A war tax must be levied, and no one can reasonably question the right or the duty of Congress to impose it, for, national interests demand such a tax at this juncture of affairs. In like manner and because of the same circumstances, a grave emergency has overtaken the country's largest export asset, cotton. Is it not, then, equally just and necessary that Congress should impose a war tax to safeguard this important field of national interest?

Such a tax may be imposed as equitably as the contemplated tax on bank checks, automobiles, gasoline, freight transportation, and other things. The purpose of the cotton tax, to be sure, would not be to raise revenue, but to prevent overproduction in 1915 and thereby conserve the present and the future value of cotton. But that is as legitimate and as important a purpose as the maintenance of the Government's income; for, disaster to the staple that preserves the country's favorable balance of trade would spell heavy misfortune to the whole United States.

A cotton tax like any war tax would be suspended, of course, whenever the emergency that prompted its enactment ceased to exist. But such a tax is needed today, not only by the South but by the entire Union, as the surest means of curtaining next year's cotton acreage and thus safeguarding cotton values. It is earnestly to be hoped that Congress will give this matter prompt and favorable consideration. A national asset is in jeopardy; national power should be brought to its relief.

You must admit that the Russian official statements ae uniformly optimistic.

A Scheme to Ruin the State's Road.

Bent upon impairing the value and eventually destroying the usefulness of the Western and Atlantic railroad, certain interests are planning to build a parallel line from Cartersville to Atlanta. The prime mover of this scheme, according to common belief, is the Louisville and Nashville railroad, which is in financial control of the N., C. and St. L., the present lessee of the Western and Atlantic. The Louisville and Nashville has trackage of its own from Knoxville to Cartersville, but from Cartersville to Atlanta it now uses, through an agreement with the N., C. and St. L., the Western and Atlantic tracks. Evidently, then, the purpose of the proposed line from Cartersville to Atlanta, parallel to the Western and Atlantic, is to give the Louisville and Nashville a complete route of its own from Atlanta to points in Tennessee and the West, thereby leaving the Western and Atlantic, which is the State's road, a merely local line. The fact that the present lease of the Western and Atlantic expires a few years hence explains the activity and the shrewd designs of these private Interests.

The State must bestir itself without delay to prevent the sacrifice with which its great railroad property is threatened. The Western and Atlantic road belongs to the people of Georgia. It yields their public treasury an income of nearly a million dollars a year. It helps pay their taxes and goes far toward maintaining their schools and other institutions. It is worth today between sixteen and twenty million dollars, and if its rights and interests are duly conserved, it will be worth a vast deal more twenty years from now. In fact, the Western and Atlantic railroad is the State's richest asset, wherefore it should be protected at any cost against the efforts of a hostile corporation to damage and destroy it.

Let no one be deceived as to the intent of the plans now a-foot. It matters not who sponsors them or who contrived them, their manifest end is to isolate the State's railroad from those larger fields of traffic on which its value and its continued development depend. A parallel line from Atlanta to Cartersville would mean, in effect, a parallel line to Tennessee and to the great shipping centers that draw from the commerce of the West. It would sever the Western and Atlantic from its most fruitful sources of business, would make it for the most part a merely local enterprise, and thereby would work irreparable loss to the State's choicest possession.

Something must be done, and done promptly, to prevent this outrage on public interests. The fortune of the Commonwealth is at stake. The rights of every taxayer and every citizen are in jeopardy. One of the richest sources of the State's revenue is in peril of being reduced. If this scheme of an allen corporation is allowed to go through, taxes in Georgia will be higher and the people of Georgia will never cease to deplore the day when their common interests were overridden by special privilege, nor to condemn the authorities who permitted such a crime.

It is the imperative duty of State officials to take this matter vigorously in hand. If need be the Legislature should be called into extraordinary session to deal with the problem. This is no passing incident. It is a determined, organized effort on the part of a railway trust to undermine and ruin the people's property. If there is any virtue, any power, any regard for popular rights in the government of this State, speedy and unsparing measures will be taken to protect the State's road.

Beginning Work on Oglethorpe.

There is at least one American enterprise that goes its way undaunted by the war, the highest of all enterprises—education. Harvard opened last week with a Freshman class of nearly seven hundred, the largest in its record, and other great institutions report a marked increase in attendance. From kindergarten to university, the creative task of teaching and learning begins anew, with deepened zeal and broadened prospect. Our common schools are overflowing, colleges are filled, in some instances taxed beyond their capacity; and, what is peculiarly significant to the South, plans for new institutions are being pressed confidently forward. There could be no finer tribute to the American and the Southern spirit. Though we feel the shock of Old World disaster, and our material industries are momentarily checked, we will not falter or hesitate in our ideals of education.

The executive committee of Oglethorpe University has bravely and wisely determined to proceed forthwith upon building plans in order that the school may open in the autumn of 1915. It is not intended, to be sure, that the institution shall then be complete, for, a university is the product of growth and looks long years ahead for the fulfillment of all its hopes. It is purposed, however, that the first Freshman class of the new Oglethorpe shall be enrolled twelve months hence, and adequate provisions to that end will be made.

Some of the greatest institutions of learning have begun in this fashion. Indeed, it is the most advisable policy that could be pursued, however abundant might be the financial resources in hand. The executive committee has faith in the South, faith in the subscribers to the Oglethorpe fund. It believes that they will stand loyally by the high cause to which they have pledged support. Its confidence is well placed. The beginning of actual work on this great enterprise will bring cheer to many fields of southern interest, and will be applauded by every friend of education.

Villa and Carranza.

If worse comes to worst in the clash between Villa and Carranza, Carranza will either yield to expediency or be mastered by force; at least that is the opinion of close observers of the Mexican situation. As the foremost soldier in the late revolution, Villa is naturally the man of the hour. His were the victories and the leadership that advanced the Constitutionalist cause and drove Huerta to exile. He not only commanded his men, he inspired them, and no one else in the Republic holds the loyalty of so many millions of the common people.

Carranza is credited with true ideals and in some respects, perhaps, as he is the least selfish of his associates; but in the popular mind his achievements dwarf beside those of Villa. While he was making speeches and attending banquets, Villa was in the thick of battle. Furthermore, Carranza seems to lack that adaptable human element so essential in dealing with masses of men and with public crises. During the revolution his diplomacy was oftentimes crude and short-sighted, notably so when the United States occupied Vera Cruz.

Villa, on the contrary, has proved himself as adroit as intrepid. He seems closer than Carranza to the rank and file of the people, closer in common sympathies. And apparently he is the more democratic in his ideas of government and of the reforms to be carried out. In these circumstances, it is a safe guess that in the event of decisive conflict between the two, Villa would come out victorious.

There is reason to hope, however, that no such conflict will occur. Villa declares that he will not be a candidate for the Presidency; he wants Carranza to take the same stand. Indications are that Carranza will do so. The Constitutionalists have their differences, but we may hope that there is enough wisdom amongst them to prevent a sacrifice of all they have accomplished. In any event, the United States may well adhere to its policy of watchful waiting.

The Day of Prayer for Peace.

"Whereas, Great nations of the world have taken up arms against one another and war now draws millions of men into battle whom the counsel of statesmen have not been able to save from the terrible sacrifice; and,

"Whereas, In this as in all things it is our privilege and duty to seek counsel and succor of Almighty God, humbling ourselves before Him, confessing our weakness and our lack of any wisdom equal to these things; and,

"Whereas, It is the especial wish and longing of the people of the United States, in prayer and counsel and all friendliness, to serve the cause of peace,

"Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do designate Sunday, the fourth day of October next, a day of prayer and supplication and do request all God-fearing persons to repair on that day to their places of worship, there to unite their petitions to Almighty God, that, overruling the counsel of men, setting straight the things they cannot govern or alter, taking pity on the nations now in the throes of conflict, in His mercy and goodness showing a way where men can see none, He vouchsafe His children to heal again and restore once more that concord among men and nations without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world, praying also to this end that He forgive us our sins, our ignorance of His holy will, our willfulness and many errors, and lead us in the paths of obedience to places of vision and to thoughts and counsels that purge and make wise."

Sky Line, And Earth Line

Every citizen of Atlanta is proud of our sky line. We hang pictures of it in our homes and places of business, show it to our visitors, and describe it away from home. Our buildings rise higher and in ever increasing numbers. We walk our central streets in pride and point to our great office buildings and stores as open proof of our civic bigness and progress. We know that Atlanta is lusty and young and strong.

Somehow we are not so proud of our earth line, of our Grady hospital, of our schools, our lack of police protection, our lack of sewers. The city is beginning to feel that in some of these great essentials we are as a babe among cities.

The Grady hospital could meet demands twenty years ago, but today it is not equal to the demands made upon it. Disease comes through our back door as well as through our front door, and the Grady hospital ought to be the health guardian of the back door. It is crowded, worn, old and overtaxed. It cannot handle its ordinary demands, much less the demands of extraordinary sickness or of epidemics. The condition of the Grady hospital is an invitation to disease and epidemics and death. The most helpless among us is worthy of the best medical treatment.

Our school situation is certainly not satisfactory. One would hardly show the Boys' High school to a visitor, with pride and satisfaction. The cry has gone up with reason that our school system cannot go on as it is. We need more and better buildings, a continuation of the present system of reorganization, and a feeling full of confidence and respect on the part of the people for our school system. Anything less is an invitation to ignorance. Our people feel that the school condition cannot continue as it is.

If the people of Atlanta knew how necessary it is to increase the number of policemen, somehow more policemen would come. The police department needs money, and that more asondantly. The city has grown so fast, and money has been so short, that the residence districts of the city are sadly neglected. Two policemen can no longer patrol the entire Ninth ward at night very satisfactorily. If a policeman is injured on duty the city has not enough money to pay another policeman to take his place, but the officers on adjoining beats must double up. Four men on call at the police station are hardly enough for a city the size of Atlanta. Policemen ought to go in pairs at night, but often they must go alone for shortage of men, and it is dangerous. Our residence sections must be patrolled. Lack of policemen is an invitation to crime.

Some of our streets need sewer and water pipes, and need them badly. The earth line is still crying for relief. Atlanta ought to stamp out typhoid fever. It has caused enough suffering and death. It is an unnecessary disease. A case of typhoid fever is a sanitary disgrace to any community. The typhoid germ is no respecter of persons. We will have typhoid as long as we lack proper sewer and water facilities. The lack of them is an invitation to disease.

Suffering and ignorance and crime and disease are the dark clouds hovering on the earth line of Atlanta. No wonder we had rather look at our sky line. We are no longer just a little city, but we are the largest city of the Southeast, and we ought to come with all the power of the city to the aid of these four great interests, Grady hospital, schools, police, sewers. We cannot afford to play with disease and crime. Many non-essentials can wait. We need concentration in expenditures for permanent improvements. We have scattered too much. There are too many small appropriations for non-essentials, the Pryor street underpass, for example. We ought to be as proud of our city hospital, our schools, and our police department as we are of our office buildings.

Councilman Whiteford Smith has introduced his resolution for a real bond issue. The money ought to be concentrated on the real social needs of our people, our city hospital, the schools, the police department, and the sewers. The earth line needs money, and we ought to plan and spend wisely.

The Old Familiar Faces

(DeKalb New Era.)

It was my good fortune to know Josiah Carter for many years—to work with him and to feel the influence of his rare personality. He was one of the hardest workers I ever knew, but he was always cheerful, always considerate and helpful and always high-minded and clean. He was one of those rare characters whom it seems a blessing to know—whose radiance enriches your life like the sunlight enriches the rose.

* * *

I first met Mr. Carter in the strenuous days of the old Atlanta Herald and I was thrown with him during the Spanish war when he was the managing editor of The Atlanta Journal and I was editor of the telegraphic news. In those stirring times The Journal staff would usually meet in the large editorial room after the stress of the day's work for a brief chat, and such a rare group it was! Many of them are dead, some are engaged in other callings and all have streaks of gray in their hair. Henry Richardson, one of the most brilliant men and scholarly writers Atlanta ever had, was the editor-in-chief. Jack Cohen, Walter G. Cooper, Walter C. Taylor, and those two rare geniuses, Montgomery M. Folsom and Wallace P. Reed, were members of the staff. Smith Clayton was an occasional worker and James G. Woodward corrected the mailing galleys in a room near by and often dropped in at the close of the day's work and joined in the conversation with more or less vehemence.

* * *

These "shop talks" after the work of the day among these talented and interesting men will always remain among my most pleasant memories.

Things were discussed by bright men—men who had something to say and said it without restraint. The spoken comments on current events were often far more pungent and picturesque than those that were printed.

I well remember one of these chats one afternoon when Walter Cooper and Henry Richardson were discussing the seizure of the Sandwich Islands and the possibility of a colonial policy, while Wallace Reed, Montgomery Folsom and Smith Clayton were expiating on the decadence of Spanish glory, and J. G Woodward and Walter Taylor were engaged in a ferocious portrayal of the withering blight of dry Sundays in Atlanta, when Joiner thrust his head in the door and called out, "Hi, gentlemen and Jim Woodward!"

Jack Cohen had gone to the front as a war correspondent and Roxy Calloway, who was a well-known figure among the newsboys in those days, greatly amused Mr. Carter one afternoon by shouting to him: "Here's The Journal! All about the bombardment of Santy Ago by John S. Cohen."

We were constantly looking for big things to happen after the Americans left our ports, and Mr. Carter used to come to The Journal office on Sunday and hang around with one or two other members of the staff waiting for the wires to bring us tidings of battles. During these waiting hours we were often entertained by Mr. Carter with recollections of other days—of stirring political campaigns in Georgia—anecdotes of public men—of the stir and strife of a journalist's life in New York with side lights on Joseph Pulitzer, Foster Coates and Charles A. Dana.

Journalism with Josiah Carter was not work. It was a passion. He reveled in the turmoil and conflict of newspaper making like a child revels in a happy, boisterous play, and through it all he maintained towards every individual, great or small, the attitude of absolute fairness.

He was one of nature's noblemen His kind are all too few in this world. May the grass grow green over his grave. J. A. H.

Life

I've heard the blue-bird sing;
I've walked life's rosy path of spring—
The golden wealth of summer's sheen
My wistful eyes have seen—
And now the autumn's tint and glow
Completes the page. Ah! friend, I know
Life is a blessed thing.

How the War Affects Us

XL.—AS TO CARPETS AND RUGS.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The carpet and rug dealers have had several surprises within the last three months and it is hard for them to reconcile conflicting conditions. The bumper wheat crop of the country made them confident of a heavy demand for floor coverings this fall, and preparations were made for an exceptionally good season. Then came the European war, and the consequent paralysis of several branches of the trade. The closing of the European market to the American cotton crop will have a sufficiently discouraging effect upon the carpet demand of the southern states to offset the expected result of the large wheat crop of the northwest.

* * *

Aside from these local conditions the dealers and manufacturers are beginning to face unusual difficulties in securing their stock. The Oriental rug trade is absolutely tied up, although these products come from countries not supposed to be directly affected by the war issue. United States Consul General Hollis, located at Beirut, Syria, declares officially that the route from Bagdad and Damascus to Khanikin and Kermanshah is unsafe. Over 6,000 loads of rugs belonging to England are tied up at Khanikin now, with a valuation of nearly $900,000. The largest native rug merchants of Bagdad have failed and practically every bank in the rug districts has suspended payment. Rug buyers having thousands of dollars on deposit in Constantinople banks consider themselves fortunate if they can obtain money enough to take them comfortably out of the country. American checks and money orders are not accepted. With no means of paying for rugs they cannot be purchased.

* * *

Other difficulties also enter in. Turkey is mobilizing her troops rapidly in expectation of putting them into active service. A rug buyer in Turkey has recently written to some friends in this country stating that in a certain region all the men between 18 and 46 years of age have been ordered into the towns to prepare for military service. Each man was instructed to bring food for three days and also two pairs of shoes. The scarcity of gold in the country makes it impossible for the government to supply necessities for its soldiers. It is quite probable that money deposited by rug dealers in Turkish banks may be applied to this purpose.

* * *

The matter of securing dyes also affects the Oriental rug supply. Even in the oldest villages the weavers no longer depend entirely upon the old vegetable dyes. Practically all the rug factories use chemical dyes imported from Germany and France. The closing of the rug factories by the employment of the men in the army and the failure of the dye supply will necessarily reduce the rug industry to a fraction of its former importance. A certain number of rugs will continue to be manufactured in the homes of the people after the methods of their forefathers. The old primitive means of dyeing will be revived. These rugs may have a greater value to the connoisseur than those which have been made during the last ten years by the modern processes introduced into the rug factories of Oriental countries. They will not be produced in sufficient numbers to give them commercial importance and are not likely to be shipped for some time. They will be stored up in the villages in which they are woven until transportation facilities become less uncertain.

* * *

Large shipments of Oriental rugs to this country are now known to be upon the high seas. They are almost certain to reach us after some delay. Besides these, it is believed that a sufficient quantity is already in stock in the American rug houses to supply every demand for at least a year. Their price will not be increased materially, since Oriental rugs are always luxuries and their prices quite as high as most people are able to pay.

* * *

The members of the organized carpet and rug trade of this country decided a few weeks ago that they would take every precaution to prevent exaggeration of the difficulties they had about to face. Most of the American carpet factories are still able to run upon full time. They have dyes and wools sufficient to carry them through for two months and they are strong in the hope that some means will be provided to meet exigencies before any serious suspension of trade can come about.

* * *

America manufactures practically all its own carpets and rugs, or can do so with little effort. The small amount of carpets imported from England and other countries will not be greatly missed by the trade. The difficulties to be faced are the lack of raw material for manufacture, of which dyes, wool and jute are the most important. If no means are taken to supply substitutes for these imports, a crisis in the carpet manufacturing industry is imminent when the present stock is exhausted.

* * *

Practically all the dyes come from Germany or are manufactured under German patents recorded in the United States. Even if German patent rights were acquired, we would still lack certain ingredients which only a highly developed chemical plant can supply. It is stated that the German plant in which the finest of the world's dyes are prepared cost $85,000,000. Some of the machinery required years to complete. Even if means were provided to construct such a plant in this country, some time must elapse before its products could be upon the market.

* * *

The National Association of Finishers of Cotton Fabrics appointed a committee of experts, representing the leading dye manufacturers in the country, to consider methods of securing colors in place of those brought from Germany. The committee reported a few days ago that it would be practical to make the investment for a thoroughly equipped dye plant, providing that all American manufacturers could be depended upon to support the local dye industry after the conclusion of the war. It is thought that some agreement can be made among all the manufacturers dependent upon dyes, by which an American plant will be constructed which will render us absolutely independent in the future. A few manufacturers oppose the project on the ground that the European dyestuffs will be readjusted in the course of time so as to permit the usual supply of German dyes, so that an American plant will be an unnecessary expense.

* * *

The second requirement for carpet manufacture is wool. America raises a large quantity of wool of a quality too fine for carpet manufacture. It is suitable for cloth of various kinds. Practically all the wool used by American carpet manufacturers is imported from Russia. Now that we have sealed the order prohibiting the exportation of all sorts of Russian wool, as it will be needed for home consumption. In all the Russian wool districts the sales were held early this year and the prices were high. The greasy Ajanie wool sold as high as 22 1-2 cents a pound in the Odessa district, which for years has marketed this variety. Now it cannot be obtained at any price. Some offset to the lack of Russian wool may be made by importing larger quantities of Cape wool, which is similar in quality but more expensive to procure.

* * *

The third product needed by the carpet manufacturers, which will be affected by the war, is jute. This is used in the foundation of all fine rugs and in Brussels, velvet and axminster carpets. All the jute used in America is imported from India, usually by way of England and Scotland. Over ...,000 bales of jute were used last year by American carpet manufacturers. The substitution of cotton and linen for jute has been suggested. This would call for a complete readjustment of methods, a quantity of new machinery and in all probability would produce a different texture in carpets. The department of agriculture may come to the rescue by providing a variety of jute adaptable to American conditions. It may be also possible to breed sheep here having the coarse wool required for carpet making. In both of these expedients would require several years of time, however, they are valueless in meeting the present emergency.

CONFERENCE TO PLAN FOR REDUCING COTTON CROP

Meeting in Atlanta Tomorrow Will Discuss Means for Cutting Acreage

Leading men from every state in the south will meet in Atlanta Monday to discuss ways and means of reducing the acreage to be planted in cotton next year and to bring about a diversification of crops so that all kinds of foodstuffs will be grown by the southern farmers.

This conference, which was called by the Georgia chamber of commerce, will be held in the house of representatives at the state capitol and will begin its deliberations at 10 o'clock Monday morning. It is probable that the work of the conference will be largely done by committees, each committee being given one subject to consider and report upon to the conference as a whole.

Every state in the cotton growing belt has been invited to send delegates and it is expected that all will do so. The delegates from each state will be made up of agricultural commissioners, farmers, bankers, fertilizer dealers, merchants, representatives of chambers of commerce and others.

SUBJECTS SCHEDULED.

Some of the subjects to be considered are: Reduction of cotton acreage, growing of more foodstuffs, market for foodstuffs and a better system of agricultural credits so that the farmer can obtain fair cash advances on his products at reasonable rates of interest and for sufficient periods of time.

One of the methods for limiting the cotton crops which will be given earnest consideration by the conference is that originated by J. R. Smith, the well known Atlanta business man who owns a large farming interest in Lee county. This plan has been adopted by the farmers of Lee county and is known as the "Lee County Plan." It provides for associations of farmers in each county, the members of the associations pledging themselves to plant only a stipulated number of acres in cotton to each one-horse plow. These associations are chartered and the pledges of their members become legal and binding contractural obligations, subjecting those who violate their pledge to court injunctions.

GEORGIA DELEGATES.

J. D. Price, commissioner of agriculture, has appointed the following delegates to the conference from Georgia and most of them will attend: R. C. Neely, Waynesboro; Sam Brown, Americus; C. C. Clay, Americus; H. F. Arnall, Newnan; W. L. Peek, Conyers; T. S. Scott, Forsyth; J. A. Glover, Rome; John T. Newton, Madison; L. C. Miller, Sparta; J. B. Clements, Irwinville, and W. B. Rice, Dublin.

Delegates appointed from the Atlanta chamber of commerce by President Mell R. Wilkinson follow:

J. R. Smith, chairman, Robt. F. Maddox, A. P. Coles, J. T. Holleman, Wilmer L. Moore, H. V. McCord, Clark Howell, J. R. Gray, Keats Speed, V. H. Kriegshaber, Brooks Morgan, J. D. Price, W. J. Davis, J. K. Orr, W. G. Cooper, H. G. Hastings, H. H. White, Jr., Dr. E. Stockbridge, Asa G. Candler, J. K. Ottley, E. H. Inman Joseph V. McCord, Albert Howell, Jr., Ivan E. Allen.

BERLIN, Oct. 2, 3:30 p. m., by Way of The Hague and London, Oct. 3.—1:30 a. m.—The Saechsische Bank of Dresden has reduced its exchange discount rate from 6 1-2 to 6 per cent.

Washington Women Plan Cotton Week

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Women of the cabinet circle and in official life generally, especially those from the south, continue enthusiastic preparation for the cotton fashions show here next week which they have planned as one means of stimulating activity in the south's greatest interest now depressed by the European war.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the secretary of the navy, has arranged a North Carolina exhibit which will include a cotton gown made by herself. Many society belles of the capital will put aside silks and satins for cotton gowns in furtherance of the movement.

Butts County Favors Big Cotton Acreage Reduction

JACKSON, Ga., Oct. 3.—The farmers of Butts county went on record Saturday as favoring a material and sweeping reduction in the cotton acreage next year. Resolutions to that effect were passed without a dissenting vote.

Another meeting will be held in Jackson Tuesday, October 6, at which time farmers, merchants, bankers, the officers of the Butts county chamber of commerce and all others interested will come together and formulate working plans to handle the present situation.

To date the farmers of this county have sold but little cotton, less than a hundred bales having been sold in the open market. Several thousand bales are stored in the various warehouses here.

Through the buy-a-bale movement a good many bales have been taken off the market in Butts county. Every day sees new converts to that plan and by that means several hundred bales of distressed cotton will be kept off the market in Butts county.

LAST WEEK FOR NIGHT SCHOOL REGISTRATION

Application and registration for admission in the free night school of the Georgia School of Technology which were extended in September to meet special conditions, will be permanently closed this week, according to announcement of Prof. J. N. G. Nesbit, dean of the school.

All who have not yet entered and who wish to do so may apply to Professor Nesbit any night this week through Thursday night, between the hours of 7:30 and 9:30, after which the books will not be reopened.

"TRADING AT HOME" IS URGED IN DECATUR

DECATUR, Ga., Oct. 3.—The Decatur board of trade is to issue at a very early date a classified business directory of the town. The object is to let the public know who the members of the trade body are from a business view point, and insistence is made that "trading at home" be done.

Prison Some Better Than Gory Battlefields, Thinks 'Good Words'

Echoes of the European war are found in "Good Words" for October 1, the paper published by men in the Atlanta federal prison.

"Prison is not an Eden, neither is it a place for jubilation, but as a refuge from shot and shell, it has its charms for some," are the words that head the editorial columns of this paper.

Evidently some of the prisoners are foreigners, men who would have to be in the line of battle were it not for the walls that hold them in Atlanta.

Speaking of the European war, the prison paper says:

"To see thousands of admirable youths, hardly yet in the first flush of manhood, mowed down by cannon would appall the most stout-hearted of the profit-seeking makers of war; but is the exploding shell that tears the body to tatters in an instant a more deadly destroyer of youth than are the permitted social conditions that turn his soul away? Is it, for example, more deplorable to riddle a boy of sixteen or twenty with bullets than to consign him for a terms of years as the companion and pupil of men confirmed in crime and immorality?

"The sentiment that sheds pitying tears for youthful victims of insensate carnage and looks indifferently upon youth deliberately blasted by a revengeful, vindictive social system—devised chiefly for the protection of property—is of the kind to make devils laugh."

MAIL WAGON DRIVER IS HURT IN RUNAWAY

R. S. Cox, 28 Hayden street, driver of a mail wagon, sustained a broken leg and a number of painful bruises late Saturday evening when his horse ran away and threw him out of his wagon.

Cox was driving his wagon into the city on Marietta street about 11 p. m. when he reached a point near Jones avenue L. S. Peek, 707 Edgewood avenue, who had been driving an automobile behind him, ran the machine into the rear of the wagon. This frightened the horse and it dashed into a mad gallop before Cox could tighten his hold on the reins.

It was when the animal made a wide swerve across the street that Cox was thrown from his seat to the pavement. The horse and wagon were stopped several blocks from the scene of the accident and the wagon was in a badly damaged condition.

"GETS-IT," 2 Drops, Corn Vanishes!

The Only Sure Ender of All Corns

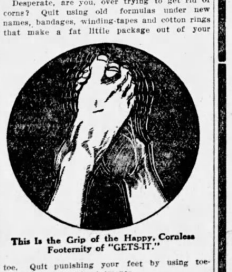
Desperate, are you, over trying to get rid of corns? Quit using old formulas under new names, bandages, winding-tapes and cotton rings that make a fat little package out of your toe. Quit punishing your feet by using toe-eating salves and ointments.



This Is the Grip of the Happy, Corn-less Footernity of "GETS-IT."

To use knives, files, scissors and razors, slicing and hacking at a corn, only make it grow faster and bigger. It also brings danger of bleeding and blood poison. The new way, the new principle never known before in corn history, is "GETS-IT." It's a liquid—2 drops on a corn does the work. Pain goes, the corn begins to shrivel and out it comes! You apply it in two seconds. Nothing to stick, nothing to hurt, and it never fails.

CRAWFORD COUNTY FARM PRODUCES PRIZE COTTON

Some of Stalks Are More Than Ten Feet in Height

Ordinary cotton stalks are pitiful "Lilliputians" in size compared to one brought to The Journal office Saturday night from the Crawford county farm of B. F. Mitchell.

This stalk measured ten feet and one inch in height, was one inch in diameter at the base and eight feet from tip to tip of the lower branches. It was adorned with eighty very large bolls and a quantity of luxuriant leaves.

According to H. B. Mitchell, a brother of the grower, who brought the stalk to The Journal office, B. F. Mitchell has twelve acres in cotton of this unusual size, and he estimates that it will yield at least a bale and a half to the acre.

This cotton is growing on bottom land in black loamy soil and it is said that the branches are so long and so thick that they overlap the rows and make it quite difficult to pick.

Perch Artists Are New Sensation With Coming Big Circus

It is a common fallacy that the most daring and expert climbers and aerial workers today are sailors, and the jolly tars have always been more or less proud of their achievement in this line of endeavor. Recently, however, some base landlubbers have managed to wedge themselves into a position before the public eye and rob the man who sails the raging main of his laurels. These latter belong to a new class of aerial gymnasts, known as perch performers. They have created a tremendous sensation in the hippodromes of Europe during the past winter, due to the thrilling and amazing feats performed at such dizzy heights and upon such slender and trembling supports that it seems almost impossible for the performers to escape without fatal accidents.

A number of these daring perch performers are to be seen in this city for the first time when Ringling Brothers' circus comes here Monday, October 12. The perch act number is one of the costliest features of the Ringling Brothers' program this season, and includes such famous entertainers as the Mirano Brothers, Anderson Brothers, the three Jahns and the Grau and Rodriguez Brothers.

Bird-Wilcox Co. and Cotton

Although a new concern, having been in Atlanta just one year, we have been so successful in the autogenous welding and supply business that we have been forced to obtain larger quarters just off Marietta street.

This success is due to the loyal support given us by our friends, and we feel that we should bear our part of the burden of the present cotton situation. We are therefore willing to accept cotton at 10 cents a pound in part or full payment for all work done at our plant.

Our new plant is the finest equipped Oxy-Acetylene welding plant in the South for autogenous welding.

SNOW FLURRIES AND SLEET ARE ALREADY FELT ON FIRING LINE

Warring Nations Are Faced With the Impossible Task of Keeping Ten Million Soldiers Comfortable

Have you considered the effect cold weather will have upon the warring armies of Europe? Have you thought of the suffering it will bring? Of the misery to follow, both on the battlefield and among the people in the war deluged countries?

Winter is the greatest general of all. Throughout the ages armies have succumbed to his irresistible advance. He even defeated Napoleon after the Corsican had vanquished Europe. Now he is moving in overwhelming force down the continent.

Freezing weather, you know, is the worst foe soldiers have to contend with. Ice and fogs and snow are dreaded far more than bullets. Bad weather causes epidemics of pneumonia, dysentery and scores of other ailments that take men out of the firing line while men who escape actual sickness are often so weakened by exposure that they haven't the stamina necessary to recover from wounds. The dread of lying wounded and exposed to the merciless weather, perhaps freezing to death, takes the heart out of the strongest man, yet that is the fate that will overtake thousands during the winter fighting.

ADVANCE GUARD FELT.

While the main army of winter—snow and ice—is still far in the north its advance guards have begun to make their presence felt. Frightful weather has been recorded on the continent for the past few days. Soldiers in France have had to fight in trenches knee deep in water and there have been snow flurries. Sleet storms are recorded in Galicia.

Vienna reports epidemics of cholera and dysentery so bad that 3,000,000 krone have been appropriated for isolation hospitals for the stricken soldiery.

And that is but the beginning! Autumn, remember, is not two weeks old. The dead of winter is almost three months away. When it sets in the suffering among the soldiers may be compared to Napoleon's Russian army. You remember that story of horror; how, in 1812, the Corsican invaded Russia with 400,000 picked men. Winter trapped him and only 20,000 survivors straggled into France in the spring.

FREEZING FOGS.

While winter weather in the theater of the present war is not so cold as that encountered by Napoleon, it is the worst immaginable for men compelled to live in the open. The temperature is higher than that of corresponding latitudes in America for the winds from the north are converted into freezing fogs which penetrate to the very marrow. Rains so cold that the drops seem to burn are frequent and cause more suffering than honest winter weather.

The accompanying diagram shows the march of winter month by month from his base in the Arctic southward through Europe. Europeans are early as October he makes his presence felt and from then on he moves gradually southward until his furthest lines are well into France.

Everything to the north of the battle lines shown is subject to an average temperature of 40 degrees or colder. This is the weather which prevails in the central part of the United States in January.

TEMPERATURE VARIES.

The country covered by the average is wide, however, and the mercury varies from an average of 17 degrees in Petrograd, where the temperature often drops to 20 below zero, to an average of 38 degrees in London, where it rarely gets colder than 10 above.

Of course everything possible is being done to insure the comfort of the fighters. Women of all classes all over Europe are knitting woolen caps and socks and mittens. Factories are turning out overcoats and sweaters by the hundred, but to supply six to ten million men in the field by the time cold weather sets in is a hopeless task.

The armies may go into winter quarters as Americans did during the civil war and as the Russians and Japanese did in 1904, but such strategy is hardly probable in 1914. Food is too scarce on both sides, money is too tight, the job to be done too big.

New Tax Collector, Who Succeeds Old Boss, Quit School for 75c-a-Week Job

FRANK F. SMITH.

Frank F. Smith, Now Polished Orator, Was Too Timid When Boy to Give Classroom Recitation

"Frank, if you don't stand up next Friday and give a recitation like the other children do, you must stop school, for you can't evade the rule any longer," remarked a teacher in the Walker Street public school twenty-one years ago to the man, who after the first of January is going to collect the hundreds of thousands of dollars which the citizens pay into Atlanta's treasury each year.

Frank F. Smith, then thirteen years of age, thought for a few minutes of the terrible ordeal of facing his whole class and making a recitation.

Then he thought of a job in The Journal's mailing room, which paid 75 cents a week, and which he was sure he could land.

"Well, I am going to quit," he remarked to the teacher.

That in brief is the way the career of Frank Smith, who was recently nominated city collector, commenced, so if you find, when you go to pay your water bill or your taxes that the man behind the grated window has just as much assurance as the average man in politics, remember that it was acquired, for Frank Smith twenty-one years ago was so timid that he would rather work for 75 cents a week than give a recitation, which would subject him to the jibes and comments of his classmates.

NEVER WENT BACK.

When he left the Walker street school, Frank Smith was in the middle of the Eighth grade. He hasn't been back to school since, except when he visited school houses for the sole purpose of making speeches. Although he dodged it in school, he had to acquire the art, when he became a "johner" and affiliated with all sorts of secret orders and unions.

The new city tax collector says The Journal raised him. At any rate he soon got out of the 75 a week class and it was not long before he had passed through his apprenticeship and was leading a crew in The Journal press room.

Mr. Smith went with the old News as assistant foreman of the press room, but about the time it went out of business, he was elected head of the Red Men in Georgia. Then he left his job to look after the interests of the secret order, incidentally to go over the state making speeches.

IS BRAVE "INDIAN."

Although the youngest state chief of Red Men the country, as he was only 29 years old, he had learned to face an audience without having cold shivers running down his back.

In 1909 Mr. Smith was appointed assistant tax collector, a position he held until February of this year, when he resigned and commenced his campaign for the higher office, which ended successfully on October 1, when he defeated E. E. Williams, who ran ahead of him in the first primary, but failed to secure a majority.

Reforms in the tax office, the principal one of which is more celerity in waiting on those who come on the 10th to pay their water bills have been promised in many campaign speeches by the boy who quit school not so many years ago because he was too timid to make a speech.

DR. ARTHUR C. GILLAM FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Says Wife Stayed Away From Home and Wouldn't Cook His Meals

Alleging cruel and inhuman treatment in that his wife, Mrs. Lillian Gillam, would not prepare breakfast for him, Dr. Arthur C. Gillam, 144 Cherokee avenue, filed suit for divorce Saturday against Mrs. Gillam.

The doctor alleges that his wife, after failing to give him breakfast, and after he had gone to a hard day's work, would lock up the house, leave and not return until after dark. In the meanwhile, the plaintiff would come back, demand dinner, and again find nothing to eat, according to the petition.

When the plaintiff insisted meals were necessary for his health, the defendant, Mrs. Gillam, would abuse and curse him, says the petition.

Dr. Gillam further says that his wife daily called up men over the telephone.

"The defendant's conduct caused the plaintiff much grief and anguish that it is necessary for the preservation of his health that he have a divorce," the petition concludes. J. McSwain Wood, attorney, filed the suit.

SHOWS JURY HOW HE GOT HURT; GETS VERDICT

C. M. Everett Produces 'Horse' That Broke His Leg and Gets $1,997.53

Vivid demonstration of just how an accident could happen when a man operated a steel and wooden "horse" to lift a thousand-pound piece of machinery won from a jury in Judge Ellis' branch of the superior court a verdict of $1,997.53 damages for a broken leg in favor of C. M. Everett against the Murray company Saturday.

The "horse" was carried to the court house Friday on a large truck; ten men, hired by the plaintiff, were required to get it from the truck to the court room on the fourth floor. The "horse," a piece of apparatus weighing three tons, stands fifteen feet from the floor, supports a pulley as big as a man's head, and is used to lift great weights in the plant of the Murray company, where machinery for oil and cotton gin mills is made. It was placed in the new court room close to the jury box, where a demonstration of just how Everett, a laborer, was hurt, was made.

Everett's right leg was broken when a piece of machinery slipped from the "horse" and fell on him March 5, 1913, at the defendant's plant in Atlanta. Hewlett & Dennis represented the plaintiff. Everett sued for $15,000.

U. S. COLLECTORS TOLD NOT TO BREAK IN TRUNKS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Collectors of customs were instructed today by Assistant Secretary Peters of the treasury not to break open trunks of travelers, but to wait for the owner or his agent in all cases. Complaints, he said, had reached the department of trunk breaking.

WHEN SKIN BREAKS OUT OR ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

SAYS AN OUNCE OF BOLD-SULPHUR CREAM WILL DRY ANY ECZEMA ERUPTION RIGHT UP

Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common bold-sulphur made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream and apply it to the irritated parts the same as you would any cold cream. For many years common bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the practice of dermatology and cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticidal, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always effecting a permanent cure it never fails to instantly subdue the angry itching and irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

RUSSIA FOLLOWS WILL OF PETER THE GREAT IN PRESENT CONFLICT

Last Word to People Was "Use England as Ally When Need Be to Conquer the World"

PETROGRAD, Oct. 3.—The will of Peter the Great explains Russia's attitude, ambitions and intentions, and indicated her moving spirit in the present war. Here is what the Great Peter's last admonition to his people says:

1. Russia must keep her men continually in training for war. She should be at peace only when it is necessary for her to recuperate financially. Thus war must serve peace, and peace war for the greater glory of Russia.

2. Every able general, every learned man among the best instructed nations of Europe that can be induced to settle in the dominions of the Czar is an advantage gained.

3. We must take part in all the affairs of Europe. We must especially sow and foster discord in Germany.

4. Poland must be divided. We can let the neighboring powers have a share until we can retake what we have yielded.

5. Sweden must be subjugated, therefore we must separate Sweden from Denmark and keep up a rivalry between them.

6. The wives of Russian princes should always be chosen among the German Princesses to increase our influence in Germany.

ENGLAND AS ALLY.

7. Commercially we must ally ourselves with England. We need English gold and want her seamen and traders to teach ours.

8. We must excessively extend ourselves along the Baltic sea and the Black sea.

9. We must advance toward Constantinople and India. When we have India we can do without English gold, for the power that holds the wealth of India is the true ruler of the world. We must make war continually against Turkey and Persia until we have compassed the domination of the sea. We must try to revive the ancient commerce of the Levant and Syria with Europe and India.

10. We must promise to Austria our help in making her mistress of all Germany and must excite the jealousies of the German Princes against her.

11. We may give Austria a share of Turkey when we turn the Turks from Europe. What we give her we can retake afterward.

12. All the adherents of the Greek churches in Hungary, Turkey and Poland we must support. They will be our friends in the midst of the enemies' country.

13. When Sweden, Persia, Poland and Turkey have been subjugated when the Baltic and the Black sea are guarded by our ships, we must first offer to France, and, if she refuses, to Austria, to share the world with her. Thus using to destroy the other, we can rush the remaining one at our ease.

14. If both refuse we must excite their jealousies until they exhaust each other by continual wars. Then Germany must be attacked with overwhelming force. When Germany and France are overcome the rest of Europe will immediately submit to us. Thus can and must Europe be subdued.

Peter the Great died February 8, 1725. He was the first Russian to take the title of emperor, which he did in 1721. The surname Peter the Great was assumed by him.

Since John Quit Drinking

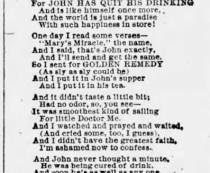
By John's Wife



I'm the happiest little woman,
In all this little town;
And my merry laugh and singing,
Takes the place of sigh and frown.
For JOHN HAS QUIT HIS DRINKING
And is like himself once more.
And the world is just a paradise,
With such happiness in store!

One day I read some verses—
"Mary's Miracle," the name,
And I said, that's John exactly,
And I'll send and get the same.
So I sent for GOLDEN REMEDY
(As it's my custom to do),
And I put it in John's supper
And I put it in his tea.

And it didn't taste a little bit;
Had no odor, so, you see—
It was smoothest kind of sailing
For little Doctor Me.
And I watched and prayed and waited,
(And cried some, too, I guess),
And I didn't have the least faith,
I'm ashamed now to confess.

And John never thought a minute,
He was being cured of drink,
And soon he's as well as any one,
It makes me cry to think!
Just makes me cry for gladness,
I'm so proud to be his wife—
Since he is cured of drinking,
And leads a sober life.

"Since John he quit a-drinking!"
I can't say it often enough!
And he will loathe and detest a liquor
As he would a poison stuff.
And when I say my prayers at night
As thankful as can be—
I'll not forget the most of all—
Then GOLDEN REMEDY.

YOUNG MAN LOOKING FOR JOB ROBBED BY FOOTPADS

Knocked Unconscious in Alley and Relieved of All His Money

With $30 in his pocket—all he had—L. C. Bostwick, a young man of Newberry, S. C., came to Atlanta last night looking for a job in a cotton mill. He got off the train at Simpson and Mangum streets, and meeting a man asked him the direction to Chestnut street, where a friend lived.

The man directed him down an alley, and soon after, young Bostwick's acquaintance, with the aid of two other men, knocked him down and beat him into unconsciousness. Bostwick says they must have used brass knucks.

When he came to his three ten-dollar bills were gone, and he was badly battered up. Along after midnight he reported his plight to the police, to whom he gave a description of one of the footpads.

ATLANTA DOCTOR TO JOIN RED CROSS IN EUROPE

Dr. D. B. Hawkins Leaves to Begin Work on Battlefields of Old World

Atlanta is to be represented in the Red Cross service on the battlefields of Europe by one of her citizen-surgeons, a graduate of the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons and until lately with the hospital corps of the Fifth regiment, national guard of Georgia.

He is Dr. D. B. Hawkins, of 118 1-2 Edgewood avenue, and he left here Friday night for Washington, thence going to New York, where he sails for London to join thirty surgeons of the American Red Cross who have already reached there.

Dr. Hawkins is the first Atlanta doctor to volunteer for Red Cross service in Europe. He sent in his application soon after war broke out, and the other day received orders to report at headquarters. It is doubtful if another American Red Cross ship will be sent to Europe, so Dr. Hawkins and a few other American doctors will take what passage they can to reach London.

There Dr. Hawkins expects to be assigned to one of the units which follow each of the hostile armies. It is very likely he will be joined with the British troops, as he does not speak French, German or Russian fluently.

Dr. Hawkins already has had an adventurous life, and expects to add to his experiences considerably in the next six months, the length of time for which all the doctors agree to enlist. He is a native of Virginia and a graduate of Valparaiso university, Indiana. Since he left school there he has been in every state of the union and in Canada, Alaska, Mexico and South America. He has sailed before the mast and punched cows in Texas, went through the San Francisco earthquake and finally began the study of medicine in Charleston.

Last year he studied at the local medical school, graduating with high honors in 1913. He has since made quite a reputation for himself as a skilled surgeon in Atlanta, and resigns a lucrative practice to join the Red Cross, partly through a spirit of adventure, mostly through a desire to gain the experience in treating both the wounded and the diseased in Europe.

Dr. Hawkins is twenty-nine years old. For the past few years he has lived in Atlanta and has made a host of friends here who wish him good luck. He hopes to return to this city when the war is over. In his opinion it is not going to last more than six months longer.

TROOPS OF CARRANZA AND VILLA FIGHT AT NACO

NACO, Sonora, Mexico, Oct. 3.—Governor Maytorena's attack on the Carranza troops in Naco was delivered late today. The attack of the Villa troops was launched first on the western side of the town. American troops patrolled the border line.

Desultory fighting on all sides of the town constituted the attack tonight. Both sides are using machine guns, but Maytorena's troops seem to have the best pieces of artillery. The American troops turned back wounded, who sought refuge in Naco, Arizona.

Maytorena's troops have been reported as advancing on Naco, Sonora, for days. The "Handful of Tacquis" are coming down the arroyes just before dark gave warning that the battle was about to begin.

WEST WING OF ALLIES NEAR BELGIAN FRONTIER

Strong German Reinforcements Fail to Stop Advance of Enemy

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The western wing of the allied armies was extended still further today and now reaches within 20 miles of the Belgian frontier, carrying the allies' overlapping movement in a northeasterly direction.

German reinforcements on this end of the line are strong. These troops probably were brought from bodies of German forces in the rear of their advanced entrenchments. Their courageous dashes to the allies' front were not successful, and the French and British were able to make them fall back on their deep trenches.

The sight of the allied infantry, creeping across the open spaces in front of the trenches in a brilliant sunshine which glittered on their weapons, was impressive. Hundreds of shells burst overhead or in their rear without doing great damage.

Everywhere the French and British soldiers seemed as though glued to the ground, but yet their widely extended lines progressed always forward. In only two or three instances did they encounter the spitting machine gun fire with its hail of bullets, which ended on them when they surmounted slight eminences, before reaching the German trenches. They found few Germans there to meet their bayonets, as the invaders had retired to another line only a few hundred yards back.

It is said that the Germans also retreated on the eastern wing, where for many days they have been going back continually. In that part of the great battlefield the famous French Alpine riflemen came in contact with the Germans and inflicted considerable loss.

In the center there was comparative calm, although the artillery and infantry kept firing occasionally as though to remind their adversaries of their presence.

The aviators on each side have kept continual watch on the movements of the enemy, and sometimes have dropped shrapnel bombs, generally with little effect, however, as the troops are well sheltered in their burrows.

ALL ATLANTA WILL PRAY FOR PEACE IN BIG EUROPEAN WAR

St. Luke's, All Saints, the Cathedral, Trinity M. E., Central Congregational, St. Mark's M. E., First Presbyterian, Baptist Tabernacle and West End Baptist. Charles A. Sheldon will play the organ accompaniment to the hymns, while Organist Kraft directs. Thousands of people are expected to crowd the auditorium during the exercises.

In every church in Atlanta at the morning services, and in many in the afternoon and at night, special exercises devoted to peace will be held. At all the morning services announcement will be made of the exercises at the auditorium in the afternoon. Special prayers for peace will be held in all churches, and President Wilson's peace proclamation will be read.

This proclamation, in its first two clauses, expresses the spirit of the day. These read as follows:

"Whereas, Great nations of the world have taken up arms against one another and war now draws millions of men into battle whom the counsel of statesmen have not been able to save from the terrible sacrifice; and,

"Whereas, In this as in all things, it is our privilege and duty to seek counsel and succor of Almighty God, humbling ourselves before him, confessing our weakness and our lack of wisdom equal to these things"—

Even little babies will lend their innocent strength to Atlanta's powerful prayer. Sunday, coincident with being Peace day, is Rally day for more than 200 Atlanta Sunday schools. In nearly all of these peace celebrations will be held; on this day, many "cradle roll members," the baby element, will graduate to the dignity of the beginners' classes. These baby tots will pray for little European babies whose fathers are dead in crowded graves and whose mothers face, alone, a maddened world.

PEACE PLANS ELABORATE.

In many of the churches elaborate peace exercises will be held. Special services, with music for the occasion, have been announced by Dr. S. J. Lyons, of the First Presbyterian church; Dr. A. R. Holderby, of the Moore Memorial Presbyterian church, and Rev. C. J. Yeiser, of the Charleston Memorial Methodist church. At the latter, Rev. Dr. F. W. Hixon, president of the University of Chattanooga, will preach on peace at the morning service at 11 o'clock and at the 5 o'clock afternoon service; Bishop F. B. Leete will preach at the night service at 7:30 o'clock.

Dr. W. A. Smart, professor of Biblical theology at the new Methodist universal, will deliver a sermon on peace at the morning services in the College Park Methodist church. Dr. Charles O. Jones, pastor of Grace church, will address the members of the Grace church men's bible class Sunday morning, when Miss Mattie Ellis will sing. At the Central Avenue Baptist church the Sunday school services will consist of a unique combined peace celebration and rally-day exercises.

Peace day will be observed at the First Universalist church, 16 East Harris street, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The pastor's subject will be, "Universal Peace." Mrs. Fred J. White will read President Wilson's peace proclamation. The choir will render appropriate selections.

EPISCOPAL SERVICES.

The Right Rev. Cleland Kinloch Nelson, D. D., bishop of the Diocese of Atlanta, has arranged a series of daily intercession services for next week, following Peace Day Sunday. He himself will officiate at St. Philip's Cathedral Sunday morning at 7:30, 10 and 11 o'clock.

Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock, service for choir members and church musicians will be officiated by Rev. Thomas Duck. Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock services for parochial societies and guilds will be held by Rev. R. K. Smith, Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. V. C. Lacey will officiate at service for Daughters of the King. Thursday morning at 7:30 o'clock, Rev. L. B. Richards will officiate at services for the Brotherhood of St. Andrew; Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. Thomas Duck will officiate at services for the Woman's Auxiliary; Saturday morning at 1030 o'clock, Rev. W. W. Memminger will officiate at services for Sunday school teachers and pupils.

This morning at the Martha Brown Memorial church, Rev. C. V. Weathers, the pastor, will preach on "Peace." There will be a special musical program and Miss Edith Burge will render a recitation entitled "Peace."

A special peace sermon will be preached Sunday morning at the Druid Hills Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. Henry H. Mays.

Sunday evening at the Baptist Tabernacle Dr. J. J. Hall secretary of the Georgia Peace society and president of the National Peace conference, will speak on "World Peace."

A special peace prayer will be offered at the morning services at Trinity Methodist church by Dr. Charles W. Byrd.

Dr. W. W. Memminger, rector of All Saints church, will offer special prayers for peace at his Sunday services.

At both the morning and evening services at the First Methodist church Dr. H. M. DuBose will offer peace prayers.

In every Catholic church in the city the Catholic prayer for peace, which has been read every Sunday since the war began, will be read as a part of the special services today. At St. Anthony's, Father Jackson will conduct high mass at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and will deliver a sermon on "Lessons to Be Learned by Christians on This War." Father McGoar, of the Sacred Heart church, and Father Kennedy, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, have also arranged special services.

representatives of General Villa at Aguas Calientes beginning October 5. The authorities in Mexico City were said to be hopeful that an agreement would be reached between the Carranza-Villa factions at Aguas Calientes which would assure the re-establishment of friendly relations between the two leaders.

The state department is in receipt of official advices from Monterey to the effect that, notwithstanding published reports to the contrary, good order prevails in Saltillo as well as in Monterey and vicinity. Through trains are reported to be running from Laredo to Mexico City, as well as to Tampico and points south.

"According to reports received today from the Monterey consular district, General Villa has not interfered with affairs in that section, and there appears to be a better understanding between all Mexican officials.

"A telegram received from the department's representative at Ciudad Porfirio Diaz states that the best of order prevails throughout the consular district and that railroad and telegraph communication is open to Monterey and Saltillo. The authorities are hopeful that a peaceful settlement of difficulties will be arrived at by Villa and Carranza."

Admiral Howard, commanding the naval vessels in Mexican Pacific waters, reported that the commandant at Mazatlan had been ordered by the constitutionalist government to take possession of the Occidental bank at Mazatlan. Assurances were received from Mexico City, he said, that no properties of civilians would be interfered with.

Apprehension which had been felt among the civilians that the government intended to confiscate other properties at Mazatlan, the report said, was greatly relieved by the assurances from Mexico City.

The navy department was informed that the battleship Delaware had sailed from Vera Cruz for Tuxpan to relieve the North Dakota. The North Dakota will proceed to Vera Cruz, where the twenty-fourth company of marines will be embarked for transfer to the naval station at Guantanamo. The battleship will continue north from Guantanamo to Hampton Roads for target practice and routine maneuvers.

The convention at Mexico City, according to reports received here today, yesterday elected Governor Gutierrez of San Luis Potosi, president of the convention, and General Murgia, of Coahuila, vice president. General Obregon was chosen for president general. General Carranza did not appear personally at yesterday's sessions, but was represented by proxy, the dispatches said.

The constitutionalist agency here announced tonight that Fernando Iglesias Calderon, General Villa's choice for provisional president, would not accept the office unless a convention representing all elements chose him.

Business Is Good at the *Live Wire Store

IT MAY be interesting to readers to know about the intimate details of the STEWART organization.

We have just finished the best season in the history of our business. The increase for the past six months (February to August 1) was twenty-two per cent over the same period last year. Sales during August and September, 1914, show a substantial increase over the same months last year, and, judging from the increased activity in this store for the past few days, our large force of salespeople will be taxed to their utmost this month. New, fresh stocks are on the shelves awaiting you. Everything that could be done for the better serving of the public has been carefully and systematically worked out to the last detail. The HOSIERY DEPARTMENT is showing a better and bigger line of reliable hosiery for all the family. Its location, just inside the Whitehall Street entrance, makes it convenient to everyone. Our rapidly-growing business in the ladies' shoe department has necessitated a number of changes here—a new stock room for carrying reserve stock has been built on the second floor—the seating capacity has been increased, and many other improvements have been made to improve the facilities for handling this important department of our store.

Our experiences in selling MEN'S SHOES in the past twenty years has proven to us conclusively that a man wants quick, intelligent service when he goes shopping. This we are prepared to give at all times. Our perfect variety of styles, new and up-to-the-minute, will insure perfect satisfaction.

We were the first in Atlanta to establish a Basement SHOE DEPARTMENT, carrying a complete line of Ladies', Boys' and Children's shoes. Located under the main store in a cool, clean well-ventilated room, with a broad, easy stairway leading thereto. Doing business on a strictly Cash basis the "UNDERPRICE BASEMENT" has grown in a short time far beyond our expectations.

Too much attention has always been paid by most shoe stores to grown-ups, to the neglect of the children. Due principally to the fact that they are not prepared to handle this end satisfactorily. The opening of our JUNIOR SHOE department marked a new era for this feature of the shoe business. It is the only exclusively children's shoe department of its kind in the South. You'll find here everything in good footwear for infants, little children, boys and girls. From the tiniest soft sole shoes to shoes for the large girls. Our stock is complete. All fittings guaranteed.

SALES SERVICE.

While the modern shoe manufacturer has made it easier for you to get the right shape and last for your individual needs, much depends on an intelligent selling force. In this store, under the personal supervision of Mr. Fred S. Stewart, each customer is served PROMPTLY and EFFICIENTLY by our salespeople, who specialize in their respective departments. This is why so many people say that it is a pleasure to buy their SHOES and HOSIERY at STEWART'S.

MAIL ORDER SERVICE.

The Parcel Post radiates from Atlanta to every town and village in the South. Rapid train service brings our stock to your very door. Whether you live in Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee or the Carolinas or west of the Mississippi—STEWART'S MAIL ORDER SERVICE WILL REACH YOU PROMPTLY. SEND US YOUR ORDERS.

DETAILS ARE ARRANGED FOR ANNUAL CORN SHOW

Great Exhibition Will Be Held in State Capital December 1, 2, 3 and 4

Arrangements for the annual Georgia corn show to be held at the state capitol December 1, 2, 3 and 4, under the direction of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, are making rapid progress. The details are being perfected by a committee of the chamber, of which H. G. Hastings is chairman. This committee has the co-operation of the United States government, through J. Phil Campbell, government representative for Georgia for corn club and farm demonstration work.

A special feature of this year's show will be the hog and hominy parade and ball which will be given by the Atlanta Ad Men's club, of which St. Elmo Massengale is president. The ball and parade are in the hands of a committee, of which L. D. Hicks is chairman. There is to be both a day and a night parade, the day for which has not been determined. The ball will occur Thursday night of the week. These new features will add greatly to the pleasures of the week, and will be much enjoyed by the visiting boys and their friends.

The show is the fourth in Georgia given by the Atlanta chamber of commerce, the first having been held in 1911. In fact, the 1911 show was the first corn show of state proportions ever given by a commercial body and was recognized as the best ever given in the south because it included the largest number of exhibits.

To show the results of the work, it may be stated that in 1911 there were 300 exhibits, in 1912 there were 1,800, and in 1913 there were about 3,000. The number of boys enrolled in the corn clubs of the state have shown a proportionate increase, rising from about 5,000 in 1911 to 10,000 in 1913.

During the same period, from 1911 to 1512, the Georgia crop rose from 39,374,569 bushels to 63,025,000 bushels, and the value of the crop from $37,078,931 to $57,531,000. Thus, in a period of three years, the sum of $20,000,000 has been added to the value of the Georgia corn crop, largely as a result of the corn club movement. It is interesting to note that Mr. Campbell has said the Georgia corn shows have done more than any other one thing to stimulate the corn club movement in the state.

Each of the 3,000 exhibits in last year's show represented an acre of corn tilled by a Georgia boy, who was a member of his local corn club. Each exhibit was sent to Atlanta by boys who had completed the year's work according to the rules laid down by the United States government, and had made exhibits in their county contests. In this way Atlanta got the best of the boys, each of whom had distinguished himself by achievement at home. The average yield per acre represented by last year's exhibits was nearly sixty bushels. There were 76 boys whose record exceeded 100 bushels, and one boy who made 187 bushels. The highest record ever made in the state was made in 1911 by Ben Leath, of Walker county, who produced 214 bushels of corn on one acre of land.

During the last two years the efforts of the corn club agents in the state have been directed more to increasing the proportion of boys who "come through" than to increasing the total enrollment. This is because the management of the clubs does not wish to encourage any boy to put his hand to the plow and then turn back. Final perseverance and character-making are as much objects as the growing of corn.

While Georgia leads the south in corn club work, it is interesting of note that the effect of the movement on the entire south has been marvelous. The corn crop of seven states, including the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, has increased in four years from 228,000,000 to 353,000,000 bushels, and the product per acre from 14.3 to 18.4 bushels. The value of the crop in those seven states in the same period of time has increased from $195,284,225 to $302,408,000. This is to say that as a result of the corn club movement the production of the southeastern states, which is Atlanta's commercial territory, has shown an increase within the sapce of four years of about $107,000,000.

PHOTOPLAYS LIBRARY HAS CHANGED HANDS

The Blinkhorn Photoplays corporation has taken over the Anima Photoplay library, which has offices in the Hurt building. The purchasing company was organized by Albert Blinkhorn, and, in addition to Atlanta, has offices in New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Philadelphia and Dallas. The Blinkhorn company makes a specialty of educational subjects, and films suitable for presentation in churches of all denominations.

CARPENTERS WORK FREE ON NEW BAPTIST CHURCH

Working ten men a day, the Carpenters' union of Atlanta will begin Monday the erection of the Fortified Hills Baptist church. It is stated that the work will be done free of charge, the members of the church giving the carpenters dinners and paying their car fare while they are engaged in the work.

ROTARIANS WILL HEAR DR. WILMER ON PEACE

Rotarians of Atlanta will attend the morning services at St. Lukes' Episcopal church in a body, by special invitation to hear the sermon on peace to be delivered by Dr. C. B. Wilmer.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

That,s Right, Ladies, It's a FINE Idea!

Yesterday's paper carried the story of a "Home Products Luncheon" that the women folks are planning to give some time soon.

Now that's talking. Talking right!

Eighty clubs, they say, in Atlanta. These eighty are federated into one big whole. Something like eight thousand women belong to this Federation.

Under wise and sane and commonsensible leadership, these eight thousand are planning to have a huge "Home Products Luncheon."

Ladies, we felicitate you upon your wisdom.

There's much more than a passing fad here. There's social economics of the soundest sort. When the women come to understand that the use of Home Products is vital to the success of Home Enterprise, they will be in position to make a tremendous contribution to the Common Good.

But if the movement should end where it starts---as a big spectacular thing---then but little good will result.

The main thing for the eight thousand to do is make a practical everyday demonstration of the idea in their everyday buying and their everyday marketing.

If you would do this, ladies, then indeed ATLANTA and GEORGIA would feel the splendid and far-reaching effects.

Here's what we mean:

Every article hereon described is a Home Product.

Why should you, whenever you are needing anything in these lines, prefer to buy the product of factories that are located far away from home?

Our appeal is to your good judgment as well as to your loyalty.

Our goods stand up with the very best.

They have quality, merit, distinction. They are the kind of goods that are GOOD ANYWHERE.

COUNTY WILL REPAVE PONCE DE LEON AVENUE

Work Will Be Finished by November 9, County Board Officials Say

Residents on Peachtree street and Ponce de Leon avenue will be delighted at the action of the public works committee of the board of county commissioners Saturday. They then decided that the county would repave and repair Ponce de Leon avenue from Peachtree street to Ponce de Leon springs with bitulithic pavement, and that repairs would be made on Peachtree street whenever needed.

This work, which, state members of the public works committee, the city "passed up" because of financial stringency, will be finished by the county before November 9, when the American Good Roads congress meets in Atlanta.

In addition to the work to be done on these important residence streets, the county is getting its whole force of convicts into tip-top working shape, and is in other ways preparing for a fine appearance in the public works department. The hundreds of delegates to the good roads congress will be taken on tour of inspection over Fulton county, and the commissioners will be ready to show them Fulton at her best.

TUESDAY IS DONATION DAY AT HOME FOR OLD WOMEN

Those in Charge Urge Public to Pay Visit to Institution That Day

The women in charge of the Home for Old Women announce that their monthly donation day occurs on Tuesday, and on that day a committee will spend the day at the home to receive callers and donations off the benefit of the old ladies who are inmates of the home.

The committee consists of Mrs. J. J. Lofoe and Mrs. Edward P. Wood, and they are looking forward to the usual hearty response on the part of the charitably inclined people of the city. There are many persons who contribute to these calls on every monthly donation day and both by their gifts and by their presence at the home on those days add a great deal of cheer and pleasure to the lives of those who are beneficiaries of the county.

The home is at 61 West End avenue, and may be reached by the Walker street car, which passes the door. Any one who wishes to give something in the form of clothing, household supplies or money may send it to the home or to either member of the committee. If preferred the committee or the matron at the home will send for anything which may be offered. However, the committee begs especially requests that the public visit the home on that day and see it for themselves. Every one will be heartily welcomed and donations of any kind will be thankfully received.

REVIVAL STARTS TODAY AT TRINITY METHODIST

Trinity Methodist church will begin its revival this morning and services will be held every day during the week at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. The revival will be conducted by Dr. Charles W. Byrd, formerly pastor of the First Methodist church, and now of Greensboro, N. C. Dr. Byrd is an able and impressive preacher and never fails to stir up true religious fervor wherever he preaches.

The services will be made interesting by the singing of a chorus of forty voices.

Dr. Luke G. Johnson, pastor of the church, says he believes Trinity church will experience one of the greatest religious revivals in its history.

"We think the time is now ripe for a great religious revival," says Dr. Johnson, "and we extend a cordial invitation to the Christian people of Atlanta to come out and enjoy our religious feast and help us to build up the kingdom of Christ."

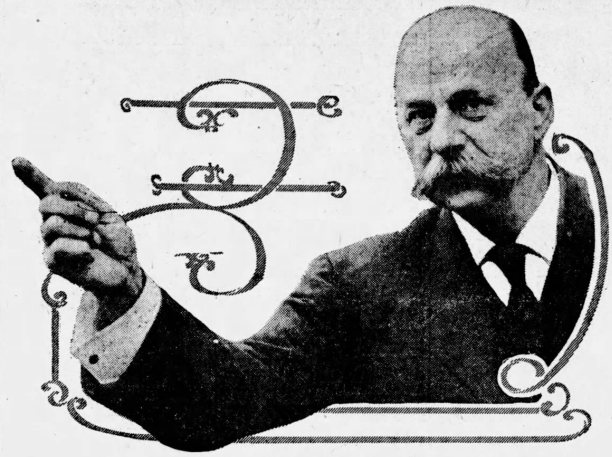
NEW JUDGE WILL THROW IN SMILE WITH EVERY FINE IN POLICE COURT



GEORGE E. JOHNSTON, THE NEXT JUDGE OF RECORDER'S COURT.

George Johnson Just Has to Smile, Friends Say, but That Smile Will Not Make Him Unduly Moderate

George E. Johnson, Atlanta's new recorder-elect, has a disposition like the sunshine and his face is wreathed in a perpetual smile, but if anybody for that reason imagines that the wrongdoers are going to find it easy in his court they are badly mistaken.

Yesterday a Journal man asked him to say what sort of a recorder he is going to be.

"I am going to enforce the law," said Mr. Johnson, right off the bat.

"The willful violators of the law will get from me the severest punishment. I am going to strive to the best of my ability to uphold Atlanta's reputation as a clean, moral, law-abiding city.

"However, I don't mean I am going to be a tyrant. Each and every case that comes before me will be given plenty of time to be sifted. I am going carefully into the merits of them all.

"Where I find that a defendant has violated the law unintentionally, then he or she will be give a light sentence

"But the willful law breakers are not going to find the recorder's court an easy place.

"Young men—boys from 17 to 21 and around that age—who come before me for their first offense are not going to be sent to the stockade. That would do them and do society more harm than good, because it would throw them in contact with a set of hardened criminals, black and white. These first offenders I will detain in cells at police station until they serve out their sentences or until their relatives or friends pay their fines. Then I will ask them to promise me they will behave and make good citizens, and I am confident most of them will, if treated in this way, won't come back to court any more. If they do, it will go hard with them next time."

LOVES A JOKE.

George Johnson loves a joke, loves to help people in trouble, and loves politics.

He has been a citizen of Atlanta more than forty years and nearly half of this time has been a member of the board of police commissioners, probably serving longer on the board than any other commissioner since the board was created.

Elected to the board in 1894, he has served continuously up to the present time with only a short interruption. He has seen factions come and go, seen police chiefs elected and ousted, seen change in the personnel of almost the entire police department down to the last supernumerary.

And he can tell stories of police board politics that will make you split your sides with laughter. For the politics of the board, where others have taken it seriously, sometimes letting personal rancor get the better of them, has always been a source of fun to George Johnson.

In March of 1895, an election for chairman of the board fell due, and George Johnson was the board's choice after 596 ballots.

The account of that long and gruelling deadlock is one of the richest in Mr. Johnson's fund of stories, and to hear him tell it is a treat.

In those days there was no civil service in the police department and every man on the force, from the chief down to the negro patrol wagon driver, was elected every two years. That meant that the faction in control of the board at election time could present Atlanta with an entirely new police force, if it felt so disposed. The election of Mr. Johnson as chairman of the board, while it was a victory for the Brotherton faction, resulted in practically no change so far as the force was concerned, thereby demonstrating that Mr. Johnson was not seeking power or patronage at the expense of the department's efficiency, but was simply in the game for the zest and the fun of it.

The board in that deadlock sat from 10 o'clock one morning until 6 o'clock the next, balloting round after round with no election, stopping only to have their meals served and taking a brief recess now and then to stretch their legs.

RECALLS OLD ROWS.

"Once I was in Columbus attending a meeting of the grand council of the Red Men of Georgia," Mr. Johnson relates. "It was during the administration of the late Mayor Mims. One of the police board elections was coming up. I got a telegram telling me to come back at once—that Mayor Mims had given a 'high tea' at his house to members of the police board. I knew what that meant, and I caught the next train for Atlanta.

"I found just what I expected. The 'high tea,' as we used to call those little meetings with Mayor Mims, had arranged a 'slate' for the officers of the police force, such as chief, captains, etc. We didn't worry much about the patrolmen. The officers were the ones we scrapped over, except when nobody was bothered at all—as in the case when I was elected chairman.

"Well we went to the meeting. Captain English, chairman of the board, sat at the head of the table. Mayor Mims sat opposite him at the other end of the table. I sat right next to Mayor Mims. We got through with the patrolmen in pretty short order, and then came the tug-of-war for the officers. I turned in my chair to face Mayor Mims and began an earnest conversation with him. Captain English, smelling a mouse, rapped with his gavel and said: 'Let us have order down at that end of the table, gentlemen.' I kept right on talking with Mayor Mims. He had the slate written down on a piece of paper. A certain man—we'll call him Jones, which was not his name—was slated for chief of detectives. We'll call the then chief of detectives by the name of Smith, which is also fictitious.

"I said to Mayor Mims, leaning over close to him: 'Major, surely you are not going to vote to oust Smith, a man who has gone through the fire of factional attacks and come out unscathed, a man who stood by you with the loyalty of a brother? I cannot believe you will, major.'

"The major looked me straight in the eye and said, 'George, was Smith loyal to me, really?'

"'As loyal as a brother, major,' says I, which was the truth.

"'Then, upon my word, I shall not vote against him,' exclaimed the major, bringing his fist down on the table. And he didn't.

"And on five other counts I knocked the slate higher than a kite, just by that appeal to Major Mims. The other crowd reared and snorted, but there really was no reason why the slate should be put through, except factional reasons, and when I put it up to Major Mims that efficiency and loyalty should not be punished he was bound to agree with me. I had to laugh at the other fellows. I laugh now when I think of it. They would have been delighted to throw me out of the window, I reckon, while it was going on, but next day we were as good friends as ever. I've sparred for points with the best of them, but it was all for the fun of the thing, and I never let it influence my personal feelings."

ANOTHER FUNNY ONE.

Mr. Johnson tells another mighty funny story of how the opposing faction "put one over" when he proposed an increase in the membership of the police board. It runs as follows:

"In those days the board consisted of six members, which being an even number permitted a tie; and nearly every time there was a tug-of-war the board would deadlock, three and three.

"So I conceived the idea of increasing the membership to seven, so as to make a tie impossible, and got a friend in council to pass a charter amendment having it done.

"Then bless your life the other crowd had one of their men elected to the new place and they kept us down for three long years!

"Captain Brotherton said to me: 'George, you thought you were doing something smart, but you have certainly played b.l.'"

And Mr. Johnson throws back his head and roars with laughter at the recollection.

Here's one he tells about an essay writing contest among the policemen:

"I offered a fine gold watch fob as a prize to the policeman writing the best essay on the subject of what constitutes a good police officer. It took like smoke. There must have been 150 essays—an enormous stack of them. They ranged all the way from lengthy discussions of the subject in serious vein, down to funny jokes. The funniest was by a wag of an Irishman on the force. He wrote as follows:

KIND TO THE POOR.

Mr. Johnson for twenty-six years was in the candy manufacturing business. Every Christmas he would extend a blanket invitation to all the poor children in the city to come to his place and get a Santa Claus bag of candy. They would come by the hundreds, and no matter how many there were, nor how many children from the same family, each and all went away supplied with plenty and as happy as larks.

Some fifteen years ago there came a terrific blizzard in Atlanta. The thermometer dropped away below zero and the city was buried in snow. George Johnson filled three police patrol wagons with coal, blankets and food, and went all over the city to the homes of poor families, working fifteen hours in the snow and bitter cold without a stop.

These instances serve to illustrate his love of helping people who are in trouble. Kindness and charity are cardinal traits of his character, and are linked with a radiantly jovial personality.

Mr. Johnson is a member of two orders—the Independent Order of Red Men and the Travelers' Protective association.

For twenty-eight years he has been state treasurer of the Red Men of Georgia, under the title of grand keeper of wampum and seal. He served a term also as president of the Georgia T. P. A.

Mr. Johnson was born in Richmond, Va., in 1869 and came to Atlanta in 1866, at the age of seven years. In 1886 he married Miss Eleanor Morgan, of this city, a daughter of the late D. Morgan. Their home is at 302 Luckie street, and they have three children, Mrs. A. E. Everett, Mrs. C. H. Shirley and E. M. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson's friends already are being to drop "George," which they have affectionately called him, and are addressing him as "Judge."

He doesn't take to it especially. He would rather they'd continue the same old name—until he mounts the recorder's bench, at least.

OCTOBER BUDGET GOES TO COUNCIL MONDAY

Sheet Carries Special Appropriation of $11,812 for School Department

The city's October budget, which includes a special appropriation of $11,812 to employ additional teachers in the public schools, will be submitted to council at Monday afternoon's session.

Since the finance committee, despite the fight of Mayor Woodward and Chairman Humphrey, refused to eliminate from the budget unspent appropriations for street improvements, no fight is expected on the sheet through councilmen whose wards would have been affected had the advice of the chairman and the mayor been followed.

Mayor Woodward has frequently expressed his displeasure at the fact that the committee in making the sheet balance anticipated revenue from old marshal's tax deeds, and the sheet's only danger is said to lie in an executive veto. Mayor Woodward, however, has refused to discuss his attitude toward the sheet, since the committee agreed to submit it to council.

The appropriation of $11,812 to the school department will not mean the elimination of double sessions, but will provide a teacher for each session.

TRIBE OF BEN HUR TO HEAR DR. MANSELL

Supreme Lecturer Will Deliver Address Here Next Tuesday Evening

Dr. Walter Mansell, of Washington, Pa., and a number of prominent Atlantians, will address a meeting of Dixie Court No. 2 tribe of Ben Hur, at the hall of the Woodmen of the World, next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Mansell, who is pastor of the First Christian church at Washington, is supreme lecturer of the Tribe of Ben Hur and is making a trip through the south visiting the lodges in different cities.

The public is invited to hear his lecture Tuesday and members of the tribe are making an effort to secure a large attendance.

Mayor Woodward will preside at the meeting and the speakers will include George E. Johnson, recently elected recorder, and City Attorney James L. Mayson.

The tribe of Ben Hur is one of the few secret orders to full membership in which ladies are admitted, and an especially large number of ladies are expected to be present at Tuesday's lecture.

JOHNSON WILL HAVE OPPOSITION IN DEC.

George E. Johnson, who was nominated for city recorder in the second primary held last Thursday, is to have opposition in the regular election in December. H. C. Greenlee, attorney, announced Saturday afternoon that it was his purpose to be a candidate for this office in the regular election.

In his announcement Mr. Greenlee says:

"I believe the citizens of Atlanta are entitled to have the questions of law which constantly arise in this court tried by one trained in the law and not by one skilled in the culture of confectionery. The rights of our citizens cannot be respected and upheld, nor the dignity of the court maintained, unless a trained lawyer presides over this most important judicature."

J. M. FORD GOES WITH BAUKNIGHT FURNITURE CO.

JOE M. FORD

New Salesmanager One of Best Known Furniture Men in Atlanta

One of the most interesting announcements in retail circles made recently is that Joseph M. Ford has accepted a position as salesmanager of the Bauknight Furniture company.

This announcement is of especial interest to furniture buyers of Atlanta and surrounding territory, for Mr. Ford is widely and favorably known having been identified with the retail furniture trade for a number of years. His connection has always given prestige to any concern that has been fortunate enough to secure his service. He is thoroughly familiar with his line of work. His congenial disposition coupled with his high ideals of fair and honest treatment of customers makes him unusually popular with countless friends.

Mr. Ford invites his friends to visit him at the big Bauknight store on Whitehall street, where he is prepared to show them a splendid display of high grade and up-to-date furniture.

W. L. VENABLE IS INJURED BY DOCTOR'S AUTOMOBILE

Charges of Reckless Driving Are Docketed Against Dr. Allen H. Bunce

W. L. Venable, an Atlanta lawyer who lives at 467 Spring street, last night at Peachtree and Harris streets was knocked down and run over by an automobile driven by Dr. Allen H. Bunce, an Atlanta physician.

The accident rendered him unconscious and he was rushed to Davis-Fischer sanitarium in the automobile of Frank Inman, who was passing at the time. At a late hour last night, though he was still unconscious, the physicians at the sanitarium said they expected him to live.

Dr. Bunce, who went voluntarily to police station, said he was driving north on Peachtree street very slowly on account of the slippery pavement, and just as he crossed Harris street Mr. Venable stepped off the right hand curb directly in front of him. He said he threw on his brakes but could not stop the car in time to save an accident.

The police gave Dr. Bunce a copy of charges of reckless driving and set Monday, October 12 as the date for hearing his case.

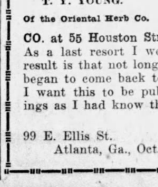
The Best Herb Remedies in the World. They Restored My Health, and I Want the Public to Know the Truth



T. Y. YOUNG.
Of the Oriental Herb Co.

The most unfortunate thing for a human being is to suffer with diseases and weaknesses. I have been suffering with female trouble for a long time. Often I had pains in my back and sometimes it pained me in my stomach and bladder. I had rheumatism in my shoulders and my feet, and felt nervous. I also had constipation. For several years I was in a sickly condition. I tried many doctors and medicines, but none of them did me any good. Not very long ago a friend told me about THE ORIENTAL HERB CO. at 55 Houston Street, and their Chinese Herbal Remedies. As a last resort I went and tried these medicines and the result is that not long after I began to take them my health began to come back to me and now I feel like a new being. I want this to be published and let those who have sufferings as I had know that there is a way to get well.

Very truly yours,

SUIT AGAINST JUDGE HILL THROWN OUT OF COURT

Jurist Was Sued for $2,500 for Failure to Grant Habeas Corpus Writ

In detailed and elaborate opinion handed down Saturday, Judge H. M. Reid, of the city court, dismissed on demurrer the case brought by R. H. Jones for $2,500 damages against Judge Benjamin H. Hill, of the superior court. Costs were taxed on the plaintiff.

Jones, a lumber man with offices in the Fourth National bank building, brought suit against Judge Hill for $2,500 under section 4860 of the Georgia code, which provides that when any person shall apply for a writ of habeas corpus to any judge whose duty is to grant the writ, and the same is refused, the judge so refusing to grant the writ shall forfeit the party aggrieved the sum of $2,500, to be recovered in any court of law in the state having jurisdiction over same."

Jones alleged that, while he was being held at police barracks in Atlanta, he applied at 2 o'clock Christmas morning, 1913, through his attorney, Charles A. Graham, to Judge Hill for a writ of habeas corpus releasing him from confinement.

Judge Hill refused the writ and the suit followed.

In the opinion that threw the suit out of court on demurrer, Judge Reid said Judge Hill had acted in his judicial capacity in refusing the writ after examining Jones' petition; that the imprisonment of Jones was not shown to be illegal on the face of the writ; that Benjamin H. Hill, as a judge, considered the petition and did not issue the writ because the imprisonment complained of did not appear illegal.

"It is a settled principle," stated Judge Reid, "that a judge is not to be questioned in a civil suit for doing, or neglecting or failing to do, a particular official act in the exercise of judicial power."

It was immaterial, said Judge Reid, whether or not the judgment was correct or erroneous, and immaterial whether or not another judge, as alleged in the petition, later decided differently from Judge Hill.

"Judges differ as well as doctors," said the opinion, "and one is not bound by the judgment of the other in this sort of question unless rendered in a court of review."

The plaintiff, in an amendment to his suit, stated that Judge Hill voluntarily, willfully and wrongfully refused to grant the writ, although he knew this not to be a fact, as stated above. The plaintiff further alleged that, it being Christmas day (2 o'clock in the morning), Judge Hill was on "vacation," and therefore did not give the petition his consideration in a judicial capacity. Judge Reid set this aside by holding that, in regard to a habeas corpus writ, there was no such thing as "vacation" for a judge. He can be called at any time, day or night, to pass upon the merits of the habeas corpus petition.

"The law means," said the opinion, "because of the sacredness of personal liberty, under severe penalty, to compel him (the judge) to act, but when he does act, exercising the judgment and discretion of the power legally vested in him, the law will not punish him, even if his judgment be erroneous." Which, said the court, was not erroneous in this case.

This decision is looked upon by Georgia lawyers as very important, interesting, as it does, the perplexing section 4860 of the Georgia code, which imposes $2,500 penalty for judges who fail to grant writs of habeas corpus.

In the trial before Judge Reid, Judge Hill was represented by Attorneys Reuben R. Arnold and Marion Smith; the plaintiff, Jones, was represented by Attorney J. V. Poole.

BROWN & ALLEN TO OPEN THEIR NEW STORE SOON

Firm Will Have One of South's Most Magnificent Drug Stores

Within a few days the magnificent new drug store of Brown & Allen at the corner of Whitehall and Alabama streets diagonally across the corner from the old store will be formally opened to the public.

The expectations of those who have caught brief glimpses of the interior will be more than fulfilled. It is one of the finest stores in the whole country. The woodwork is solid mahogany and the show cases are heavy plated glass. The soda fountain is not only the largest in Atlanta but one of the largest in the country and is absolutely sanitary throughout. The same pure and delicious drinks which made the old store famous will be served at the new store, purer and better than before and with improved service made possible by the new and more modern fount.

The lighting will be a brilliant decorative dream of electricity, with hidden lights cunningly concealed in the woodwork, and dazzling chandeliers flooding the store with light.

The Brown & Allen store was founded 23 years ago and has had a wonderfully successful career. The old store was the meeting place of thousands of people every day. The soda fountain dispensed drinks by the million and the drug and prescription departments enjoyed a huge patronage. In spite of the throngs almost constantly in the place it was unvaryingly quiet and refined, and therefore was especially in favor with the ladies.

E. C. Brown, the proprietor, promises that the new store not only will measure up in every particular to the high standard of excellence which has been maintained in the past, but will make a stronger bid for popularity by reason of its increased and improved facilities for better service.

Diseased Blood Calls for Help

Nature's Willing Workers are Always at Your Service.

If it is eczema, pimples, boils or worse—your safeguard is S. S. S., the famous blood purifier. It is always lined up to attack diseased blood. And it always does the work. It does the work after disappointment, after alleged specialists, mercury, iodides, strychnine, arsenic and other destructive drugs that have reaped a harvest of mistakes and left a host of invalids guessing as to what is to come. S. S. S. is not such a drug as the cuplitty or ignorance of man would be able to produce. It is Nature's wonderful contribution to our necessities. It is wonderful because it can not be imitated; can not be made any other way than to assemble Nature's products and produce what a host of men know as S. S. S., the world's greatest medicine. There are people everywhere that had as old sore or ulcer that defied all the salves known. And yet S. S. S. taken into the blood just naturally put into the old sore the elements that made new tissue, new flesh, and covered it with a new coating of healthy skin. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today of any druggest and be on the way to perfect blood health. But beware of substitutes. For special advice consult the medical department. The Swift Specific Co., 55 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. ## POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Roanoke, Va., Fair

DURING the past week I had the pleasure of judging the poultry at the annual fair held at Roanoke, Va. It was a real pleasure to attend a fair of this kind and one that on a change there is in conditions in that section and the conditions found in this section. Everybody and everything in that section seems to be prosperous. Great crowds attended the fair, and every one seemed to have plenty of money. The poultry department had at least one-third more fowls than last year, there being over 1,800 fowls at this county fair.

The live stock displays of all kinds were filled to the limit, and especially were the cattle, hogs and horse departments interesting and attractive. The agricultural displays were the best that have ever been exhibited at this fair, and such a display of fruit as has never been seen before in this territory.

In this section of country the farmers depend on live stock, grain and hay for their income, and especially is the poultry and eggs looked after and one of the leading features of the farm. Hundreds of carloads of the very best beef cattle are being shipped from this section and the farmers are getting 9 and 10 cents per pound for their cattle. They are getting from $1.20 to $1.40 for their wheat, and poultry and eggs are in great demand and are shipped by the carload from many small towns every day. The high price of all kinds of food products has certainly played in the hands of the Virginia farmers. They are happy and prosperous, and these many things go to prove that the farmer who diversifies on raising something to eat will always be out of debt and be absolutely independent every year.

Two bales of cotton were exhibited in two of the leading banks, bought through the work outlined by The Atlanta Journal. They were such a curiosity that a great crowd was gathered around this cotton all during the day, as most people in this section had never seen any cotton before.

This was the fourteenth annual fair at Roanoke, and was the best and most prosperous that had ever been conducted. It is usually considered a great education to the farmers of this section to conduct these annual fairs, and many things of interest (especially to the man from the cotton belt) were very noticeable, and show conclusively that the people in the cotton growing states must sooner or later pay more attention to diversified crops and raise something to eat instead of depending absolutely on the cotton crop for our main source of income. We have had a manopoly in the growing of cotton, have been told repeatedly to diversify, but the opportunity was so great and so easy for money making that it has been hard for the farmers to break loose from exclusive cotton growing. But, now as the time has come when it must be done the sooner we get busy and diversify our interests that much quicker will we become independent and be in shape to take care of ourselves in time of war or peace. The farmer who grows everything that he consumes at home and has something to eat to sell is the only one who can be absolutely independent, and the only way possible by which the farmers of the south can be saved now will be for the United States government to tax next year's crop at least 10 cents per pound. When this is done the present crop will bring as much as this and next year's crop combined, and the expense of raising next year's crop will be saved and the land planted to something to eat instead of to cotton. This method was practiced during the Civil war and must come again. No other one thing can save our farmers. They will not on their own account cut down the acreage or production and congress must force them to do so. In the end they will be far better off and can realize immediately for the crop now produced more actual cash money than two crops will bring unless this is done.

All eastern and western states are simply coining the money now because they have something the people want. Every fair that has been conducted in either of these states has been prosperous and well attended, as all the farmers have money to spend. Diversification is the keynote in progress. And I hope they will do much toward stimulating our southern farmers to diversify and add live stock and grains of all kinds to our present farming operations, and put ourselves in the independent position the eastern and western farmers are now enjoying.

Yours very truly,

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION.

Will you kindly advise me what to do for my cow? Her hind legs are swelled down near her feet and she can hardly raise her feet off of the ground. Her legs seem to be stiff. She eats well enough, seems all right, except her legs. Her calf in just nine days old.

Any information you can give me will be appreciated.

Mrs. H. B. K.

ANSWER.

It would be best for you to have a veterinary surgeon see your cow, if she has been in the condition you mention very long. It is possible that she has been bitten by a snake. On the other hand she may be affected with some kind of disease, but I do not think this is the cause of the trouble.

It would be good idea to bathe her legs in warm salt water twice a day, or you could use some chloro-naphtholeum or other disinfectant, one part to fifty parts water, instead of the salt water. If it is nothing serious this disinfectant will relieve the trouble and cause the swelling to disappear.

Do not feed any cotton seed meal until the calf is two or three weeks old.

QUESTION.

Lake City, Fla.

I have a mule that has a sore between his knee and his ankle, and it is just about the size of two silver dollars. It has been there for about five months. The sore is not proud flesh in it. All the proud flesh strikes out about an inch high. I have done everything I know of trying to kill it and heal it up, but have not succeeded yet, and would be glad for you to give me a prescription.

J. M. C.

ANSWER.

If you will take the sore on the mule's leg twice a day In a solution of one part chlo-naptholeum to twenty-five parts water, it will heal and take the proud flesh out of the sore, and in less than two weeks it should be perfectly be well. Chlo lis a coal tar preparation and is one of the best things known as an antiseptic for old sores, cuts, wounds and things of such nature. It can be had of any drug store and is invaluable to keep on every farm.

QUESTION.

Hoke Bluff, Ala.

Having read your different articles on poultry, I would like to ask your advice in this case. I have some very fine Rhode Island Reds, and have a rooster that seems like he gets scared by almost anything, anyway he can't see where he is going. It seems hearty enough, but can't pick up corn or anything on the ground. His left eye, the long lid drops down and there is always little blubbers of water there. Have had one to die the same way, also a few hens have the same, but don't seem so bad as the rooster.

These are the symptoms and If you can tell me the trouble, and give a cure would greatly appreciate it.

D. M. R.

ANSWER.

The rooster has some nervous trouble and unless he is a very fine one is not worth trying to cure. It is not best to use a bird to breed from that has ever had any trouble of this kind. Therefore, it fofght be best to kill and burn him, unless he recovers very soon. Give him a tablespoon of raw linseed oil mixed with corn meal every other day for three different times, and if this does not relieve him nothing is likely to do him.

Very often a chicken will get sick just the same as people do, and if some ordinary treatment does not cure them they are not worth bothering with. I never like to use a bird to breed from that has ever had any serious trouble. They are too plentiful to use anything but something good.

QUESTION.

Newnan, Ga.—Will you be so kind as to give me full information as to the right method of inoculating of alfalfa? I want to plant just one acre, and I want to get full information as to same. Also give me address of people who handle the very best seed. Thanking you in advance for the information, I am.

J. E. K.

ANSWER.

I have had a great many articles going into full details on the culture of alfalfa in The Journal, and am sorry that you have not kept these.

Any ground that has been in peas this year is ready for alfalfa. The peas should be cut close, coating of ground lime rock, from two to five tons per acre scattered broadcast and thoroughly worked in the soil with a cutaway harrow. Then from 500 to 1,000 pounds of acid phosphate should be broadcast and worked in the soil the same way. One week later you can sow the alfalfa seed. Twenty to thirty pounds per acre seed from either of the seed dealers advertising in The Journal. They carry a good quality of alfalfa seed and can be had of The Inoculin or bacteria can be had of Southern Inoculin company, Box 541, Atlanta. This ad also appears in The Journal.

Excellent Progress Made in Rehabilitation of Stock Exchange – Real Need of Call Loan Market Being More Strongly Emphasized – Foreign Trade Problems Are Most Onerous, but Are Being Cleared Up – Cotton Disasters Will Doubtless Be Averted

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—In last week's review we called attention to the fact that the reopening of the New York stock exchange, and in fact, of every other important exchange throughout the country, could not be contingent upon the absolute cessation of hostilities in Europe;" that necessity will compel the reopening of the exchanges on some basis before many weeks have passed. This was not an idle prediction, for it was based on a record of circumstances that could lead to no other conclusion.

The progress that has been made in New York towards a resumption of stock trading is extremely gratifying, and has exceeded the expectations of many people who were heretofore inclined to take a pessimistic view of the situation. The first step in the reopening on a plan to be agreed upon permit of trading on unlisted stocks at lower prices than those of July 30, subject in each instance to the approval of a committee appointed for that purpose. This had already been done for bonds, and the success which has attended these efforts has led to a similar process being effected for the regularly listed stocks as well. This is, of course, a long way from a free market, but it is a long step in the right direction, and is a wise preliminary to the full resumption of unrestricted trading. Close supervision has of necessity been made of every transaction, in which there was a price concession, by committees appointed for the purpose. The work has progressed smoothly, without causing disturbance or collateral behind bank loans or securities, and all forth any influential efforts toward security liquidation as far as has been made known by the authorities. The removal of the embargo on general trading in listed stocks was held to be practical because of the stability of market conditions, and logical because of the successful efforts made in other lines. It is probable that the committee of five, with the clearing house committee, will continue the oversight of transactions at concessions that they have maintained over purchases and sales at fixed prices. They will scrutinize orders which are below the former market level and require firms doing business through the stock exchange to present daily records of business done. In this way quotations may be controlled until such time as the international financial markets warrant a broad business in securities without restriction.

The co-operation of the entire business community in every part of the United States, from the smallest hamlet to the largest city, has a keen interest in the resumption of trading in securities, for so long as the market for stocks and bonds are restrained, loans cannot be made on them and loans already made thereon are not liquid. The fact stands in the way of a free flow of credit, and is a serious disadvantage to all classes of borrowers, and is not confined to borrowers on stocks only. There is now no call-money market, and there can be no call loans on stocks without a market in which stocks can be liquidated if need be. Under the banking custom of this country the call-loan market has been an important element in the banking machinery, and the sudden stoppage of that part of the machinery has necessarily had effect upon the whole system, felt more in some parts of it than in others, but influencing it all. The effort to resume trading in stocks and bonds, therefore, is by no means Wall street's affair alone. It is regrettable that we have not had a call-money market based on commercial collateral instead of on corporation securities, but in the absence of that the stoppage of call loans on stock exchange collateral has resulted in the withholding from the market of funds whose employment would in part have released other funds for commerical uses. In due time under the operation of the Federal Reserve bank system there should be established a market for call loans secured by bills, which for the investment of bank funds would be preferable to call loans on securities.

FOREIGN TRADE PROBLEMS ARE GREAT PROBLEM.

The darkest cloud overhanging the financial horizon has, of course, been the foreign exchange difficulty, and even with the assurance of the success of the $100,000,000 gold pool, foreign exchange rates have refused to recede to anything like a normal basis. It is quite probable that business conditions in the United States will not assume normal conditions until the early establishment of better conditions in the export trade. Leading bankers are of the opinion that the high exchange rates are due to developments tending towards a disadvantageous balance of business and financial conditions in Great Britain, the effect of which on the United States must ultimately prove helpful in an important degree. A definite date has been fixed for the termination of the British moratorium, and to this fact is chiefly attributed the rise in exchange, from the sharp break which occurred at the time when the New York City financing was arranged. There are a great many people on this side having obligations to meet in London who took advantage of the moratorium until a date for this termination was fixed, but who have since been endeavoring to obtain cover for their business in the United Kingdom. The moratorium, so far as it relates to debts in retail trade, and bills of exchange other than checks and bills on demand, will be terminated on October 4, and the general moratorium will end on November 4. It is with the earlier date that Americans having obligations to meet abroad are chiefly concerned. The difficulty in obtaining a supply of exchange, to meet the demand for the covering of obligations abroad before the termination of the moratorium, has been rendered more troublesome as grain exports have fallen off recently and shipments of other kinds have not so far attained very large proportions. The main consideration in the situation, however, is the constructive development which has caused the rise in exchange, that has worried so many people.

Some encouraging cotton reports have come from the cotton states, indicating that the fear of disaster is gradually becoming minimized, due to the prompt action on the banking and financial and commercial organizations in the first immediate territory, as well as to the good effect of the "buy-a-bale" movement, which had its conception in Atlanta, but which has spread to every part of the country and has been almost universally indorsed. It is also reported that cotton is beginning to move abroad steadily from the southern ports, the returns from the New York City The movement is very small as yet, but reports from that region of the country indicate that the English demand is beginning to reassert itself, and there is more than a distinct hope that within thirty days conditions in the south will be partially relieved by an appreciable demand for cotton from these English mills, which, it is understood, are getting ready to buy more largely. It is believed also that as soon as commercial paper conditions improve a little through the loosening up of bank reserves there will be much larger purchases by American mills, which have been deterred from showing much activity because of the unwillingness of banks in various parts of the country to buy their paper freely. Confined in many cases to their local banks, which (if national) have been unable to make any loan greater in amount than 10 per cent of capital and surplus, the mills have not found it easy to get the funds they had to have, even at prevailing prices, to buy cotton with. But there are indications of an improved condition, and it is thought that current money hoarding by banks is likely to be reduced in the near future. If cotton can be brought somewhat more actively into the market, and especially if the English send other foreign buyers there, a more brisker, it will help conditions very greatly, according to the statements now made by conservative men from the cotton states.

In this connection, the views of a prominent London merchant recently expressed, may be of interest. He said:

"New York City appears to be more upset over the turn of events than London. There is more war news in a single issue of an American newspaper than can be seen in a month in London, where the censorship so limits the news that about one-quarter of a column per day is sufficient to recount it. The cotton industry is more upset abroad than any other, but the present state of this business is between two-thirds and three-quarters normal and I look for a revival. There is but little falling off in other manufacturing industries there. English surplus capital must hereafter more than ever seek employment in the United States, where the future seems safe and sound. Large amounts of money are accumulating in England awaiting opportunity for investment. A part of this will be consumed by war loan obligations, but the amount required for this purpose will be but a fraction of that available."

MAY SHIP AMERICAN COPPER TO NETHERLANDS

Arrangements Now Under Way With Holland and British Governments

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—On behalf of the copper producing interests of Montana, Senator Myers today urged state department officials to get an arrangement with Great Britain and Holland for American copper to be shipped and sold to the Netherlands government, which would give a guarantee against its re-export to belligerent nations. Such an arrangement was successfully concluded as to American foodstuffs.

Officials told the senator that negotiations with Great Britain were progressing satisfactory and with a promise of early conclusion.

WATER WAYS IMPROVEM'T WORK WILL GO AHEAD

The war department has not made public the list of projects selected for prosecution, but today's instructions went to the army engineers at New York, Charleston, S. C., Wilmington, N. C., Philadelphia, Savannah Ga., Jacksonville, Fla. Mobile Ala., San Francisco, Portland, Ore., Seattle, Wash., Rock Island, Ill., New Orleans, and St. Paul, Minn.

REOPENING OF COTTON EXCHANGE EXPECTED SOON

Bankers Plan to Break the Deadlock and Bring About Resumption of Trade

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—In cotton trade circles it is rumored that there will be publication almost immediately of bankers' plan to break the deadlock in cotton and bring about an active resumption of trading on the cotton exchange. The expectation is prevalent, although the bankers working on the plan are making progress.

The first inkling which the trade received of a plan to attain the desirable ends which the bankers have in view was obtained from an article published by Dow, Jones & Co. on Wednesday. The news took the trade completely by surprise, partly because the trade interest had no previous knowledge of what was being done, they doubted that anything was being done at all. The reason they were without knowledge is that a few leading bankers are taking the initiative, and have not even held consultations with other bankers, not to speak of the rank and file of the cotton trade. The statement published by Dow, Jones & Co. set out that receipts would be exceptionally large,

Plays and Players of the Week

Offerings of the Week

Forsyth--Vaudeville

Bijou-- "The Light House Girl"

Grand--Motion Pictures "The Master Cracksman" and "St. Elmo"

"Today" Comes to Atlanta First of Week--Bickel and Watson Headlines Forsyth, "Blue Ribbon Belles" at the Lyric--"Light House Girl" Bijou's Offering--The Grand Shows Two Big Movies

Broadhurst and Schomer's great moral drama, "Today," certainly deserves the great success which it has attained since its inception at the Fortyeighth Street theater, New York, all last season. It comes to the Atlanta Monday and Tuesday with a Tuesday matinee.

"Today" speaks the truth, and as every playgoer knows, that is infinitely better than beating about the bush, so to say, and strengthens the idea that the theater should be a reproduction of life as it exists this minute. "Today" gradually lessens the existence of hypocrisy. The production of "Today" teaches a grand moral lesson. "Today" thrills you. "Today" preaches the true family spirit so rarely seen nowadays. It effects the most blase theatergoer and instead of sitting at the performance with a tin ear, it impresses, it moves you, it rehabilitates, it entertains and it makes you think.

Shall a husband forgive his wife for a great wrong she has done him? Shall a son stand by his parents when his wife seeks to dispossess them? Shall a husband allow his wife to associate with a woman whose influence is a detriment to her welfare and the well being of his family? Shall the wife assist her husband and aid him in times of trials and tribulations?

These and other questions are splendidly, technically handled in "Today," which comes to the Atlanta Monday and Tuesday with a Tuesday matinee by a most wonderful cast, including George MacQuarrie, Helen MacKellar, Helen Judson, Charles N. Green, May Herbert, Amelia Mayborn, Frank Kimball and Hazel Bawden.

BICKEL AND WATSON FORSYTH HEADLINERS.

A bill of vaudeville has been arranged for this week at the Forsyth that contains more genuine features than any combination of talent the busy theater has offered since the opening of the new season.

Bickel and Watson, two of the best known character comedians in the profession, will be the headline features. These men have been identified with musical comedy and with successful hits for many years. They have played in Atlanta at high prices, and for the past four seasons have not been away from New York and the larger cities. In the character of a German bandmaster one of the comedians has a lot of trouble with the other who portrays a bad musician.

A novelty feature will be the contribution of May Monde, an artiste who will have all Atlanta talking before the middle of the week. Ray Monde has a peculiar act, one that will enlist and hold interest.

While the Forsyth has offered some excellent piano playing artists it is believed Hirschel Hendler will be one of the greatest hits of the season. The young man is known as "The Poet at the Piano," and while he is performing it will be sure that there will be an audience thoroughly interested and exceedingly entertained. Jack Donahue and Miss Marion Stewart, a standard duo of vaudevillians, will present an act that will be in keeping with the best comedy numbers that have been seen here. The Three Creighton Girls, "The Merry Melody Maids," will offer an act that has won approval in the principal vaudeville theaters of America, and because of genuine originality. Derkins European novelty, a "Busy Day in Dogville," will be one of the features of the bill. Another special feature will be the Roeders, a quartette of two men and two women, who will present a wonderful acrobatic invention.

DAVID WARFIELD APPEARS IN "THE AUCTIONEER" OCT. 16-17.

It is announced that on October 16 and 17 the Atlanta will have as its important attraction David Warfield, whom David Belasco will present there in a revival of "The Auctioneer," the comedy in which this beloved actor achieved his first great success. The reputation which Mr. Warfield has won through his artistic portrayals of Herr Von Barawig in "The Music Master," and Peter Grimm in "The Return of Peter Grimm" seems to have heightened the public's desire to again see him in the first of his great character creations, that of Simon Levi in "The Auctioneer."

As the shrewd but kindly old Hebrew, who conducts an auction store down on the East Side of New York, Mr. Warfield is said to bring into play all of those remarkable talents which have earned for him the respect and admiration of playgoers from coast to coast. Mail orders accompanied by remittance and self addressed stamped envelope will be received now and filled October 12.

"THE MIDNIGHT GIRL" BOOKED AT ATLANTA OCTOBER 20-21.

"The Midnight Girl," the Messrs. Shubert's latest musical comedy find, is to be the attraction at the Atlanta October 20 and 21.

"The Midnight Girl" has had very romantic history, having been discovered, quite by accident, by one of the Shubert staff, in a small German theater in New York, where it had been presented for several weeks.

"THE LIGHT-HOUSE GIRL," IS OFFERING AT BIJOU.

In selecting next week's Bijou play for the stock company, Manager Kelley will provide a play that is not only quick in action, strong in character portrayals, but tells a story that will hold Bijou patrons intensely interested from the rise of the first curtain until the finale of the last act.

A pretty love story that at once enlists the sympathies of the audience is one of the charming features of the play. The title character of "The Light-House Girl," will be in the hands of Miss Rose Morris, who has so endeared herself to Bijou patrons with her clever impersonations of roles of this character.

The story of the play is laid in an old sea-coast town, and the scenery four acts are especially painted for the production. The strength of the company will be seen in the cast, and excellent parts will be given Vernon Wallace, Newton Rose, J. W. Owen, Earl Higley, and the Misses Willard and Douglas.

During the week matinees will be given daily at 2:30, and night performances at 8:30. Monday night ladies will be admitted free under the usual conditions.

TWO MOVIES DIVIDE WEEK AT GRAND.

Two great pictures are coming to the Grand this week in "The Master Cracksman" and "St. Elmo," the former opening on Monday for a run of three days and the latter coming Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Already "The Master Cracksman" has shown its dramatic worth, when it was substituted at last Monday's matinee performances when a row over prices prevented the opening of "Cabiria" until the night shows.

"The Master Cracksman" is an unusual production, brilliant in photography, elaborately staged and pronounced by all reviewers to be a dramatic triumph. It stars Harry Carey.

There are 300 tense scenes in "The Master Cracksman," all teeming with life as it is enacted today by the many varying types humanity you encounter in every path of life. The story hinges around society, crime and criminals, the underworld and the wide, unbounded west, a thrill in every inch, a heart throb, too. It is one of the season's filmic masterstrokes.

"St. Elmo" is grander than ever in the film. The unlimited scope of the camera has lifted it from stage and story and given it perennial life, blooming fresher than ever. It has far more appeal on the screen, and is exceedingly graphic. There are but few booklovers who do not know Augusta Evans' greatest story. There are hardly any of these who will miss the opportunity to witness the drama in pictures.

There will be continuous performances of both pictures from 12 noon until 10:30 at night at 5 and 10 cents. Ladies and children at matinees, best seats, 5 cents.

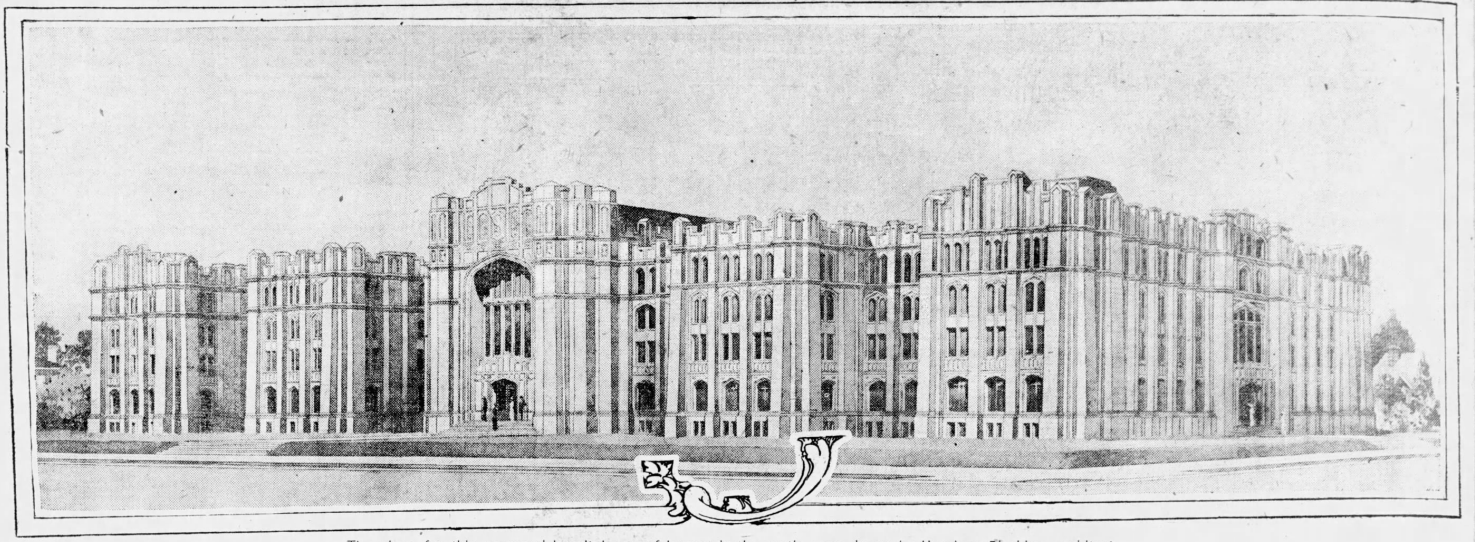
Here's How Great Georgia Baptist Hospital Will Look When Completed



The plans for this proposed hospital, one of largest in the south, were drawn by Haralson Bleckley, architect.

ESPERANTO ASSOCIATION PLANS TO AID MEMBERS

Will Transmit Messages for Those Having Friends or Relatives in Europe

Members of the Universal Esperanto association throughout the world who wish to communicate with relatives or acquaintances in European countries now at war can do so through the central office of the association at Geneva, Switzerland, which is to be kept open for this purpose.

News of the association's plan to afford this special service to its members has been received in Atlanta by Dr. Cecil Stockard, the Esperanto consul here, from H. Hodrr, director of the central office.

"The association can perform useful services during the war, especially for members whose relatives or acquaintances reside in countries that are now at war. The central office will undertake, without special responsibility, to transmit correspondence to these countries, on condition that they be postcards or in unsealed envelopes. They must have absolutely no information of political or military character. For several of the warring lands correspondence must be translated into the national language of that country. This can be done by the central office, if desired.

"We hope that in this manner the association, in spite of the present difficult circumstances, will be able to perform many useful services. The services of our delegates in the countries where the armies have not been mobilized will continue as formerly. For the services to be fulfilled in countries that are at war, we ask that all requests for information be sent direct to our office, which, either through the delegates or through special correspondence, will try to perform them as diligently as possible."

SACRED HEART CHURCH TO HOLD CHURCH FAIR

Marist College Campus to Be Scene of Entertainment October 6 to 9, Inclusive

A church fair will be held under the auspices of the Sacred Heart church on the Marist college campus, from the sixth until the ninth of October, inclusive. The fair will be open each afternoon, with the exception of the sixth, and of course on all of the nights.

On the fair grounds will be four booths under control of the Knights of Columbus, the Ladies' Altar Society, the Young Ladies' Sodality and the Marist college boys. At these booths, throughout the entire time of the fair, will be provided special forms of entertainment for the public. The Knights will have a "country store," the Ladies' Altar Society a stand at which all kinds of fancy lace work, etc., can be procured, the Young Ladies' Sodality a "post office," and the Marist college boys a shooting gallery, merry-go-round, etc.

Besides the entertainment furnished every afternoon and night at the booths, there will be general amusement throughout the grounds. Each one of the four nights will be under the control of one of the above mentioned organizations, who will have complete charge of the grounds on that night, and of the service and serving of the supper. Supper will be given every evening from 6:30 to 8, served on the basketball court under a large tent.

The fair grounds will be brilliantly lighted, and there will be music every night. A special program for the children has been arranged for Wednesday afternoon, the seventh, and will be under the care of the Ladies Altar Society. A baby show will be given on the following afternoon, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Sodality.

FEAR OF GERMAN CRUISER ALMOST KILLS SHIPPING

PANAMA, Oct. 3.—Shipping along the west coast of South America has been almost suspended owing to the reputed presence of the German cruiser Leipsig, reported to have sunk two British ships in the last week. British lines operating ships from Balboa to the south have withdrawn their sailings, delaying mails from Santiago, Chile, and points beyond. Only Chilean and Peruvian boats are plying to ports on the west coast.

According to reports reaching here, the Leipsig is sailing toward Panama.

NEW GEORGIA HOSPITAL TO COST $500,000 AND WILL ACCOMMODATE 500

Plans for Institution, Which Will Be on North Side, Have Been Accepted by Special Committee

Plans drawn by Haralson Bleckley, the architect, for the proposed $500,000 Georgia Baptist hospital have been accepted by a special committee of trustees which has also selected a site for the institution, work upon which will begin as soon as the action of the committee is approved by the Georgia Baptist convention, which meets at Carrollton on November 15.

The plans of the committee for a $500,000 institution, which will accommodate 500 patients and be one of the largest hospitals in the south, include the sale of the site of the present Georgia Baptist hospital at 92 Luckie street. While extremely valuable business property the Luckie street site is not large enough for the proposed hospital, so a new site has been selected by the committee. The location of this site, except for the statement that it is on the north side, has not yet been disclosed by the committee.

The matter of building a great hospital was placed in the hands of the trustees by the Baptist convention of 1912, and in 1913 the trustees placed the details of the matter in the hands of a committee composed of F. J. Cooledge, Sr., George M. Brown, and J. M. Long.

The new building, when completed, will cover practically an entire block according to the present plans, which are so made that the building can be constructed by units. There are five units, and when constructed each will cost $100,000 and will contain 100 beds.

It is the plan of the committee to erect two units at once. The Baptist citizens of Atlanta are to raise the first $100,000, most of which has already been secured in cash and subscriptions, and the Baptists of the state, of whom there are about 200,000 will be asked for the second $100,000.

The Georgia Baptist hospital, while owned and operated by Baptist church, etc., is non-sectarian in its work, and all people in need of treatment will be admitted. While there will be an official staff connected with the hospital, it will be an open door institution, and any reputable physician can take his patients to it.

Turcos Climb Trees Like Monkeys and Hide From Germans

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, who witnessed the battle at Verdun September 24, when Prince Oscar led the imperial guard, says:

"Though the Germans fought like lions, the Turcos climbed trees and, like monkeys, hid in the leaves. The Germans and Turcos fought and wrestled in a terrible hand-to-hand struggle, and many German officers fell dead around the prince, who thereafter had the heart attack already described.

"Later, at a hotel in Metz, the prince was greeted by the emperor, who, with arms extended, cried: 'Boy, boy! Here you are!'"

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to the Express from Rome states it is reported there Emperor William has sent a telegram to the king of Greece warning him that if Greece enters into a war against Turkey Germany will not guarantee the future existence of Greece.

King Constantine replied, the dispatch declares, that if any of the Balkan states took up arms on either side, Greece would declare for the triple entente.

THREE RESERVE BANKS WILL OPEN ABOUT OCT. 15

Banks in New York, Chicago and St. Louis Will Open First

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Opening of federal reserve banks of New York, Chicago and St. Louis not later than October 15 has been decided on by the federal reserve board. The directorates of the New York and St. Louis banks already are complete and the class C directors to represent the government in the Chicago bank probably will be named Monday, making immediate organization possible.

In addition to those for Chicago, class C directors for four other reserve cities are yet to be chosen. All of them will be announced before the end of next week.

Boston probably will be the fourth city to get its reserve bank in operation, and the others are expected to follow along in quick succession. As in the case of the three to be opened first, the directors will not wait for permanent staffs and buildings. Temporary quarters will be arranged for and safe deposit boxes rented for securities.

Early next week the reserve board expects to send to the banks now ready for organization a draft of bylaws which they will be asked to adopt. It has decided that the chief officer of each bank shall be called "governor." The other particular officers probably will be a vice governor and a secretary or cashier.

Class C directors of the Richmond bank, William Ingle, of Baltimore, James A. Moncure of Richmond, and M. H. E. Gouveneur, of Wilmington, N. C., today conferred with the federal reserve board concerning matters of organization. The directors told the board they believed the Richmond bank could be organized by the latter part of October, and emphasized the necessity of an early selection of quarters.

The board advised a meeting of the directors at Richmond for the purpose of electing the fifth district member of the federal advisory council, and proceed with arrangements for the selection of a site for the bank. When this has been accomplished, it was suggested that the directors again meet with the board to discuss further questions of organization.

U. S. COURT GRANTS CHANGE IN HARVESTER CO. DECREE

Dissolution Plan Amended So as Not to Apply to Foreign Trade

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 3.—The August decree of the United States district court ordering the dissolution of the International Harvester company under the Sherman anti-trust law was amended in a decision given here late today by Judges Sanborn, Heck and Smith, the trial Judges, which alters the decree so as not to apply to the foreign trade of the company and changes the original plan of dissolution.

After the announcement of the decision counsel for the harvester company gave notice of appeal to the United States supreme court from the dissolution decision of the court as amended.

The court's first amendment orders the words "and with foreign nations" struck out wherever they appear in the decree, but the court distinctly reserves its power over the property and business of the company "so far as lawful and necessary to effect a dissolution of the combination."

The amendment regarding the plan of dissolution was first stipulated between the attorney general of the United States and attorneys for the defendants.

The original decree made it compulsory for the company to lay before the court a plan for the separation of the company's business and assets into at least three separate corporations. Under the amendment the specific number three is eliminated and the plan to be drawn is to provide for division of the company's interests "in such manner and into such number of parts of separate and distinct ownership as may be necessary to restore competitive conditions and bring about a new situation in harmony with law."

GEORGIA MAN IS RESCUED FROM DREADFUL AFFLICTION IN TIME

Resident of Woodstock Finds Himself Restored After His Physicians Failed.

T. A. Lewis, who lives out on Route 2, Woodstock, Ga., was the victim of stomach troubles for a long time. He tried the treatments of many doctors. He tried all sorts of remedies.

Then he tried Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. Just as it always does, the first dose proved to him what could be done for his ailment. He took the full treatment; then wrote:

"I have taken four wonderful stomach remedy and am feeling better than I have felt in four years.

"Your remedy does just what you claim it will do.

"I tried several doctors, but they did me no good. I am glad that I have found your wonderful remedy. I have recommended it to some of my neighbors who need it."

Mr. Lewis' experience is just like that of thousands of others who have been delivered from stomach troubles.

Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucoid accretions and poisonous matter. It brings swift relief to sufferers from ailments of the stomach, liver and intestinal disorders. Many declare it has saved them from dangerous operations; many are sure it has saved their lives.

We want all people who have chronic stomach trouble or constipation, no matter of how long standing, to try one dose of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy—one dose will convince you. This is the medicine so many of our people have been talking with surprising results. The most thorough system cleanser ever sold, Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is now sold here by Jacobs' Pharmacy and druggists everywhere.—(Advt.)

Used Tobacco Over 46 Years!

HAS NOW QUIT FOREVER

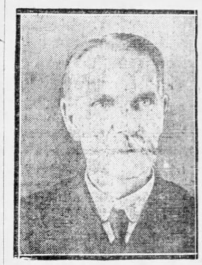
All Desire Gone and He Doesn't Even Think of It Now

The photo is that of Mr. J. A. Hill, a highly respected citizen of St. Lawrence county, N. Y. After many years of tobacco smoking, snuff chewing, and after having used fifty dozen of so-called "cures," he got a certain box which gave him valuable information about how to get rid of the habit quickly and easily. He followed the information and now all desire is gone.



GAINED 50 POUNDS.

One of the oldest established grocers of Seattle, Mr. H. M. Sherwood, says he had a smoking record of 30 cigars, daily average. That he was in bad condition is hardly necessary to explain. He got the free book, followed the information, now he is done with the tobacco habit, has gained 56 pounds in weight, health improved wonderfully.

SNUFF HABIT CONQUERED.

Mrs. E. Barnes, an estimable lady of Mayr Landing, was able to rid herself of all desire for snuff and now she feels very much better. Many others have done likewise through the information obtained from the free book.

WILL SEND BOOK FREE.

The above are but three out of legions of cases that might be cited. If you are addicted to the use of tobacco in any form, pipe, chewing, snuff, cigars or cigarettes—don't wait another day, but write to the author, Edward J. Woods, Q 718, Station E, New York City, and he will mail the book free, in plain wrapper. It will likely be worth its weight in gold to you.—(Advt.)

On Friday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock the Messrs. Pound, Wardlaw, and Sells entertained the faculty at a reception at the president's home. Delightful refreshments were served and a most pleasant time was spent by the members of the faculty.

The state supervisor, Mr. M. L. Dugan, visited the school during the week and conferred with the Economic department about his work in the field. Mr. Dugan spoke enthusiastically of his work to the student body and outlined a brief survey that he is to make in the state.

The Georgia club is started in regular Monday meetings with a large attendance. This club is continuing the work so well done by Mr. Hranson before he left Georgia for North Carolina. ## The Wedding Gift

The Most Important of All

There is no finer or more beautiful sentiment in the world than that attached to the giving of gifts—presenting a token of love, friendship and esteem. And there is no other gift that carries with it the depth of feeling and sentiment as does the wedding gift.

If it comes from Haynes' the happy bride can proudly exhibit it to her friends and loved ones, confident in the knowledge that it is above criticism.

Exclusively Distinctive Models in Evening Gowns Street Dresses Tailored Suits

FROHSIN'S is classed, by Atlanta's correctly gowned women, as one of the SMARTEST shops in town and it's also a fact that FROHSIN'S is in a class by itself---namely, at this store you will be shown EVENING GOWNS, STREET DRESSES, TAILORED SUITS and other apparel, EXCLUSIVELY DISTINCTIVE---models that are different from what's being shown elsewhere in Atlanta---and our prices are more reasonable than other good stores are asking for equally high-grade garments.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

THE "Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton" movement of The Atlanta Journal is claiming the very keen attention of women, not only of the south, but from far distant points in the north, east and west. The federation of Women's clubs of the United States, always on the alert to investigate each problem of feminine interest as it appears, has decided not only to indorse the cotton campaign, but to lend the most hearty co-operation and support to the movement in all its phases. Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, the able president of the general federation, who has recently returned from Europe and is at present in New York, has indorsed on behalf of the federation the appeal made by Miss Florence Guernsey, the president of the federated clubs of New York City, to women to buy cotton gowns for wear at the mammoth peace demonstration to be held during the week. Moving pictures were made of the cotton ball Thursday evening at the Piedmont club and in an incredibly short time the exquisite costumes of cotton fabrics designed and worn by Atlanta women will be seen in every part of the United States, illustrating the wonderful beauty of gowns that were fashioned from the white staple of the south.

The presence of the president of the general federation at the meeting in Albany during the latter part of the month is attracting much attention from club women. Mrs. Pennybacker, who was detained in England at the outbreak of the war, spent much time investigating conditions and her address will be of great interest. The topic of cotton, illustrated by the miniature cotton exposition, and a discussion as to the best help to be rendered by women in meeting the present emergency, will be among the vital topics to be brought to the consideration of the body of representative women of the state who will attend the meeting of the federation.

* * * * *

OCTOBER is conceded by many to be the most beautiful month in the southern year. The appearance of the stretch of golden weather called Indian summer by a number and the summer of St. Martin by a few, may be usually anticipated with confidence at this harvest season. Commencing about the middle of the month a purple haze spreads over the days and the crimson glow of the autumn may be seen on every side. The rich warmth of the sunlight makes the days enjoyable while the crispness of the nights carries with them a slight hint of the coming winter. This year in Atlanta the month will be characterized by many interesting events. The Dog show, to be given under the auspices of the Atlanta Kennel club, has been dated for October 15-18, and is claiming the attention of many. Good natured rivalry is being manifested among the owners of fine dogs in the city, each feeling certain that their pedigreed pet will carry off the ribbon and incidentally several of the handsome prizes. With each day entries are coming from different points in the state and it is expected that many will attend from neighboring cities. The fact that the Atlanta Kennel club has decided to devote the proceeds to the benefit of the Home for Incurables, is lending an additional interest. Committees of young girls are being formed whose concerted efforts will insure the popularity of the event and whose presence will lend an added brightness to the occasion.

WEDDINGS OF THE WEEK

Corley-Cannon

The wedding of Miss Sara Marie Cannon and Dr. Augustus Harrison Corley took place at the First Methodist church at Conyers, Ga., being an event of Thursday evening.

The church was decorated with groups of palms and ferns. Garlands of southern smilax intertwined the chancel and floor, vases of pink and white roses and ascension lilies with cathedral candlesticks in which white tapers burned completed the effect.

Preceding the entrance of the wedding party, Miss Florence Wells, of Covington, sang "Rose of My Life," accompanied on the piano by Miss Clara Belle Adams, of Covington, who also played the wedding march.

The ushers were Dr. Paul McDaniel and Dr. Frank McDaniel, of Conyers; Dr. James Calhoun, of Augusta, and Mr. Woodson Wood, of Atlanta. They proceeded to the altar followed by the maids, Miss Eloise Cooper, of Covington; Miss Florrie Wood, of Atlanta; Miss Eunice Ragsdale, of Macon; Miss Julia Folk, of Edgefield, S. ## The Cotton Bloom

The Rose has a thousand lovers because
Of her delicate grace and perfume,
But lovers for sturdier reasons give
Their hearts to the Cotton bloom.

It grows in a dazzling ample land
Of measureless breadth and room—
And the wealth of a splendid tropical sun
Dowers this cotton bloom.

And Capital keeps his eyes on the field
While he hears the hum of the loom,
And his anxious visage glows and pales
At the nod of the Cotton bloom.

—HOWARD WEEDEN.

A skin you love to touch

Why it is so rare

A skin you love to touch is rarely found because so few people understand the skin and its needs.

Begin now to take your skin seriously.

You can make it what you would love to have it by using the following treatment regularly.

Make this treatment a daily habit

Just before retiring, work up a warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the skin gently until the skin is softened, the pores opened and the face feels fresh and clean. Rinse in cooler water, then apply cold water—the colder the better—for a full minute. Whenever possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice. Always dry the skin thoroughly.

Use this treatment persistently for ten days or two weeks and your skin will show a marked improvement. Use Woodbury's regularly thereafter, and before long your skin will take on that finer texture, that greater freshness and clearness of "a skin you love to touch."

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of a skin specialist. It costs 25c a cake. No one hesitates at the price after their first cake.

Do this today—Now! Tear out the illustration of the cake below and put it in your purse as a reminder to get Woodbury's. Tear out the cake now. Take it to your druggist or toilet counter today. Begin tonight to get the benefits of this Facial soap. For sale by dealers everywhere.

Quick Removal of Wrinkles Is Now Assured--- Some Other Beauty Secrets

BY VELESKA SURATT.

THE removal of wrinkles is no longer a problem. Of course there are many prepared creams which are sold for the purpose but the experience of most women with these feeble agencies has usually been one of keen disappointment. The loss of precious time in such cases is particularly deplorable. What every woman wants and can now obtain is the quick removal of wrinkles, not a process requiring almost a year if at all, but one which will show wonderful results in a few weeks' time. The following formula is one which does this in a very amazing way. You make this up yourself at home in a very few moments by dissolving two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and two ounces of epsol in half a pint of hot water. The satiny cream which results removes wrinkles almost magically. This secret is one of the most valuable I know. Large and small wrinkles, crow's feet, lines of age and sagging of flesh, all disappear quickly and completely transform one's appearance from age to youth.

• • •

ERNESTINE M.—The prevalence of falling hair is alarming among all classes of women. Dandruff is one of the main causes of it. Another cause is lack of nourishment of the hair-roots. The ordinary hair tonics bought these days merely stimulate for the time being. These can not stop dandruff or make hair grow. What is needed is to supply the necessary nutriment so that the tissues of the scalp and hair roots may return to their original condition of vigor and health. For this purpose nothing is so remarkably effective as a mixture of one ounce of beta-quinol, half a pint of alcohol and half a pint of water (or with a full pint of bay rum instead of water and alcohol, if preferred). This costs less than any prepared hair tonic and its results in forcing hair to grow, stopping dandruff and the falling of hair are very remarkable and rapid.

"The Way This Secret Removes Wrinkles and Sagging of Flesh is Truly Remarkable."

MRS. S. O. B.—Simply use this cream every day on your face, arms, hands, neck and shoulders, and in a very short time you will find the most decided change in your complexion. It never fails. All red spots, freckles and blemishes vanish, producing a most exquisite purity and tint to the skin. It is the beautifier without a peer, and is very economical. Mix one tablespoonful of glycerine in a pint of hot water and add one ounce of zintone, which can be secured at any drug store. This is done in a few moments. You will need nothing else to make your complexion fascinating.

• • •

HESTER C. S.—Developing the bust is a difficult matter and cannot always be assured. However, a mixture of two ounces of ruetone and half a cup of sugar in a pint of cold water, and taken in two teaspoonfuls after each meal and before retiring, is the best and surest means known for the purpose. Do not use pills, or mechanical appliances.

• • •

MISS T. R.—A teasponful of eggol in half a cup of hot water makes an amazingly rich and effective head wash and dandruff remover. The action of this shampoo is to dissolve every particle of dandruff and fatty accumulation, which soap does not do because of the alkali it contains. This is the only only head wash that acts on this principle. It makes the scalp extraordinarily clean, and the hair silky and easy to do up. This is very economical, as enough eggol can be secured for a very modest price at any drug store to furnish a dozen or more of these unusual shampoos. It is in fact a real necessity to hair health.

• • •

MARY JANE E.—The removal of superfluous hairs is accomplished more easily, quickly and thoroughly by the use of simple sulfo solution than by any other means. This simply dissolves away the hair instead of burning it off as do other depilatories. It never leaves a mark, never fails and never harms the most delicate skin. Any druggist can supply you with this splendid article.

• • •

ARABELLA M.—No, face steaming will not remove blackheads. You can get rid of them completely in a few minutes by simply rubbing them with a little nervoxin sprinkled on a sponge made wet with hot water. Any drug store can supply you with the nervoxin. Every blackhead will disappear by using this remarkable formula.

• • •

MRS. R. O. B.—Excessive and unnatural arm-pit perspiration from which so many women suffer at all seasons is at once relieved by the simple use of hydrolized talc, which can be obtained at any pharmacy. It also destroys all perspiration odors instantly and all other body odors. It will prevent that terrible soppy condition under the arms. It saves your garments and relieves you of much ambarrassment.—(Advt.)

THE WEEK IN RETROSPECT

THE cotton ball at the Piedmont club was not only a brilliant occasion but one of the most successful affairs from every viewpoint ever held in Atlanta. Bales of cotton and feathery white cotton bolls transformed each room of the attractive club house into the picturesque semblance of a harvest scene, and the lattice work of cotton bolls which screened one end of the ball room was a marvel of artistic beauty.

The crowning of Mrs. W. S. Elkin queen by Colonel Robert J. Lowry, who represented "King Cotton," preceded the opening of the ball. The gorgeous costumes of the king and queen were fashioned entirely of cotton goods and the royal couple seated high on a royal throne formed entirely of cotton bales, surrounded by a bevy of pretty girls who were maids of honor, presented a picture not soon to be forgotten.

Mrs. Ben Lee Crew and Mr. Brooks Morgan captured the prizes for the most original and clever costumes and Mrs. John Sommerville and Mr. Eugene Kelly the prizes offered for the best exposition of the old-fashioned dances.

Costumes of every description were to be seen, some were marvels of beauty, the tarleton of our grandmother's day lending itself to the most beautiful adaptations. Cotton blooms and cotton bolls were among the pretty figures seen on the ball room floor while co'onial dames and charming women gowned in regulation ball costume made of cotton goods threaded their way in the dance. Fancy dress worn by the men provoked much merriment.

The buy-a-bale-of-cotton campaign of The Atlanta Journal was in every person's tongue while the playing of the inspiring new ragtime number, "Have you bought a bale of cotton—I have bought mine," added to the brightness of the occasion.

MISS AGNES DICKSON, of Jersey City, the guest of Mrs. E. P. Mc-Burney, was complimented with a series of parties during the past week. The autumn tea at which Mrs. Floyd McKay entertained in her honor was an event of Monday afternoon, and assembled fifty guests. Tea was served on the lovely terrace which makes such an attractive part of the handsome Peachtree street home of Dr. and Mrs. McRae, fringed with many growing plants and surrounding a vine-clad pergola, the pretty spot was ideal for the afternoon party. Fruit punch was served from one end of the wide piazza and tea from a table adorned with deep crimson cannas and brightly tinted autumn leaves. On Tuesday, Mrs. John Marshall Slaton gave a luncheon of ten covers in honor of Miss Dickson and Wednesday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Grant entertained a party of friends at the tea dance at the Piedmont club in her honor. Miss Dickson was among the attractive visitors at the cotton ball Thursday evening.

MANY pretty parties have been given during the week in compliment to the attractive debutantes. Bridge luncheons, matinee parties and afternoon teas have been among the number and have afforded a pleasant opportunity for informal gatherings among the younger set. The luncheon given by Miss Mary King in compliment to Miss Isoline Campbell was a beautiful event of Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George E. King on Peachtree road. Pink double dahlias shading from palest pink to deepest rose filled an ivory basket, which formed the artistic centerpiece of the beautifully appointed table, while quantities of Killarney roses gracefully arranged in tall crystal vases and French baskets further ornamented the dining-room. Miss King's guests included Miss Campbell, Miss Parker, Miss Bertha Moore, Miss Lucile Kurht, Miss Isabel Robinson, Miss Virginia Lipscomb, Miss Dorothy High, Miss Feril Humphries, Miss Rosalie Davis, Miss Margaret Traylor and Miss Mary Murphey.

The bridge luncheons given by Miss Louise Parker in honor of the season's debutantes were beautiful events of Friday and Saturday and on each occasion assembled a large number of young girls and several of the attractive visitors who spent the week in the city. Bridge was played during the mornings in the attractive home on Fourteenth street, which was transformed into a garden-like appearance with the many lovely fall flowers used in decoration and after the game a tempting buffet luncheon was served.

A WEDDING of much interest in Atlanta was that of Miss Helen Brandon and Mr. David Dudley Yard, which was solemnized Saturday at high noon at the Hotel Hargrave in New York City. Rev. George G. Woodell, of St. Paul's Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the rose room of the hotel in the presence of the immediate family connection of the young couple.

Miss Mary Stydell, the maid of honor, was charmingly gowned in rainbow tinted chiffon over satin and carried a bouquet of palest pink tea roses. The young bride presented a beautiful picture in her wedding robes of lustrous white satin, fashioned with Russian tunic of rare lace, her tulle veil was adjusted to the soft hair with a spray of fragrant orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of orchids showered with lilies of the valley.

The others were the brothers of the bride—Mr. John Robert Brandon and Mr. William Cuthbert Brandon; and the best man was Mr. Charles McCulloch.

The charming bride and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Jay Brandon, spent the past winter in Atlanta at the Ponce de Leon and since early summer have been staying at their country home in Long Island.

After a wedding trip of several weeks through the north, Mr. and Mrs. Yard will come to Atlanta to make their home.

AN event of Saturday among the younger set was the luncheon given by Miss Mary Butler at her home on Crescent avenue in compliment to Miss Virginia Lipscomb, an attractive debutante of the season. Yellow chrysanthemums and black-eyed susans in artistic and beautiful arrangement formed the decoration of the dining room, and the buffet luncheon was served, and the same colors were evidenced in the ices and bonbons. The guests were entertained in the entertainment of her honor by her sister, Miss Charles Stone, who attractively gowned in a full model of dark blue serge and black satin and a corsage of red roses added a touch of bright color to the costume. Miss Butler's guests included Miss Lipscomb, Miss Isoline Campbell, Miss Margaret Traylor, Miss Louise Parker, Miss Louise Broyles, Miss Willie Muse, Miss Nelle Phinizy, of Athens; Miss Bertha Moore, Miss Lucile Kurht, Miss Josephine Mobley, Miss Margaret McKee, Miss Nellie Hood Ridley, Miss Feril Humphries, Miss Lucile Kuhrt, Miss Aline Fielder, Miss Ellen O'Keefe, Miss Ida Winship, Miss Isabel Robinson and Miss Rosalie Davis.

THE mid-week dances at the clubs contributed a large share to the gayety of the week. A number of parties were given Tuesday evening at the Capital City club and the tea dance Wednesday afternoon at the Piedmont club assembled a large number of club members and their friends. Several entertainments were given Saturday afternoon at the tea dance at the Druid Hills Golf club in honor of a number of out-of-town visitors who attended the cotton ball and who remained in the city for the week end. The dinner dance at the Piedmont club Saturday evening was well attended and formed a pleasant close to a week filled with bright entertainments.

Wedding of Miss Nita Black and Mr. Lamar Rucker Beautiful Event

The marriage of Miss Nita Hughes Black and Mr. Lamar Cobb Rucker, of Athens, was a notable event of Saturday evening, taking place at 6:30 o'clock at All Saints' Episcopal church.

The impressive ceremonial was characterized by originality and elegant simplicity of detail and the interior of the church presented a scene of rare beauty, a large assemblage of friends having gathered to witness the marriage rites which were performed by Right Rev. C. Kinloch Nelson, assisted by Rev. W. W. Memminger and Rev. R. M. W. Black, of Columbia, Tenn.

The chancel was enclosed by a rail of feathery green, garlands of asparagus fern extending to the entrance, which was marked by handsome clusters of Easter lilies, caught with airy stately Easter lilies, caught with airy stately tulle. A solid mass of palms banked the marble altar which was adorned with three-branched candelabra holding lighted tapers. The main illumination was cast by an artistic arrangement of candles overhead, with brilliant effect amid the festoons of a huge canopy of fern fashioned in V-shape.

Bridal Party.

The vested choir, singing "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden," preceded the entrance of the bridal party and advanced to the altar, when the organ began the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march.

The ushers, who entered, were Mr. Charles Clarke, Jr., Mr. James Young Swift, Mr. Daniel MacDougald and Mr. William Erwin, of Athens.

Miss Louise Black, the maid or honor, was her sister's only attendant. She wore a beautiful gown of liere lace, waist, the graceful skirt ruffled over lustrous satin and finished by a girdle of cloth of gold, the same note of color being repeated in the slippers which completed the lovely costume. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow dahlias, crimson carnations and heliotrope artistically arranged in a lace holder.

The bride, who entered with her brother, Mr. Ralph Black, was gowned in a beautiful model fashioned of limerick tambour, the lace having been brought from Ireland where it was made by convent nuns. The exquisite material was draped over duchesse satin and formed a butterfly effect in the back. The long veil, which was embroidered in delicate design, was caught to her dark hair with sprays of orange blossoms. She carried a prayer book of white ivory with marker of valley lilies in shower effect caught with tiny white satin bows.

The betrothal service took place in the chancel, the bride being given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Nellie Peters Black. As the wedding group advanced to the altar for the completion of the ceremony the choir sang "O Perfect Love."

The best man was Mr. Jeptha Rucker, of Athens, an uncle of the groom.

Reception at Home of Bride.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the bride's home on Spring street, at which were entertained the out-of-town guests, relatives and close friends.

The reception rooms were decorated in white and green with cut flowers, making a pretty contrast against the quantities of foliage and growing plants that banked the mantels and cabinets.

Mrs. Black was handsomely gowned in pearl gray tinted satin draped in becoming design, the corsage of duchesse lace, which also finished the sleeves. She wore mauve orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Tinsley White Rucker, mother of the groom, wore a toilet of lustrous black satin combined with rare lace, and her corsage flowers were Parma violets.

Mrs. Peyton Wade, who assisted in entertaining, was gowned in sky blue crepe de chine, the skirt arranged in graceful folds and the waist finished with Chantilly lace.

Mr. and Mrs. Rucker left during the evening for a wedding trip and on their return will go to housekeeping in Athens. The bride wore a modish traveling suit of dark green gabardine, buff collar and cuffs lending a lovely finish, and the costume being completed by a French hat of black velvet trimmed in paradise.

Among the out-of-town guests who attended the wedding and reception were Mr. and Mrs. Tinsley White Rucker, Miss Mary Ann Rucker, Mr. Jeptha H. Rucker, of Athens; Mr. Ralph Black, Rev. R. M. W. Black, of Columbia, Tenn.; Mr. George Black Hammond, of South Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Peters and Miss Dorothy Peters, of Garden City, L. I.; Judge Andrew Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. Howell Erwin, Mr. Will Erwin, Mr. Andrew Erwin, Judge and Mrs. Hamilton W. McWhorter, of Athens; Mr. and Mrs. George Browne, of Charlottesville, Va.; Miss Maigie Wilson DuBose, of Athens, and Mr. James Young Swift, of Rose Hill.

INTERESTING GOSSIP OF INTERESTING PEOPLE

The origin of the phrase, "God save the king," is shrouded in mystery. It occurs in Coverdale's translation of the Bible, 1535. Froude has also quoted it as a watchword of the navy as early as 1545 with the countersign, "Long to reign over us." Another but little known version was published at the time of the Restoration. It begins:

God save Charles the King,
Our Royal Roy;
Grant him long years to reign
In peace and joy.

Season's Dancing to Bear "Made in America" Label.

Dances for the coming season will bear the label "Made In America," says a fashion exchange, and as a result will be less offensive, more graceful and easier to learn, in the opinion of the leading teachers. They expect people to take up dancing as a means of forgetting the war, and are preparing for a more successful season than last year, when the so-called "craze" was said to be at its height.

"The war may have a temporary effect on dancing," said Vernon Castle, "but it will be only a short time before the public interest is renewed by the progress made in eliminating vulgarity. When the fox trot and the hesitation are danced properly there is no cause for protest."

Joseph Simon, of the Hanff-Simon studio, agreed with Mr. Castle's statement that the war would result in dances being originated and developed in America, and explained the modern dances were so simple that they could easily be learned in a few lessons.

Carnival of Safety in Philadelphia.

More than 10,000 persons attended the Carnival of Safety during the past week in Philadelphia.

The carnival, which is the first event of its kind to be held, is the result of indefatigable efforts on the part of two women—Mrs. Joseph R. Wilson, chairman of the committee of the Home and School League's committee on arrangements, and the league's president, Mrs. Edwin C. Grice.

Mrs. McCall, who is one of America's leading experts on the safety problem, will be at Convention hall each afternoon and even of the carnival, and a remarkable series of motion pictures, made under her direction, illustrative of the dangers that beset children and adults in the busy streets of large cities when proper precautions are not observed will be a regular feature of the carnival. Some of these films are in dramatic form, with stories written by James Oppenheim and other eminent authors. They show, more convincingly than any mere lecture or printed warning the necessity of instilling in the minds of every child the principles of safety.

An important feature of Mrs. McCall's work in Brooklyn has been the preparation of safety calendars and safety bulletins and her lectures on safety are now used in the public schools of Brooklyn.

She formulated the following ten rules for safety, which, if strictly adhered to by all children, would go far toward minimizing the number of street accidents in large cities.

1. Never jump on a moving car.
2. Never jump off a moving car.
3. Never get off a car backward. Take hold of grip handle with left hand, left foot on step, right foot on ground, face front.
4. Never put head or hands out of car windows.
5. Never fall on leaving car to look for passing wagons and automobiles.
6. Always in passing behind a car look to see if another car, automobile or wagon is coming in the opposite direction.
7. Never hitch or steal rides behind street cars, wagons and automobiles.
8. Never play on the car tracks.
9. Always look both ways before crossing the streets.
10. Never cross streets except at regular crossings.

Children of United States Asked to Aid Peace Petition.

A letter to the children of the United States, asking them to sign a petition to the rulers of the warring nations in Europe and Asia asking peace, was issued during the past week by the children's peace petition committee, with the approval of the board of managers of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

Teachers are asked to read the committee's letter to their pupils and to have the children sign the petition and return it to the committee.

The petition, addressed to the emperors of Austria, Germany, Japan and Russia, the kings of Belgium, Great Britain and Montenegro, and the president of France, pleads with the rulers to call an immediate armistice and summit their differences to The Hague tribunal and to promise to have all future difficulties adjusted in the same manner.

"We are Laura Haynes and grandchildren of your former subjects," the petition adds. "We are many of us tied by blood and affection to the soldiers now contending in their death struggle on different sides of this terrible combat. We implore you to stop the fearful slaughter, for to us it seems like savagery fighting against civilization. We beg this on behalf of the helpless children of Europe and Asia, who are being deprived of their fathers and their education."

Happenings in Londontown

BY THE COUNTESS OF BLANKSHIRE

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Lady Affleck, who has divorced Sir Robert Affleck, had an interesting experience after parting from her husband, which was not referred to in the hearing of the petition. Finding herself confronted with the necessity of earning her living, she sought for a position as shop assistant. Her attractions, personality, knowledge of languages and other attainments quickly enabled her to obtain an excellent "berth." She became the second saleswoman in the costume department of one of the largest establishments in Oxford street, and, as "Madame Julie," made a reputation as a smart business woman.

"I had some rather amusing experiences," she says. "One day I had just concluded a sale in French with a customer from Paris and as I turned away another customer remarked: 'How well educated you shop girls are nowadays. Do you attend evening classes?'"

The great war is sending a stream of visitors from the continent to the English hotels. All the fashionable places here are already full. Claridge's, for instance, never had a longer or more distinguished list of guests than at present, including the Princess of Monaco, the Grand Duchess Michaelovitch, of Russia, with the Baron and Baroness de Stoeckl and Mlle. de Stoeckl, Prince and Princess Rospigliosi, and a host of other prominent people.

The expectation is that if the German armies threaten to envelop Paris there will be a big exodus from the French capital to this country and the English spas are promised a rich harvest. Already such places as Harrogate and Llandrindod Wells are, I hear, doing exceptionally well, many rich people who fled from Hamburg, Marienbad and other continental resorts having found their way there, and the prospect from all the English watering places is excellent. This winter not only the fashionable hotels here, but the big shops should have no cause to complain. "'Tis an ill wind—"

The Princess of Monico, since she has been in London, has lavished both time and money in caring for the poorer French compatriots in the district of Soho. Here the large French population has been robbed of many of its breadwinners, mostly small restaurant keepers, chefs and waiters, who have been called to the colors, and distress was very rife till the princess came upon the scene. She has been playing the role of Lady Bountiful in munificent style, not merely distributing doles, but visiting the people in their homes and dispensing true womanly sympathy.

Windsor and the West End of London are hoping that the composite regiment of household cavalry will greatly distinguish itself on the northern plains of France. I understand that household cavalrymen volunteer individually for service abroad, as their terms of service only bind them to serve at home. In real war they discard their cuirasses and dress in khaki just like any ordinary cavalry. The composite regiment is composed of the First and Second life guards and the royal horse guards. It is a peculiarity of the latter that they have no sergeants. They call sergeants "corporals of horse," and sergeant majors they call corporal majors.

The king is sharing with his ministers the strenuous work which the war entails. For some time past his majesty has only enjoyed about five hours' rest out of the twenty-four. The only compensation King George has derived is that since the outbreak of war he and Queen Mary have not been subjected to the annoyance of the suffragettes, who during the present crisis have been working enthusiastically for the common cause.

• • •

The royal family is well represented in the field. The Prince of Wales is likely to go to the front at any minute. Prince Arthur of Connaught has already left the young wife and child and is now in the fighting line. Prince Alexander of Battenberg, Princess Henry's eldest son, was the first royalty to leave, and in this connection it is worth recalling that his father, Prince Henry of Battenberg, died of fever contracted during the Ashantee expedition. Both of Queen Mary's brothers are likely to take part in active service, but it is one of the ironies of war that Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, the only surviving son of Prince Edward's eldest surviving sister, should be fighting for the Kaiser. His brother, it will be remembered, was killed in the Boer war, and a statue has been erected to him at Windsor. It must be a sad blow to his mother, Princess Christian, that Prince Albert should be fighting against this country.

Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Stone entertained Saturday afternoon at their home on St. Charles avenue in compliment to their little daughter, Donna Stone, in celebration of the twelfth birthday.

Each place was marked by a tiny candle and dainty favors were given the little guests.

Games were played for which prizes were awarded. Late in the afternoon the young guests were entertained with moving pictures.

Mrs. Stone was gowned in white crepe.

The guests invited were Sarah Bell Brodnax, Dorothy Standland, Margaret Bennett, Margaret Colbert, Martha Shovelin, Mary Anderson, Constance Cone, Louise Cooper, Frances Cooper, Florence Boykin, Lala Boykin, Laura Haynes and Mary Anderson, Emma Waitt, Sadie Bell Woodliff, Carol Hood, Janette Bailey, Frances Transon, Mildred Mackey, Martha Cone, Althena Barton, Augusta Walker, Mary Cochran, Gladys Fraley and Messrs. ## Tech Wins, But Lacks a Lot Of Being Real Team

Jackets Defeat South Carolina 20 to 0 in Opening Game of Season — Several Good Players Developing but Team Work Off—Interference Improved

By Dudley Glass

Well, the Jackets didn't perform any wonders in their opening game. To be sure, they defeated the University of South Carolina 20 to 0, but the faithful few who cowered on the sidelines under a chilling rain figured it out that we should have done a lot better than we really was trying.

Of the good things developed in that opening game, which after all, was more a practice than a football contest. One is that Coach Heisman has an excellent bunch of football players, but he has not yet a football team. It will take a lot more pussin' and coaching and whipping into line before the Jackets can hold up against a real eleven. And there is no reflection on South Carolina, either, for the squad from the land of Hoods and Blease are perhaps as raw and green as are the Jackets.

Tech has, as aforesaid, several old men who are showing good form and several new ones who promise to develop into real football players. They have met the Thanksgiving snap, and there's a bit slow on the get-away. But there was one marked improvement over last year and if this is perfected it promises victories—and that's interference.

The best interference the Jackets have shown in several years was put on display yesterday afternoon on several occasions. The men were right there before the runner and the runner got under their shelter. And that makes gains.

The South Carolina lads, lighter than the Jackets, with but few fresh men to substitute, and without the cheering services of band or fan flock, put up a really excellent game, when it is remembered that they're as green this early in the season as the Tech men themselves. Twice or three times they held Tech for downs in the shadow of their goal posts, and though they never succeeded in scoring, they put a stubborn resistance at all times. Frequently they went through the Tech line for good gains. Their work was mostly defensive, however, and here the fine punting of M. Porter counted immensely.

The game didn't develop any bright and shining stars. Langston, the right half of the visitors, was perhaps the hardest worked man on his team, and several times he was laid out for a while by attacks centered on him. Cushman of Tech, who went in the game in the third period, put Langston down and out twice within ten minutes before he was himself smashed hard and retired from the game.

Fielder's running was one of the admirable features of the Jackets' play, again and again he was hurled against the line or around the end, and nearly always he gained. He never stopped trying forward until at least two men were on his head. Morrison showed his old qualities and put up an excellent game. Mauck and Goree and Patton starred in fine form and bored through the shells from a stone gun.

Coach Heisman used pretty nearly his whole squad in the game, and there were twenty-four in uniform when the whistle blew. He seemed more anxious to try out the new ones than to run up a big score, and after the first period it was evident that South Carolina would easily be kept the under dog, so the coach could do all the experimenting he liked. In spite of this, he bowed, he stuck to straight football and did nothing fancy. But two forward passes were attempted by Tech, one going its work and the other failing.

The first touchdown was made about the middle of the first period, Goree going through center and over the line after a series of end runs and line bucks. The rest of the quarter was hard fought and ended with the ball in the center of the field and in Tech's possession.

The second period was the hardest fought of all. Twice in this period Tech forced the ball to South Carolina's ten-yard line and lost it on downs. Once came the long punts, and the visitors had to struggle back again. They could get no more in this period.

In the fourth quarter, with the visitors well within their territory, Goree added touchdown through the line, and missed kicked goal. The final score here was 20 to 0.

The third-degree football experts who were on the sidelines throughout the game found it hard to get a line on the Jackets. Much of what they showed up better than at this time last season, but would need a lot of whipping into shape before it could be called a team.

The line-up:

| SOUTH CAROLINA. | | TECH. |

Chattanooga 16, Mercer 0

MACON, Ga., Oct. 3.—By rushing their opponents off their feet from the first, University of Chattanooga players defeated Mercer this afternoon in the first college game of the season by 16 to 0. Chattanooga scored thirteen points in the first period and three from a place kick in the fourth.

Michigan Won

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 3.—The University of Michigan football eleven overwhelmed Case today 69 to 0. Case's defense was extremely weak. Many times the Michigan backs crashed through the line for gains of 25 and 30 yards.

Princeton Bests Bucknell Squad

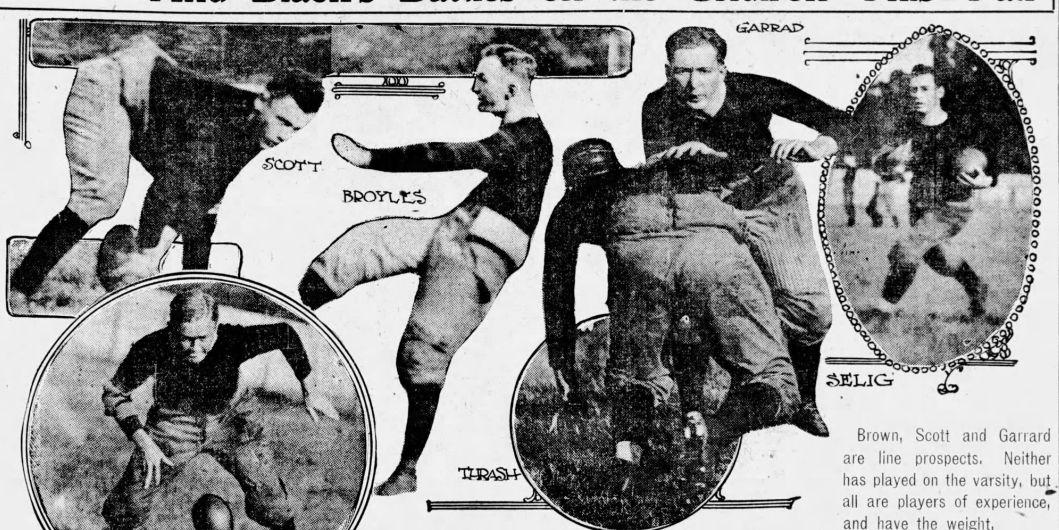
PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 3.—Bucknell was defeated by Princeton here today 16 to 0. The visitors proved unexpectedly strong. Only in the fourth quarter, when she carried the ball over for a touchdown in four plays from the forty-yard line, did Princeton show a semblance of expected form. Bucknell in the final period worked four passes in succession for a total of fifty yards, but lost the ball on the fifth pass when it crossed the goal.

These Football Warriors Will Help Fight the Red And Black's Battles on the Gridiron This Fall



Selig, Broyles and Logan are expected to earn places in the backfield. They will help offset the loss of the brilliant Bob McWhorter. Thrash is an end candidate.

Brown, Scott and Garrard are line prospects. Neither has played on the varsity, but all are players of experience, and have the weight.

Druid Hills Club to Stage Invitation Golf Tourney

October 16 Named as Opening Date for Qualifying Round, Event Will Afford Opportunity for Settling City Title—Large Field Expected—Program of Tourney

It has remained for the Druid Hills Golf club to pull the feature golfing event of the Atlanta season. This event will be in the nature of an invitation tournament, to which all golfers of Atlanta are invited. Members of the Druid Hills, Capital City, Atlanta Athletic and Ansley Park clubs are cordially invited to enter this tournament, and doubtless the largest field that ever teed off for a golfing event in Atlanta will accept this invitation.

This tournament will practically settle the city golfing championship. There are many local players who belong to more than one club but others belong to only one, and play over only one course. This tournament is expected to bring practically all of these together, and the matches resulting should prove the most interesting ever held in the city.

This tournament will serve a further purpose of lining up the local golfing talent for the southern championship tourney which will be held next spring. Golf is being as rapidly developed here in Atlanta as in any other southern city, and there are several local players who should carry good chances of proving very prominent figures in the next championship contest of Dixie.

Georgia Trims Citadel In Hard Fought Battle

BY INNIS BROWN

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 3.—The huskies who are to represent Georgia on the gridiron this fall drew their first S. I. A. A. assignment of the season this afternoon, when they hooked up with the cadets from the Citadel of Charleston, the Red and Black was victor by a count of 13 to 0. Georgia counted one touchdown in the second quarter, and another in the fourth. No goal was kicked after the first score.

The game may be offered as a source of gratification to Georgia supporters in some respects, and rather as a discouragement in others. It showed that Coach Cunningham has a good big bunch of husky young men, who are thoroughly serious, and very anxious to play football as it should be played. It proved conclusively that they have plenty of grit, and are ready and willing to do any amount of work required in order to round out a powerful machine.

On the other hand, it showed that this same bunch with a few exceptions is as green as the proverbial gourd. Taking Henderson out of the line, the forward works of the Red and Black squad looked bad at times. In spite of the fact that the bunch of men used were working as dilligently as beavers, their efforts lacked results for the very simple reason that they were unskilled in the way their tasks should be performed. Frequently the somewhat lighter, but more experienced line of the Charlestonians got the charge on them, and hooked them up in a manner which would have been impossible had the boys been thoroughly on to their jobs.

But in considering the showing which the Red and Black line was making against their Carolina opponents the fact should be borne in mind that the latter came over very well coached. Furthermore they were in three fighters every inch of the way. They were full of ginger and not once during the fray did they let up. Also they were in excellent physical condition as is attested by the fact that the team played through the game with only one or two substitutions. When it is recalled that they were meeting a bunch which had something on them in weight, which was making frequent substitutions of fresh forces, and also that the game was being played on a heavy soggy field, their stamina was wonderful.

The condition of the field made fast snappy play very difficult. Frequently players of both sides would break into an opening, either running from their position, or handling punts only to slip, and fall with absolutely no interference from the opposing forces. Ordinarily wet grounds are supposed to militate against the chances of the little fellows more seriously than against the heavier ones, and this was possibly true of the Cadets. They worked a few open plays, and attempted several forward passes, only one of which went through. However, on several other attempts, the receiver of the pass grabbed the ball all right, only to fumble it, because of its slippery surface.

Georgia made but little use of the forward pass, no doubt because the ball was so slippery that its use was extremely hazardous. They possibly figured that Citadel could not score on straight football, and the opportunities which a stray forward pass might afford the visitors to score, would more than offset the strength which a successful one now and then would add to their general attack. The wet grounds also detracted perceptibly from the work of the lighter backs including Selig, Dorsey, and one or two of the others, who were used at various periods of the game.

The most effective and pleasing feature of the Georgia attack was introduced in the later stages of the game, when a set of series plays were brought into use. This style of attack could be worked more rapidly than straight signal plays and it proved the most effective attack offered by the Georgians, Thompson and Ed Dorsey were the chief factors in advancing the ball in this rapid-fire attack, and they rarely failed to make material gains.

Another bright feature in the work of the Georgia team was the line plunging and crashes off tackle perpetrated by Thrash, who was working at ends, but who was pulled back frequently, and used to advance the ball. This big fellow was rather slow, but the treacherous surface of the field accounted in part for this fault. But once under way, he plowed through the Cadets for good substantial gains. Young Holtzendorf, an Atlanta boy, was worked at half during a part of the game, and gave the impression that he will prove a useful young man to have about on a dry field. He runs fast, can see an opening quickly, and never lets up. Charlie Thompson, who looks like the regular right half, did effective work in shaving past tackle, and on two or three occasions bored his way along through a mass of the opposition with good effect.

For the Carolina Cadets, the work of Captain Folger, and Weeks, the former at half and the latter at quarter was most notable. However, both of the tackles did clever work. Folger has plenty of weight, and enough experience to know how to take advantage of any opening offered him. Weeks did some very clever open field threading through between would-be tacklers.

From the showing that the Georgia team made in this game it appears that they may either develop a corking good eleven or in case of failure to get going right, they may be in for a bad season. It depends largely on how the new men pick up the game and the spirit with which they go about their task from now on until the end of the season. Billy Powell has reported and should be able to get into harness before very long. It is intimated that Captain Paddock may yet return, though nobody seems to know anything definite. Should Paddock return, and Steve Crump recover from the effects of his recent illness sufficiently to allow him to get into the game a bit later, the outlook for the Athenians will take a very decided turn for the better.

Auburn Trims Hamilton Team

Interference of Auburn Squad Proved Too Much for Inexperienced Hamilton Players

Three different teams were used, the varsity working the first and third quarters, scored seven touchdowns while the scrubs working the second and the outlaws working the last quarter scored one each.

The Auburn attack consisted mostly of forward passes several of which were successful for long gains and end runs. The interference of which was too much for Hamilton.

Arnold repeatedly tore off 30 to 40 yards around end with good interference and once got loose on a punt for what would have been a 70-yard run for touchdown, had he not slipped up.

The most successful gain by the air route was a forty yard pass from Arnold to Taylor across hte goal line.

Robinson's work at end also featured. Arnold kicked six goals out of a possible seven, several from difficult angles.

For Hamilton, the work of the tackles was prominent and Captain Hovater at lefthalf featured.

Tennessee Beats King's College

KNOXVILE, Tenn., Oct. 3.—The University of Tennessee football team defeated King college here this afternoon by the score of 35 to 3 in a game played on a very heavy, muddy field. The visitors made their points in the third quarter, when Rhodes, who was sent into the game for that purpose, dropkicked a goal from the 15-yard line. Long runs by Palmer and Thomasson, Tennessee's half backs, featured the game.

Arkansas Team Proves Worthy Foe for Vandy

Commodores Won by Rather Large Score, but Henderson-Brown Put Over Touchdown in Final Quarter, After Working Beautiful Forward Pass—Score 42 to 6

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 3.—Vanderbilt struck a worthy foe today on Dudley Field in Henderson Brown college and although the Commodores scored 42 points on the Arkansas, the latter scored a touchdown on the Commodores.

Moore, who played a star game at quarter for the Henderson Brown eleven, scored the touchdown in the fourth quarter on an end run after a forward pass for 45 yards by his team had put the ball on Vanderbilt's seven-yard line.

The final score was 42 to 6.

Vanderbilt's showing, however, was not bad in spite of the fact that the weaker team scored the unexpected touchdown.

Henderson made only three first downs, all of them in the last quarter.

Coach McGuzin tried out four full backs. Carman started the game and showed up well. Jarratt, who followed, was just as good. Putnam was then brought from guard to full and was too slow for the place, although he hit the line low and hard.

Brown, who finished the game at full back, made one of the longest runs of the game, taking forty yards through the line on a split buck in the last quarter.

Sikes at left half played a brilliant game for Vanderbilt. Around the ends he went with a force and speed that was startling. Morrison at the other half also showed well, especially on plays off tackle, picking his openings and dodging through the secondary defense in fine form.

Vanderbilt tried three forward passes and made one successfully. Sikes to Chester for twenty yards and a touchdown.

Henderson succeeded in two out of four attempts, one for forty-five yards and the other for five.

Turner, Richardson and Morrison each made a long gain for Vanderbilt on kick offs. In the line Josh Cody starred until he was removed for a substitute.

Warren and Beckleheimer also played good games at the other tackle.

| VANDERBILT. | | HENDERSON. |
|---|---|---|

Local Elevens Stage Good Game

Tech Hi played its first football game of the season yesterday afternoon at Piedmont park, winning from the strong S. V. D. eleven, 7 to 0.

The game was hotly contested from start to finish. Since it was the opening game of the season, both teams being evenly matched there were no spectacular plays to feature.

The Tech Hi backfield shows signs of much promise especially Harlan at full who made the only touchdown of the game. Curtis Martin, Vandy star end of 1912, has charge of the T. H. S squad, Vandy's noted defensive tactics were much in evidence when, with the ball on the one yard line, the S. V. D. team was unable to push it over.

| T. H. S. | | S. V. D. |
|---|---|---|
| Parks (Capt.), q. | | Sullivan, q. |

Alabama Wins From Howard

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 3.—Alabama defeated the Howard eleven on the local gridiron this afternoon by the score of 14 to 6. Howard played strong ball, but was no match for the thin red line. Practically the entire Alabama team was sent into the game, which fact accounts for the low score.

Cumberland Was Easy for Tigers

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SEWANEE, Tenn., Oct. 3.—Approximately at 3 o'clock Sewanee began amassing the one-sided score of 59 to 0 against Cumberland, a team about equal in weight. The first touchdown came after only three and a half minutes playing, when Tolley carried the ball from mid field to the four yard line and Dobbins carried it over. The feature of the contest was the interference of the Sewanee back field, considering the fact that this was their first game. Only once were they held for downs, while Cumberland rarely succeeded in making first down by line plunging. After the second touchdown Cumberland received the kick and started down the field with a rush but failed to hold the pace as the Tiger line held as one man. Roulhac, Sellers, Ellerbe, Edmond and Clark, all new men, gained consistently while Tolley played usual flashy game, once catching the kick off on the fifteen yard line and running through the whole Cumberland team for a touchdown.

Giants Split With Braves

Braves Win First Contest of Double Bill 4-1 and Lose Second 1-0

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—New York divided the last double-header as well as the season's series with Boston, when it won the second game today by a score of 1 to 0 after the new champions took the first game 4 to 1. Boston bunched hits for runs in the first game and Hess was also effective in the pinches.

The second game was a brief affair, as Marquard made the only New York hit, but Crutcher forced in the only run of the game in the fourth inning when he passed four men.

Fred Tyler, a brother of George Tyler, the Boston pitcher, caught both games for Boston. Meyers had a finger smashed in the first and was forced to retire. Scores:

F. Baker Has Yet to Match Old-Time Mark

Athletic Slugger's Homers in World's Series Games Do Not Equal Stick Work Hung Up in Earlier Battles–Two Batsmen Have Hit Two Home Runs in One Game

BY ED BANG.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—Frank Baker's home runs and the havoc they created are an indelible portion of world's series history, but the Athletics' lusty third baseman has yet to make two circuit clouts in a single game. Three times has that feat been performed in the premier series.

Tip O'Neill, the game buster of Comiskey's days, touched Jim McCormick for a brace of homers in a game in the world's series of 1886. He the following year, Sam Thompson, of Detroit, one time star of the Phillies, said his bat twice against Bobby Caruthers' delivery for circuit hits. And, just to show that the ancients had nothing on the moderns, Patsy Dougherty of the Bostons, some into the summary in one of the 07 games with two such drives, one off Lever and one off Vail.

Yearly every series has its home run blows, but we shall live a long time before we see eleven homers in a single series. That number was totaled in the nine games played by New York and Chicago in 1906. Orator O'Rourke and Jerry Richardson made two each, while Jim Collins, Pop Corkhill, Tom Burns, Jack Crane, Bill Brown, Mike Tiernan and Dave Foutz made one each.

ISBELL'S FOUR DOUBLES.

Frank Isbell's four doubles in a single game in 1908 constitute a record that remains unbroken. Those smashers served to get Frank in the very select list of two swingers who in a single world's series totaled four safeties. And so limited is this list that we may well be amazed. Counting eighteen players to a game, we find that 2,500 men in round numbers have had an opportunity to make four hits. Yet the record shows that more than 99 per cent of these opportunities went to waste, for only eighteen men are in the list. And two series, those of 1907 and 1897, contributed seven of that number.

Childs, of Cleveland, and Hamilton, of Boston, are the only men who hit safely four times in four turns at bat. In every other instance where a player made four hits, he was charged with at least five times at bat. The really famous record of the lot, however, is held by Huchey Jennings, now pilot of the Tigers. Batting against Nichols and Lewis in the first game of the 1897 series, Hughey visited the plate six times and smashed the ball into unoccupied territory five separate times, and two of the blows were doubles. Half of Tommy Leach's four hits in one of the 1902 games were triples, while Heinie Joe Corbett's four safeties, made in one of the 1907 games, included two singles, one double and one home run.

BATTING TELLS TALE.

That victories lurk in batters' weapons was never better illustrated than in team batting figures. Eliminating the games of 1885 and 1890, and the series of 1887 in which Detroit and St. Louis batted exactly even (.272), history relates that sixteen out of nineteen series the world's honors were won by the aggregation best skilled in club swinging. The exceptional cases in which the lighter hitting team won were those of the White Sox in 1906, Pittsburg in 1909 and Boston in 1912, and in these cases only once was the loser's batting notably better than the lighter hitting winners. That was when New York batted .270 to Boston's .220 in 1912. The .197 average of the White Sox was the lowest ever scored by a winning team, while the .265 average of Boston in 1897 was the highest ever scored by a loser.

When St. Louis made 18 runs off Thomas and Hatfield of New York in 1885, a record for single-game scoring was set that never has been equaled. The greatest number of runs in recent years was 15, made by the Athletics off Ames, Wiltse and Marquard in 1911. Nine have 20 hits been made in a single game—Hinke and Gleason, of Baltimore in 1894, and Nichols and Lowe, of Boston in 1897, were the sufferers, while New York and Baltimore respectively, were the clouters. The heaviest recent record was 16 hits, made by New York off Wood and Hall of Boston in 1912.

WARD SCORED MOST.

John Wards of the New Yorks, now business manager of the Brookfeds, scored 15 times in the nine games of the 1889 series, averaging 1.67 runs per game. Joe Kelley of Baltimore, scored seven times in four games in 1897, averaging 1.75 runs per game, and this is the best of all records. In recent years six runs in five games ranks as the best performances. Murphy and Baker of the Athletics turning this trick in 1910. Baker also scored seven runs in six games in 1911. Bresnahan scored eight runs in eight games in 1905 and Leach tallied eight runs in seven games in 1909.

World's series base runners have two marks to aim at in the team record of New York and the individual record of Billy Latham. In the 1889 series with Brooklyn the Giants pilfered 54 bases averaging 2.77 per game. The best record is the average of 2.57, made by Chicago in 1907 and repeated by Pittsburg in 1909. Individual honors since 1900 give the palm to Slagle and Hooper jointly—six stolen bases in seven games. But John Ward's 19 thefts in nine games in 1889 average the record is not the highest mark. Away back in 1887, Arlie Latham picked off 17 stolen bases in 15 games, averaging 1.13 per game, and that record may forever remain unbroken.

Oklahoma Squad Wins Initial Game

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 3.—Making great gains with the forward pass and plunging through its opponents' line almost at will, the University of Oklahoma football team won the first game of the season here Friday from Kingfisher college, by the score of 67 to 0.

THE ANORIGINE'S TASTE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Jim Thorpe is the only Indian in the big league who is not a battery man. Meyers is a catcher, whereas Bender, Tincup, Johnson and Bluejacket are all pitchers. It appears that the taste of the aborigine runs strongly to the mound and the constant duties it entails.

Has-Beens Find Come-Back Stuff Easy This Year

Large Number of Players Who Were Thought to be Through are Having Good Season—Pitchers, Infielders and Outfielders, All Included in List of Come-backs

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—This has been a great year for the old-timers as well as for the youngsters in the major leagues.

Have you noticed in the scores how some of those fellows for whom we were mourning and who, we thought were all done and ready to go back to the blacksmith shop are holding their own? Just look them over and see what the supposed "dead ones" are doing.

The latest addition to the ranks attracted my attention to it and it is surprising to see how the managers, when their raw talent is blowing up, when the phenoms of May and June are beginning to wear and the pitchers are discovering what they can and what they cannot hit, send and get the old boys back?

This latest is Bob Spade. Spade was a grand old catcher with a bum club. He was so good that the Chicago club offered $20,000 in real money for him, and it was refused by Cincinnati.

Then his arm went wrong and he dropped out. It seems he was done. But a week or so ago Joe Tinker, who was in danger of losing the Fed league pennant because of his pitching staff was crippled, grabbed Spade. He says his arm is restored, and if it is he is going to clip figures off those batting averages like Rockefeller clips coupons.

George Stallings looked all over the world for an outfielder and when he had tried most of them he seized upon Josh Devore who was cast adrift by the Giants as done for. Chance saw his mistake and rescued Birdie Cree from Baltimore and Cree came back seemingly as good as ever. McGraw is carrying around a regular baseball G. A. R.—Mike Donlin, Cy Seymour, and a bunch of other vets. He clung to Bob Bescher when they said he was done, and Bob doesn't seem to have much trouble holding the place with the younger ones.

Beals Becker, chased from club to club, is always there when needed. Clark Griffith had to have an outfielder, and he sent scouts scurrying all over the country, then located Mike Mitchell and he jumped in and is going magnificently.

Mike is an odd player in that way, a change of clubs seems to make him a top-notcher a little while and he has joined Jack Lelivelt, Jack Knight and Becker in the Wanderlust club. Stallings felt his team was wabbling at third, and he corralled Smith, who was canned by Brooklyn and Smith jumped right in and made good.

Leon Ames, thought to be all through in New York, is going great guns for the Reds, and Daniels, who was counted out, has come back in fine style. When Cincinnati declared Dick Hoblitzel all through, Boston's Red Sox took him and he came near making a championship team. Charlie Mullin, pronounced unfit for the White Sox, is making the best first baseman Chance has had in New York.

Kirke, pronounced unfit by the Boston Braves, looks good in Cleveland's outfield. Cleveland after trying out a squad of youngsters had to fall back on Lajoie and Tuck Turner. The Federal league is filled with players who were pronounced ready for the discard, or who had been discarded as worthless. Russ Ford and Davy Jones, Artie Hofman, Bates, Dolan, Zwilling, Ted Easterly, Laporte, Olin Crandall, Mordecai Brown—a host of them and all playing good ball, well up to major leage form.

Maxwell Joins Cotton Buyers

Detroit Motor Corporation Will Buy 2,000 Bales of Distressed Cotton

"Purchase of approximately two thousand bales of distress cotton by the Maxwell Motor corporation, is but another instance of co-operation with the dealer and assistance given, when it is needed, by Walter E. Flanders and his associates."

"J. P. Headley, district manager of the Maxwell company in the south, just returned from the Detroit factories, points to the fact that this move is only a furtherance of the long established Flanders policy.

"Maxwell is ever striving to further cement the harmonious and brotherly spirit that has always existed between factory, dealer and owner," says Headley. It is the belief of Mr. Flanders that an organization of this nature, together with a worthy product is the only means toward successful business operations.

"There are no strings tied to the plan of the Maxwell company in its cotton purchase. Mr. Flanders simply sent wires out to every Maxwell dealer in the southeast—"Buy a bale of distress cotton at 10c a pound and charge to factory." There is not part payment or offer attached, neither is there a proposition to accept cotton on the purchase price of an automoffe.

"The Maxwell company is absolutely shipping $100,000 into the south and accepting cotton in exchange. It is not philanthropy, but simply a business plan, following out the Flanders policy of dealer and owner co-operation."

Sport Notes

The experts declare Chick Evans is the finest golfer in the world from the tee up to the green. Thereupon we claim to be the best in the world from the eighteenth hole to the nineteenth.

We hope that while the baseball powers are legislating the emery out of the ball they'll rule against sand paper necks.

Replying to several score offers to bet we are wrong hereby announce that we never bet on baseball; first, because we can't afford to; second, because no man can bet one way and be unprejudiced.

"I have signed the best pitcher in America, but can't mention his name just now," announced President Weeghman, of the Chicago Feds, and thereupon nineteen pitchers entered indignant denials that they had signed with Chicago.

Harvard Won't Build Alone on Capt. Brickley

Coach Haughton Appreciates Great Value of His Star Back, But Realizes Danger of One-Man Offense–Mahan and Hardwick Will Be Given Lots of Work

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. — The biggest consignment of Eastern football interest is arranged around three football teams—Yale, Princeton and Harvard. Harvard dearing its so called champion-ship, and the Tigers and Bulldogs pointing in that direction, with old stings to be cured that can be wiped out with victory alone.

For this reason it is safe to say that the three biggest men in football in this section are the captains, Brickley, of Harvard; Ballin, of Princeton, and Talbot, of Yale. On them "fandom's" telescope is turned.

Brickley more particularly than the other two is basking in the limelight, for without its star field goal kicker Harvard really has no greater chance of continuing along the tituar path than have Princeton and Yale. If he enters the big games of the season in form Harvard must be credited with having about twenty-five yards the advantage, for any time the team gets within that distance of its opponent's goal Brickley is within striking distance. The crimson has this much of a bulge unless its rivals can develop a kicker of equal ability, and Brickley are not to be found scatteret promiscuously around gridirons.

Other Hopes.

In spite of the popular belief that Percy Haughton, head coach of the Cambridge outfit, will devote his time to building a team around Brickley the chief mentor of the crimson contingent intends doing no such thing. The coach is too old a hand at the game to take the chances of constructing a scoring machine with one man as the principal cog. Too many times in the past the principal cog has been injured on the eve of important battles and as a result the machines have been hopelessly stranded.

Haughton welcomes the presence of Brickley as a poker player welcomes a third ace. Brickley is a scoring medium that can be counted upon, but Haughton realizes the necessity of having other mediums. He also realizes that a good offensive team does not always make a good defensive team and that one without the other is an unbalanced organization that is apt to be tipped on its weak side at any time.

From this reason Harvard is going about its early season work just as if Brickley was not present. Haughton seeks a good line to support his already strong backfield in Mahan, Logan and Brickley.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT

In spite of the fact that Harvard's losses were somewhat heavy—inasmuch as Milholland, end; Gardiner, tackle; Storer, Hitchcock and Gilman, tackles; O'Brien and Dana, ends; Mills, guard; Freedley, quarter back, and Armory, Bowditch and Willetts, backs, have been lost—the prospects of the eleven are bright.

Some excellent materials is available from last year's freshman team, including Harte, end; Sweetser, who played tackle and was captain; Berman, guard, and Wilcox, who is expected to act as substitute to Logan at quarter back.

Then there are veterans of previous squads in Hardwick and P. B. Withington, tackles; Weston, W. Mittendorf and Underwood, guards. On the whole Haughton has no chance to complain and the work of Princeton and Yale is certainly cut out for them if they are to take the measure of the Crimson before another season has slid into gridiron annals.

Indian Models Are Inspected

The Hendee Manufacturing company, makers of Indian Motorcycles has called in to the factory at Springfield, Mass., its entire staff of traveling men to inspect the 1915 models and prepare for the fall sales campaign. From the local branch at 457 Peachtree street. T. C. Butler, Jr., who covers the eastern gulf territory, and O. V. Atwood, the South Atlantic representative, left on the first for a two weeks' stay.

Although there has been widespread inquiry regarding the new models of the Indian line, the company has not yet made any announcement concerning them. The local branch explains this by the fact that the Indian machines are always at the head of the field in mechanical construction and equipment and yearly bring out new features that are closely guarded in order that competitors may not profit by them. Also since the Hendee Manufacturing company is the largest producer of motorcycles in the world, it is in a position to force the prices on its product to the lowest possible figure, and these too are kept under cover until the opening of the Chicago Motorcycle show.

With the opening of the show on October 10, a full announcement of the 1915 Indians will be made to the Atlanta motorcycle fans. Although Manager Johnson refuses to let any hints escape at the present time, he says that the new features will be as interesting and far reaching, in effect as those in previous years, when the Indian introduced the spring frame, foot boards, double control brake and electric equipment to the motorcycle field.

In spite of the fact that no announcement has been made nor sales solicited the Atlanta branch has already booked a large number of orders both in the citr retail department and in the agency districts. The prospects for a large fall season's business are unusually bright, in spite of the general financial depression.

Holland and Collier Enter Auto Business

Hundreds of fans and other friends of Harry Holland and Henry Collier, stars of the Cracker club, will be interested to know that they have entered partnership in the automobile industry.

A week from Monday they will open shop on JaJmes street at the Folsom garage as sole agents in Atlanta for the Regal car, a machine well known for its style and service.

Both Holland and Collier are native sons of Atlanta. Holland was captain and third-sacker at the Georgia Tech for four years, while Collier is also an ex-Tech star. Both players were with the Atlanta team nearly the whole season, Collier a dependence of the hurling staff and Holland utility man.

NELSON WAS EASILY BEST OF LIGHTWEIGHTS---NOLAN

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Battling Nelson at his best could sift through the present-day light-weight boxers like sand through a sieve, according to Billy Nolan, former manager of Nelson, Jack O'Brien, Abe Attell and Willie Ritchie.

Nolan, who was a recent visitor in Chicago, still retains a place in his keart for Battling Nelson. True, Nelson and Nolan have not been on friendly terms for years, but, believing in all that is fair, Billy never loses an opportunity to boost the one-time invincible Dane.

"You can take all of your light-weight title contenders, as well as the champion himself, and the composite would not commence to bring out another Battling Nelson," declared Nolan. "When I look back to those good old days, when the Durable Dane was wiping the world of light-weights off the map, I can feel my blood grow hot. Just to think of the wonderful endurance and most wonderful fighting powers of that little sends a quiver of delight through my brain. He was, without any doubt, the very greatest fighter the world has ever known or will know.

"Nelson was not proficient in the line of scientific boxing—that I will readily admit. But he was a fighter worth his weight in gold and, a stancher heart never beat in the bosom of any man. He never knew what the word 'quit' meant, and to this day he would willingly step into a ring and stand up until beaten into insensibility rather than dash a sign of defeat.

"And, best of all, Bat was not a bluffer. He never entered a ring laboring under false belief. Once I made a match for him he would decide immediately that he could beat his opponent, and there was no shadow of doubt in his mind. He never entered a ring in the hope of winning. He knew he was going to win, and even to the last gameness remained although robbed of the old rippling attack, he was courageous and willing to take any amount of punishment, believing that the famous Nelson knockout would be forthcoming.

"I do not hesitate in saying that in my opinion Bat Nelson at his best could clean u all of the present-day lightweights without a reverse, and that includes Welsh, Ritchie, Wolgast, White and Britton. Wolgast's style is pretty much the same as the famous Battling Nelson's style, although not quite as good at his best was not a Bat Nelson. The ring warriors of today may have just as much endurance, but I have failed to see this demonstrated. Also, I have yet to see a boy who can assimilate as much punishment and then step in and put his opponent away. No, sir; the world never again will see a Battling Nelson ringman, and that's some statement to make."

DODGE BROTHERS

Detroit

have manufactured as many as 225,000 sets of motor car parts a year. This means millions of pieces, large and small. They have established costs on every piece, every part, and every operation.

They know, to the fraction of a cent, the most and the best it is possible to get out of men, material, and machinery.

With this exceptional experience and equipment, Dodge Brothers should be able to show in the motor car they will market this Fall, how much it is possible to give.

Collins and Evers Win Trophy

Bison Federal Manager Denies Wingo's Signed

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Manager Dick Carroll, of the Buffalo Federals, today denied that any contract had been signed with Catcher Wingo, of the St. Louis National league. Carroll admitted, however, that negotiations with Wingo were pending.

HUDSON Six-40

This Year $1,550 F.O.B. Detroit

End Over-Tax

In Price, Size, Weight and Up-Keep

The new HUDSON Six-40 is as large a car as there is any real reason for having. The wheel-base is 123 inches. There are seats for seven, with the two which disappear. There is ample room for seven.

Over-weight means cheap materials or out-of-date designing. It adds immensely to tire cost, but nothing to staunchness. HUDSON engineers, in this new Six-40, have cut out 1,000 pounds of excess—the weight of a car-full of people. Yet there never was a sturdier car.

Heavy operative cost means over-weight combined with an old-type motor. In the HUDSON Six-40, a new-type motor reduces this 30 per cent.

Rebel at Over-Price

This new HUDSON Six-40—today's finest example of a quality Six—sells for $1,550, f. o. b. Detroit. Three years ago the lowest-priced Six cost twice that.

See what this HUDSON price buys—what fine engineering, what beauty, what comfort, what up-to-date equipment. No car of the new season offers greater attractions.

And this is Howard E. Coffin's best—the finest HUDSON product. The Hudson corps of 48 engineers has spent four years in perfecting it. They have added 31 refinements in this model for 1915.

This we consider the model car. All the advances in motor cars are tending toward these standards. It means lightness, economy; modest, but ample size and power. It means new beauty, new comfort, new convenience.

Come see it, if only to keep in touch with the changing ideals in cars.

Why We Bought This Ton of Cotton

"When the cotton grower has prosperity, we have prosperity, and to assist the cotton grower to obtain a fair and reasonable price for his crop, we have purchased from the planter in every community where we sell goods, a ton, of distressed cotton at 10c per pound, and to further protect the price of cotton we are carrying in Georgia banks over one-half million dollars in cash."

Big Series Not Likely to Beat Record Figures

Giants and Red Sox Set Record in 1912 With 251,901 Paid Admissions—Park Capacities at Boston and Philadelphia Will Not Seat More This Year

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Baseball statisticians are at present endeavoring to forecast the probable attendance at the coming world's series between the Philadelphia Athletics and the Boston Braves. It is predicted that should the series, which begins this week, prove closely contested and extend into six games existing records will be in danger of eclipse in one or more directions. Both Boston and Philadelphia have demonstrated great supporting power in past world's series, the fans flocking to the parks in enormous numbers and taxing the capacity of stands and fields to the limit permitted by local ordinances and the national commission ground rules.

The attendance at the 1913 series played between New York and Philadelphia was 151,000. The series of the previous season when New York and Boston clubs engaged in an eight game struggle before the Boston Americans finally defeated the New York Nationals set attendance figures of 251,901 which stands as the record today. It is not likely that this quarter of a million mark will be reached in the coming series since neither the Boston nor Philadelphia parks can accommodate the world's series throngs that can find seats and standing room at the New York Polo grounds. It is expected that should the Athletics and Braves battle through six games the total attendance will pass the 150,000 mark. If this proves correct the total attendance at the world's series games since 1903, when the National commission assumed charge of the annual inter-league championship, will approach close to one and one-half million since the aggregate total at present is 1,284,558.

No accurate record of the attendance during the years 1884 to 1902 is available but there were twelve series played within the period mentioned the total number of games being 80 and it has been estimated that the average attendance at these games approximated 3,000. Assuming the estimate as made by former players and officers to be correct it would add another 240,000 to the known total attendance at the series to date and bring the aggregate figures within striking distance of two million for the twenty-two series played since 1884.

Although neither Boston nor Philadelphia approach New York in the matter of record crowds in these series, both cities have for years furnished large throngs whenever the National or American league clubs were contenders for World's Championship honors. In almost all cases in recent years the size of the crowds have ben governed by the park capacities. It is for this reason that New York shows larger average attendance than the two cities that will be represented this year with 32,017 for twelve games covering the series of 1904-11-12-13. Boston shows an average of 22,389 spectators for nine games played there in the series of 1903 and 1912. Philadelphia, although figuring in four series in 1905-10-11-13, has witnessed but nine games during this period of eight year and the average attendance of fans has been 21,419 per game.

Boston's total attendance aggregates 200,968 to Philadelphia's 192,691. The largest single game record at Boston was that made in the 1912 series with New York, when the fifth game of the contest drew 34,683 paid attendance. Philadelphia's banner crowd gathered on October 17, 1910 to witness the opening game between the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago Cubs when 26,891 fans passed through the gates. The world's series record single game attendance is 38,281 made in the first game of the New York Giants-Philadelphia Athletics series of 1911.

The attendance at every series since 1903 together with the number of games played as shown in the accompanying table gives a grand average of 21,409 for the 60 games played since the Pittsburg and Boston clubs met in the initial contest.

Senator Makes Tour in Oakland

The old method of making campaign tours in a private railroad train and speaking from the rear platform is superseded bby the modern motor car.

Senator Beveridge finds he can make better time, stop at more towns and address more people by using an automobile than traveling by train.

In one instance, his party decided they could reach Mitchell from West Baden, quicker if they went by train.

They were very much surprised, however, to find the Oakland car and its driver there at the depot waiting for them.

Terrific rain storms and seas of mud have been encountred on this tour but Senator Beveridge has shown his pluck in sticking to the car and is generous in his praise for the new Overland which has stood the rigid tests of the road with success, pulling its way through many miles of mud and hills without a hitch.

Notes

Martin Delaney advises rest on Sunday; such rest as sitting in the bleachers with a sack of peanuts. Some day we shall take Martin out to the Sox bleachers on Sunday—then ask him about it.

Sportsmanship is an odd thing; for instance, no sportsman would shoot a grouse on the ground; yet it is sportsmanship to kill enemies from ambush.

FORTUNE NECESSARY TO HANDLE MAJOR BALL CLUB

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—How many fans ever stop to think about the business management of a big baseball club? The work of the players on the field is closely watched and hugely enjoyed, but the public knows little or nothing of the trials and tribulations of the men who put up the money for salaries and other heavy expenses.

Have you any idea what it costs to carry the Giants through a championship season? You have seen enormous crowds at the Polo Grounds and you believe that the owners of the club must be making big money. It is true that in past seasons the profits of the New York National league club have been large, but it is also a fact that the expenses have been tremendous.

In the first place the rent of the Polo Grounds together with the taxes amounts to $80,000. Of the sum the owners of the Yankees pay a share because of their present lease, which terminates in the fall. John McGraw alone draws a salary of nearly $30,000 for his services as manager and Christy Mathewson probably receives all of $15,000 for a season.

It is safe to say that the other men, numbering two dozen, draw a total of $60,000 from the club's coffers. The salaries of the club's officers may amount to $15,000 more, while the hiring of ushers, police, gate tenders, ticket sellers and ground keepers will consume at least $10,000 a year. The railroad and hotel bills, including the training expenses at Marlin, will amount to $20,000 at the lowest estimate. Advertising, repairs, care of the grounds, uniforms, bats, balls, gloves and incidentals will eat up $5,000 more. New players secured by draft or purchase can be put down at $10,000.

Summing up, it is safe to say that the New York club must pay out about $250,000 to provide the fans with a firstclass ball team capable of winning the National league pennant.

A pile of letters from fans, cranks and other baseball clubs, big and small, must be opened and answered every morning. Hours are spent planning to shorten railroad jumps or to obtain transportation together with hotel accommodations. Every little detail must be looked after and the clerical work in the club's offices must necessarily be large.

If the team is losing there is increased weight upon the club owners' shoulders.

Go over the clubs that have been operating in the National and American leagues from the time of their birth and you'll find that less than half a dozen have been consistent money-makers, yet the promoters keep on putting up money, hoping that some time the golden tide will turn their way.

Ebbets over in Brooklyn struggled along for a dozen years before he had money and nerve enough to begin the magnificent stadium now the home of the Superbas. But he had to call in the McKeevers to finish the plant that put the Brooklyn club half a million in debt.

Yost Strong for Place Kickers

ANN ARBOR, Mich, Oct. 3.—"Brickley's drop-kicking average is just about half that of the Michigan place-kickers for the fourteen years I have coached Michigan," said Coach Yost today, when drilling his big class of placement-booters.

"The stories of our games shows a figure of successful attempts easily double that of the Harvard stars. Brickley didn't have a respectable average until the Yale game last year and then all four of his kicks were short ones, with time enough to look at the trade-mark on the ball.

"Sweeley, Hammond, Allerdice, Conklin and Patterson were as good place-kickers as there ever were. I have had one of them on hand every year I have been here. Two of them never missed in an intercollegiate game. Of course, we don't use them often. We win our games with touchdowns, but they were there when we needed them and won games for us in pinches. No drop-kicker but Eckersal ever did anything to Michigan. I don't believe in them in a game. Although I have often and now have as good a drop-kicker as there is in the country. With a green line we may use one this year for the first time."

Brickley Has One Ambition

Captain and Star Kicker of Harvard Has Heart Set on Winning Third Straight Game From Yale

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 3.—Although this is the year of a thousand and one upsets, it is safe to announce that Captain Charles E. Brickley is not only going to be the most important man of the Harvard football team, but also one of the most talked about players of the season. Already Brickley has broken into the limelight in a most unique way. In practice the other day the Harvard leader discarded his shoes and astonished the spectators by booting the ball in his stocking feet.

Now it goes without saying that any man who can make successful drop kicks from the 25-yard line in his stocking feet is not human. That is what the opponents of Harvard have claimed for the past two seasons. However, this is the year of upsets, and there, is a "silent" man at New Haven who believes that Brickley is like the rest of humanity and that Yale will prove such humanity and that Yale will prove such clash in November.

It is not generaly known that Captain Brickley has an ambition. He does not wear it on his sleeve, as some people are said to wear their hearts. It is hidden away from the sight of the common people. Still Brickley has an ambition, and, as he is a national character, it is only right that the world should be let into the secret. Well, then, here goes. Brickley is anxious to beat Yale three games straight and crown his football carer in a manner never before known in the history of the game.

With that idea in view, Captain Brickley took mighty good care of himself during the summer. He spent his vacation in the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia and returned to Cambridge in this old-time form. During the summer the Harvard captain laid off on hard training and did only general work, as a consequence he came back to his team in Everett weighing 1.. pounds, which is a low mark for him.

Captain Brickley is not a verbose young man, but he makes no secret of his hope that Harvard will run clean through this year's schedule without the loss of a game.

Cotton Buying Aids Auto Sales

Country-wide interest in the "buy-a-bale-of-cotton" movement launched by southern business men in an effort to move the huge cotton crop of the south, is bound to react in favor of automobile sales, according to J. H. Gordon, Atlanta representative for Dodge Brothers, who has just arrived in Detroit.

"With cotton prices lower than at any time during the past twelve years, it is necessary that whatever small profits are to be made, should accrue direct to the planter," says Mr. Gordon. "This is the direct object of the 'buy-a-bale-of-cotton' idea, which is being backed with such energy by business interests in general and the automobile industry in particular.

"The south this year has a cotton crop of some 15,000,000 bales to dispose of and faces the prospect of a completely closed European market, for months to come. Europe annually takes two-thirds of America's cotton supply, but the war has effectually stopped foreign exports. The difference this makes to the cotton grower is clearly shown by a comparison of prices for this year and last. In 1913, planters were receiving about 14 1-2 cents per pound as against 8 5-8 cents per pound quoted by Atlanta buyers on the day I left that city.

"To relieve the situation, the newspapers and business men in the southern states, have been boosting the sale of cotton to private individuals and firms, at the rate of 10 cents per pound. This price is paid direct to the producer, and nets him $50 per bale, thus eliminating the cotton brokers and mill buyer's profit on the transaction. Thousands of planters in the south found themselves well stocked with cotton at the beginning of the European war, but without a dollar for immediate necessities. It was to relieve this situation that the private sale of cotton was encouraged and is being carried forward so successfully.

"No class of business men have responded more promptly than the automobile dealers in the southern cities. Every salesroom has its bale or bales of cotton in the window, and many dealers are taking cotton in part payment for cars. In addition, a great majority of motor car manufacturers are buying great quantities direct, and this all serves to strengthen the standing of the automobile men with their largest class of purchasers, the men who grow the cotton.

"If the present low price of cotton results in nothing else, it has taught the planters a most valuable lesson in economics. Heretofore, the owners of big tracts of land have devoted every available acre to the raising of cotton. Excepting rare instances, the planter buys his entire food supply from outside sources, depending on the profitable sale of cotton to pay his bills. If more of them had set aside a small part of their property for raising cattle, wheat or vegetables, they would now be in a position to sit back and wait for the raise in cotton prices, which is bound to come sooner or later."

Despite the present trend of conditions in the south, Mr. Gordon states that automobile dealers are preparing for a big selling season, many having increased their orders for 1915 cars. He reports all territory assigned to him closed up on the sales rights for the new car which Dodge Brothers will bring out this fall.

Goodrich Tires Stand Hard Test

"A remarkable service record has been established by Goodrich Safety Tread Tires at Washington, D. C.," according to R. J. Murphy, local manager for the B. F. Goodrich company, Akron, O.

"The Terminal Taxicab Company., Inc., of Washington," says Mr. Murphy, "purchased twenty-one 34x4 inch Goodrich Safety Tread tires last January, and kept complete records on service delivered by these tires.

"Now, a report of detailed figures shows that these twenty-one tires had averaged 5,707.9 miles up to and including June 16, and that nine o fthem at that time were still in service and delivering even greater mileage than this high average.

"The continuous starting and stopping of a taxicab during the day's activity is the hardest and roughest service to which a tire can be subjected. In fact, the taxicab test is supreme test for any tire and the showing made by Goodrich Safety Treads in this severe day-to-day grind is further proof of the wonderful mileage and service delivered by the Safety Tread construction.

"It is the five-bars and cross-tie—tough rubber fingers which grip the road at the same time that they deliver extra wear—which are accountable for Goodrich Safety Tread extra mileage, as shown at Washington."

A New Tire Day

Begins When Men Adopt No-Rim-Cuts

400,000 Know It

400,000 men—at least—have proved out and adopted Goodyear tires. They find in them a quality supreme and unvarying. They find safety and sturdiness, less trouble, more mileage.

No rim-cuts. A way we control prevents them.

Less tread risk reduced by 60 per cent, by a patent method we alone employ.

Less punctures—less wear—because of our double-thick, very tough All-Weather tread.

In those four ways—combating your four chief tire troubles—No-Rim-Cuts excel every other tire. Their resistless appeal will win you soon or late.

When it does, it will mean tire comfort, tire security which you never can get without them. Ask any tire user.

The Winter Tire

For winter use get All-Weather treads. When you know them you will use them all the year around.

They are tough and double-thick. They are flat and regular, so they run like plain treads. Their grips are sharp and resistless, and so deep that they last thousands of miles.

Other anti-skids cost more—some one-third more—than these. But a glance will tell you that All-Weather treads excel them. And every test will prove it.

Goodyear tires have won more users than any other tire that's built. They won them by service, such as you desire. Give them—for your own sake—a chance to win you.

All Games Will Be Played on A. L. Grounds

Despite Fact That Both Leagues Are Represented in Big Series, American League Parks Will Be Used in Both Cities — Boston National Grounds Inadequate

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—A peculiar and interesting angle of the world's series of 1914 is the fact that although the American and National league pennant winners are the contending teams, all the games will be played in American league parks.

Fenway park, scene of the final game of the memorable world series between the Boston Red Sox and the New York Giants in 1912, will again be the Boston center of the world championship activities. Although an American league park, it will be used as the home grounds of the Boston Nationals through the courtesy of President Joseph J. Lannin, of the local American league club. It will be the first time in the history of the world title contests that all the games of a series were played on American league grounds.

The little band box park at Walpole street, which has been the home of Boston Nationals for many years, with seating arrangements stretched to the utmost of available space, could not possibly accommodate more than 22,000 persons, as it is a relic of the baseball of other days, when crowds were counted great at 15,000.

The limited seating capacity was no bar to an objection to the use of the old grounds in the great series than was the limited confines of the playing field. Both left and right fields are much shorter from home plate than in modern parks, and short fences would be shining marks for balls sent flying from the bat driven lots of a Frank Baker, an Eddie Collins or a Rube Oldring. This fact did not figure in the decision of President James E. Gaffney to accept the offer of President Lannin, but it was undoubtedly a matter of satisfaction to Boston pitchers that the bombarding Athletic batsmen were not this to be assisted. Home runs in the far reaches of Fenway park are rarities, and under the conditions prevailing in a world series are improbable.

The same arrangements have been made at Fenway park for this year's games as prevailed two years ago. Bleachers have been erected in left field, along the embankment known to American league admirers of Lewis, their left fielder, as "Duffy's Cliff." A fence has been stretched along the entire outfield, about fifteen yards in front of the center field bleachers. Additional boxes have been constructed in front of the horseshoe lineup of the grand stand front. Seats will thus be provided for 2,500 spectators and there will be standing room for from 2,000 to 5,000 additional, the number limited by rules against encroachment on a certain area of playing space, and against standing room in the grand stand.

It is practically certain that the game in Boston will produce a new local record for world series crowds. The present mark is 35,561, which was the paid attendance at the fifth game of the series of two years ago. The restriction as to standing room and against encroachment on the playing field, and the impossibility of adding greatly to the seating arrangements alone will prevent, it is believed, the accommodation of a crowd greater than the 38,281 which saw the first of the games in the New York-Philadelphia series of 1911 at the Polo grounds.

That greater crowds are within the possibilities of the baseball enthusiasm in Boston, however, was amply shown on Labor day, when 74,162 paid admissions to two games in which the Giants opposed the Braves. The afternoon game alone drew 41,000 persons.

Athletics Top Braves in Age by Nearly Two Years

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—When the Philadelphia Athletics and the Boston Braves go into action in the twenty-third series for the world's championship baseball honors the diamond campaign will be fought out by teams which represent the old and the new in the national sport. Although the average age of the leading players of the two combinations is not widely separated the Athletic machine is so famous and its success so striking that it appears old by comparison with the squad that George Stallings whipped in shape in midsummer and thus won a pennant for Boston. Taking twenty-odd players of the two teams as a basis it will be found that the average age of the Athletics is 26 1-2 years and the Braves 24 3-4 years.

While less than two years in average age separates the teams the extremes are more marked in the Athletics than the Braves. Plank, Bender, Coombs, Oldring, Lapp and Thomas, are all past thirty but the majority of those who will figure in the daily line up are several years under this age. The three youngest players in the squad are the pitchers, Bush, Pennock and Wyckoff. The American league representatives have the advantage in years of baseball experience for the Philadelphia club players average fully a year more in time spent upon the professional than the Boston players. The Braves' average is approximately five years with Johnny Evers heading the list with twelve years of play. The point of professional service Plank leads the Athletics with thirteen years of baseball play and experience at his back. Bender is but one year behind and several others just fall short of double figures in their diamond career. As a result the Athletics' average is six years notwithstanding the fact that a number of comparative youngsters are marshalled under the Philadelphia flag.

The team which will act as the standard bearer of the National league, is an interesting combination of the youth and the age of the diamond. In some cases extremes have been blended by Manager Stallings in artful manner to make of the Braves a winning team. This fact is illustrated in two notable cases. Principal figures in the realms of attack and defense which enabled the Braves to win to the front of the stirring race in the National league, Johnny Evers, veteran of nearly 2,000 games, a figure prominent in the recent history of the sport, has rocked i neffective collaboration about second base with "Rabbit" Maranville, barely more than a boy, playing his second season with a major league club. The same combination of old and young is found in the records of the men of the outfield, and of the pitching staff. These figures show the oldest member of the team to be Otto Hess, with 33 years behind him. Almost a boy, Paul Strand at 19 years is the baby of the team.

The statistics of the players who are likely to participate in the world's series of 1914 are as follows:

Disaster Does Not Discourage Charles Herzog

Hard Luck and Bad Break Made Team a Joke This Year, but Manager Rucker Will Hold Job—Says Watch Reds Show 'Em Something Next Season

CINCINNATI, Oct. 3.—In spite of the fact that the Cincinnati Reds established a new major league baseball record for consecutive games lost by losing nineteen in a row, "Charley" Herzog is sure of his job as manager of the club next year. He has not yet been tendered a contract, but "Garry" Herrmann, the club's president, has said the document will be forthcoming just as soon as the regular season closes.

Starting the season with a rush that bid fair to keep the Reds within hailing distance of the pennant throughout the campaign, the team suddenly broke and toppled downward with an appalling headlong slide. From a position as a contender for the lead it slid into the cellar, a fall second only to that memorable glide taken by the Pittsburg Pirates.

But for the first time in many years the famous Cincinnati board of directors saw behind the wiry form of Herzog and realized that it was not his fault that the team fell down. It realized that Herzog had tackled an almost hopeless job when he was made manager last winter. He did not have any particularly good material to work with, but until Armando Marsans quit the team flat he had the club well up in the fight.

When the Cuban outfielder decided to cast his lot with the Federal league, it made a big hole in both the offensive and defensive power of the team—a hole that has not been filled. It was the turning point, and from that time the Reds began their descent in the National league standing.

Herzog said recently: "Cincinnati has had a bad year, but I am far from being discouraged. I know it is old stuff to say wait until next year, but that is the only thing I can say now. I feel sure that 1915 will tell a different story. Keep your eye on the Reds once the next campaign begins."

The longest run of consecutive defeats on record in the National league is a streak of twenty-three, suffered by the Pittsburg club in 1890, when the team had been riddled by the action of nearly of all of its best players in jumping to the Players' league. The high water mark in the American league is twenty games lost in a row, established by the Boston Red Sox in 1906, and the record for all time in any major league is twenty-six defeats in a row, hung up by Louisville in the American association in 1889.

Chandler Pays Big Dividend

A special dividend of 10 per cent on the common stock of the Chandler Motor Car company, the second common stock dividend paid within ninety days, was declared at the meeting of directors recently, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 1 3-4 per cent on the preferred stock. Besides the dividends already declared, the company increased its surplus out of earnings to an amount equal to its original cash capital.

Although the company has been manufacturing Chandler cars for less than two years, the report of the treasurer as of September 1 indicated a remarkably successful business.

The sales manager's report indicated a letup in business early in August at the beginning of the foreign war, but since that time sales have shown a healthy increase, and the factory is now running on full production, with reports from all sections of prospects for a large fall business.

Catcher Smith Makes Hit With New York Fans

Rooky, Bought From Savannah, Gives Promise of Making Good With Giants, Is Fast on His Feet, and Can Show Speed on Bases—Has Confidence, Too

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—When the sounds of heavy firing that will undoubtedly be heard around the Giant headquarters during the coming winter and early spring have subsided, it is very probable that the Giants will have a backstop at work of the modern variety. A man who can run the bases as well or better than the average infielder or outfielder, as well as throw and hit. He is even now on the Giant bench, in the person of Harry Smith, late star of the Savannah club, of the South Atlantic league.

It is perfectly true that the Giant failure this year has been more or less due to poor work on the part of nearly all the whole team, and that it is hardly fair to hold one or two men entirely responsible. But, nevertheless, there are four men on the team at least whose work has stood out above their fellows in point of mediocrity, and worse, to such an extent that when the cause of the failure of the McGrawites is finally written they will come in for more severe censure than their teammates. Among them must undoubtedly be listed Chief Meyers.

However, this is not to be the story so much of the failure of Meyers as of the coming of Smith. The past is done and gone. The future lies before. Also, the king is dead—long live the king!

Harry Smith is a Baltimore boy and about twenty-four years young. He doesn't come up to the big show with any $11,660 or 18,000 tag on him, but does come up with the indorsement of Dick Kinsella, probably the greatest baseball scout in the business. Kinsella declares that he is the best ball player that played south of Washington this season.

Smith began his career four years ago in the Virginia league, played a season with Winston-Salem in the Carolina association, quit the game for a year and then joined the Savannah club, of the South Atlantic circuit. He caught in 117 games this season for that club, led the league in batting with a mark of .332 and stole 35 bases. Furthermore he was awarded a medal valued at $500 for being voted the most valuable player in the entire league by the sporting writers of the various cities.

He is one of those aggressive confident players that make such a hit with McGraw. He is firmly though not offensively conscious of his ability. He is absolutely certain he will make good.

Had Smith hit a home run, or even singled on his first appearance as a Giant the other day, we would not be over-confident of his success. But making his debut before some 20,000 critical followers of the pastime, he fanned. What else would a normal rookie do under the circumstances?

"Were you nervous?" we asked him yesterday, referring to his fanning. "Not a bit," he observed. "Only hope I get sent in again. You see, Vaughn simply outguessed me. He had me two and nothing. Naturally I figured he would waste one. Instead, he grooved it and I fanned. That's all"

Yes, after the sounds of heavy firing having subsided the Giants are very apt to have a catcher of the Schalk-Schang variety. His name is also apt to be Harry Smith, of Baltimore.

Every Advanced Feature
But No Advance In Price

THE new Overland has one of the most advanced and most admired body designs of the season. The full sweeping stream lines are clean cut, trim, uninterrupted and perfectly proportioned. A slightly sloped hood, a perfectly rounded radiator edge and gracefully crowned fenders add both charming grace and excellent taste to this smart model.

The new Overland has a larger tonneau. You know how cramped and uncomfortable three adults usually are in the average car. There is plenty of room in the 1915 Overland—ample for three large people and enough length for the tallest.

The new Overland has the most advanced and most practical type of rear springs. They are of a new design, underslung, and much longer than heretofore. Being unusually flexible, their action absorbs all road shocks and rut jolts, and perfectly smooth riding is the comfortable consequence.

The new Overland has the most advanced electric lighting and electric starting system. All electric switches are conveniently located on steering column—directly in front of the driver. No stretching forward or bending down. Every electrical control is right at your hand.

The new Overland has the most advanced ignition system. A high tension magneto is used which is independent of the starting and lighting unit. On most popular priced cars the cheaper battery system is furnished. As the magneto long ago demonstrated its superiority over the battery ignition, even though it costs considerably more, the Overland is equipped with a magneto.

The new Overland has larger wheels and tires. 34 inch x 4 inch all around, with demountable rims, mean mimimum tire expense, minimum tire trouble, and maximum riding comfort.

Yet, in spite of these and numerous other advanced and costly features the price has not been advanced.

Light Weight with Extreme Strength
CHANDLER $1595
LIGHT-WEIGHT SIX

The Chandler weighs only 2885 pounds. It runs 16 miles or more per gallon of gasoline, 700 miles per gallon of oil, 7000 miles per set of tires. Speed, 3 to 55 miles per hour on high.

YOU hear a great deal of talk from certain interested quarters about the "danger" of sacrificing strength in building light-weight cars.

Well, they have to talk about something.

Now, what's the truth about this question? Is it really necessary — as some would have you think — that a car of average size, 120 inch wheel base, should weigh two tons or more?

Is it really necessary to use heavy cast iron parts when the very best engineering practice proves that aluminum or pressed steel serve better and with much less weight?

No, it is not necessary!

The Chandler Light-Weight Six has proved that greatest strength, greatest safety, can go hand in hand with light weight.

Modern engineering has accomplished this.

The Chandler has gone to a production of thousands without the development of a single mechanical weakness.

Chandler owners all over the country have proved that extreme strength and the very maximum of safety are built into the Chandler. Still it weighs only 2885 pounds, fully equipped.

The Chandler offers you light weight backed up by the broadest experience in six-cylinder construction. It offers you everything in smooth-flowing flexible power and in comfort and in beauty of design that the highest priced sixes can offer, but without the expense of unnecessary weight.

Come in and study the Chandler carefully. Come see the "MARVELOUS CHANDLER MOTOR," the EXCLUSIVE Chandler motor. Come drive this Six. You will thrill with the STRENGTH that is in it. The profit-sharing price for the new 1915 models, touring car or roadster, is $1595.

Minor Moguls Raise Howl on Draft Ruling

Plan Proposed by National Commission Whereby Big League Clubs Withhold Payment Until Players Drafted Report, Causes Big Kick Among Club Owners of Smaller Leagues

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Organized baseball is in danger of serious trouble from the inside of its ranks as well as from the Federal league. The recent ruling of the national commission that drafted players from the minors need not be paid for until they report next spring has caused the National Association of Minor leagues to start a little roar that threatens to resemble the sound heard from Europe.

The little fellows say that if such a plan is followed it will ruin them. Before submitting to such a ruling, the minors will start a fracas of their own that will hurt a great deal more than the trouble the Feds are promoting this summer. In the past the national commission has insisted that the big league clubs send their checks along with their draft and if they were awarded the player the check was at once sent to the club from which the player was drafted.

WOULD AVOID RISK.

The commission has come to the conclusion this fall that it is entirely too much of a risk for the big leaguers to pay for a drafted player and then not sign him next spring. For this reason the draft has been held under cover and the big league club which secures a player by the draft route is requested to sign him before the news is given out. In this way the Feds are stopped from grabbing an unsigned player.

The kick of the minors is caused by the secret drafting of the players. The threat of the minor leagues to make trouble has caused the sudden change in the plans of the commission, for the big leagues can not afford to have any controversy with the minors at the present time. There has been considerable trouble between the big leagues and the minors in the past. Some of the larger leagues have threatened to break with organized ball and to start out on their own hook.

COAST CLUBS IN REVOLT.

The conditions on the Pacific coast have been very bad for the last year, and it would take but little to cause the club owners to start a stampede. The national commission has forced through its edicts in the past, because it had no opposition and the players had to abide by its decisions or else remain idle. Now there is a chance for them to jump if they do not get what they want, and it is making all the difference in the world to the leaders of organized ball.

The heavy part of the burden is falling on the minor leagues in this fight, as it does in almost all of the controversies in baseball. The minors are the backbone of the game, for they do all the real work of developing the youngsters. This summer it is the minor leagues which have had to bear the burden of the fight between the clubs of organized ball and the Feds, and already some of them have been begging the national commission to end the war. If it continues another year, the minors will be hit harder by far than they are this year.

The ruling of the commission that all drafted players have to be signed to contracts at once will cause much trouble, for some of the players have been approached and more of them will be before they are signed. The ball players are going out for the money this winter, for they believe they can get it from the Feds, and even the youngsters have learned from the older ones that they must hold off until they can negotiate with the Feds.

Overland Car Beats Fast Mail

Roadster Finishes 840-Mile Trip Eight Hours Ahead of Mail Train

An Overland roadster recently performed the feat of beating the fast Natal mail train on the long trip from Johannesburg to Durban, according to dispatches received at the Willys-Overland company from their South African distributors. Despite the hard going encountered throughout the run, the car succeeded in bettering the time of the train by eight hours and thirty minutes on the round trip of 840 miles.

The trial, which was the first authentic run over the long course, created a lasting impression among South African motorists, the majority of whom declared that it could not be accomplished owing to the terrific road conditions. Public magistrates acted as official timers for the event.

A large crowd saw the sturdy little Overland and the big mail train leave Johannesburg station at 8 o'clock on a Saturday evening. The car reached Durban, the end of the first lap at 1:35 o'clock on the following afternoon, five hours ahead of the train, after making stops at all points where the train was scheduled to stop and take on mail or change engines. At 5:59 on the same day, the automobile and the train left simultaneously for the return trip. The Overland reached Johannesburg at 3:30 p. m., on Monday, three hours ahead of the train, which made both trips on schedule time.

The distance is equivalent to a trip from New York to Louisville, Ky., which would be considered particularly noteworthy in the United States where automobiles are in general use and roads, for the most part, are in excellent shape. But those who realize the extreme conditions encountered in South Africa declare that the time recorded is remarkable. The roads are rough and sandy, in places becoming merely bush tracks. This in itself discourages long distance automobile runs. In addition, the Overland was delayed by 104 gates marking the boundaries of the large African ranches. The driver was forced to bring the car to a dead stop, dismount, drive through, then stop and close the gate before starting on his way. The only involuntary stop was caused by a puncture on famous Majuba Hill.

The run is considered a great test of skill and endurance on the part of the driver, who handled the wheel from start to finish throughout the round trip. From 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon until 2:30 Monday afternoon he was without sleep, having only a short rest of five hours during the two days. The passenger, who accompanied him, was unable to handle a motor car.

Football Enters New Era; East and West Use Same Style

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Football is opening up with the promise of the greatest season of the reconstruction era of the game.

With the new ryles modified only in a few particulars in which they were found not to operate well; with the backs allowed a bit more freedom in pursuing kicks and forward passes, and the game more open than it has been in the east and a trifle closer than it has been in the west, the outlook for strong teams is excellent.

The chief interest, of course, attaches to the double meeting of east and west, Michigan plays Harvard, and Notre Dame, the sensation of the west last year, meets Yale. This rather dims the importance of the western conference championship.

But to football men the game at New Haven on October 17 and the one at Cambridge on October 31 are more important than the mere winning or losing of a contest. They are contests that will decide the relative importance of the styles of play adapted by the sections.

With the new rules the western teams at once opened up and commenced playing a fast, kicking and passing game, using the open formations, while the east refused to alter its style of play so radically and continued the line battering and straight football.

The east, of course, maintains that it is the only football section and the west heretofore has been consifered this, two western coaches in the last two years, after watching the big western games, have said quietly that any one of half a dozen middle western teams could beat Yale, Harvard or Princeton if they used that style of play. The overthrow of West Point by Notre Dame came as a stunning blow to the eastern style of football, and after that there was a quick change of tactics and a modification of the eastern style by practically every eastern coach.

Notre Dame will take a team east that is scarcely less strong than its wonderful one of last year, and Coach Harper is satisfied it will uphold the west. Yost has a team that has the best veteran talent of last season and, although the squad is extremely small for Michigan, the material is declared promising.

Best stories emanate from Minnesota. Williams has lost heavily by graduation.

Illinois has real cause to be more hopeful. Wisconsin loses four stars and is gloomy. Neither Purdue nor Indiana nor Iowa shows much improvement to indicate a chance at the championship and, while Northwestern undoubtedly has strengthened and developed as a football school, it is not a factor in the race. Ohio will be much stronger, it is expected.

Of the outside schools, Nebraska shows a lot of strength. Some of the vets who brought Michigan Aggies fame last fall are back and the team will be strong.

The Pacific coast, having tried Rugby, is not entirely satisfied. Southern California is coming back to football. The lapse has caused the coast schools to lose ground and it will be several years before they catch up.

HEILBRONNER PLAYS BIG PART IN BASEBALL DRAMA

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Baseball's clearing house located at Fort Wayne, Ind., is perhaps the oddest and at the same time the most interesting example of the commercial development of the national game

Up in a suite of offices a little man, whose hair has grown gray doping ball players, sits amidst a maze of figures that would drive the hardest dope fiend in the country insane and amidst a maelstrom of sixes and eights and sevens and twos, and all combinations of figures possible, calmly sorts out the records of about 8,000 baseball players, follows their doings, day by day, reports what they have done to owners of baseball clubs in many parts of the country and supplies the information that sends scouts scurrying all over America in search of second Ty Cobbs and Walter Johnsons.

The keeper of this maze of figures is Louis Heilbronner, president of the Central league ,former scout of the Cincinnati team, and a man who since a mere boy, has been associated with baseball.

In his office from five to eight skilled youths, clever at figures, work constantly compiling statistics. The daily records of from 1,700 to 1,800 men are carried forward, so that, at the end of each day, the player's record and average is complete.

Thirty-seven leagues in organized baseball, and the Federal league are entered, posted, and carried forward each day.

Practically every ball player in America is in the record filing case. There are between 7,000 and 8,000 "live" ones, meaning men actually engaged in playing. Besides that Heilbronner has the records of thousands more who have been in, and who may come back, more thousands of "dead" ones who have dropped out and hundreds who may be the Cobbs and Johnsons of the next five or six years.

It was hard and expensive work to get the complete record, but once complete Looie compiled it in the baseball blue book, a wonderful work of condensation, and after that players rushed to send in their records. Every manager, owner and most of the sporting editors must have the blue book and sometimes Looie almost breaks even on it.

The practical part of it all is its use to the club owners. Major league club owners receive hundreds of "tips" on players every year. One National league club owner told me that his friends and acquaintances recommended more than 100 players a month to him—urging him to try them. The clubs employ scouts, but no scout could look over all the future Cobbs, so many of the clubs arranged with Heilbronner to attend to this department and to help them look up new players.

Looie's sytsem has saved the scout weeks of time and hundreds of dollars of travel money.

DEVORE AND THOMAS FETS OF DAME FORTUNE

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Next to Ira Thomas of the Athletics, the players declare that Josh Devore is the lukiest man in baseball. Thomas, it will be remembered, was sold from the Highlanders, a tailend club, to Detroit and got there just in time to take part in a world's series and get some of the dough. After losing the pennant Detroit sold him to Philadelphia, where he arrived and remained to take part in three world's series and is about to have a hand in the fourth. Josh Devore was taken from Newark by the Giants and got into two world's series. After being shunted to two clubs Josh was picked up by the Braves just in time to be with a team that has an excellent chance of helping him to a little more of the prize money.

Naps Decline to Draft Players

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 3.—For the first time since the drafting system was inaugurated, the Cleveland American league club has failed to draft a player. In fact, it did not put in a draft for one. The reason is that the Nap scouts reported there was nothing left in the minors after the big league clubs had made their purchases, except pitchers, and Somers and Birmingham figured that the young hurlers they had under contract probably are as good as these youngsters in the bushes. When it came to hard-hitting outfielders or clever infielders who could hit around .280 and think around .900, the scouts said "Nobody home."

As a result, the Cleveland American league club next year will try to win a first division place with the present outfit, and the score of men acquired by recall and purchase. All but four of the new men are farm hands, having been "bought" from the Cleveland A. A., New Orleans, Portland and Waterbury clubs. The exceptions are Pitchers Tedrow and Cater, of Portsmouth, O., and Pitcher Harstad, of Vancouver, and Third Baseman Thomas, of Omaha.

From the Cleveland A. A. club alone come Pitchers Kahler, James, Jones, Bowman and Dillinger; Catchers Devogt and Billings, Infielder Knight, and Outfielders Southworth and Smith. The New Orleans agricultural station sends Pitchers Walker and Benn and Infielder Barbare. Waterbury has given Pitcher Morton and First Baseman Shields, while Second aBseman Rodgers will represent Portland in the Quadruple alliance.

But while the Naps have not drafted any one, it is believed that the local A. A. club will load up with a bunch of youngsters to replace the men taken over by the American league club.

Yale About Due; Watch the Elis

BY W. A. COLLINS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The crowning achievement of this big year for upsets will not yet have been witnessed until the football proper takes the stage and bursts through with one or more form reversals. The Giants' downfall, the polo and tennis catastrophies and other now famous turns of the worm will then pale into insignificance.

I have specifically in mind the Yale football team. Keep your eye on the Bulldog. Not since the days of Chadwick and Gordon Brown have the Elis prospects looked as bright for a winning team as they do right now—with Frank Hinkey in full charge, head coach and court of last resort.

You won't see much in the newspapers about what Yale is going to do. Hinkey's title of Silent Frank is well earned. Not a word but the football scores would escape Yale field if Hinkey could prevent it. Do not infer from this that Hinkey is a crab. Far from it. But he realizes the futility of forecasts and the fatality of letting your enemy know your plans. So what is there to say? Answer: Nothing. Hence the silence of Hinkey.

Then again, Hinkey's achievements are such that he does not have to talk. His work does that for him. I have repeatedly seen Yale enter the home-stretch of her football season with a bum league team and Frank Hinkey arrive for the last three weeks. The second day of his advent on the field sees a team and the next game sees a miracle in improvement. And the longer he stays the better the team gets. This time he is in charge for the whole season. Draw your own conclusions.

DIXIE DEALERS WHO ONCE WENT EAST NOW BUYING IN ATLANTA

Wholesaler Shows the Advantage of Patronizing the Home Market – "Southern Goods for Southern People"

That's a Winning Policy, and Only Patronage of Nearby Market Will Permit Its Adoption by Merchants

Editor Firing Line. Never before in the history of the world have the merchants been as interested in southern products as now. Some of those who bought the Atlanta market only a wide place in the road and have formerly gone to New York, Baltimore and Chicago for their wares are now buying of Atlanta jobbers. Most of those who have patronized the eastern houses have made their purchases by the gross and case, and some of them have merchandise in their shelves they have been carrying from season to season and from year to year.

The merchant who patronized his home market has made his purchases by the dozen instead of the gross, and the bundle instead of the case, and has sold almost all of his wares before buying again. Consequently, he has no hard stock on hand, but is constantly adding fresh new merchandise to his stock, filling the buying public demands.

It is the duty of every retail merchant to patronize, so far as possible, the manufacturers and jobbers of the south. By so doing he will keep his money at home and help those who help him.

The merchant who patronized the southern jobbers can sing the good old hymn, "Happy on the Way," and the merchant who has gone to the eastern market will sing, "Show pity, Lord, O! Lord forgive. Let a repenting sinner live." In 1915 they will sing, "Amazing grace, how sweet the sound that saved a wretch like me. I once was lost but now I'm found, was blind but now I see."

When the merchant of the south leaves for market, listen closely and you will hear him sing, "I am bound for the Atlanta market. No more long expensive trips to the eastern markets."

I wonder how many of the southern merchants have stopped to think that almost all of their customers would prefer southern-made merchandise. Suppose they could be able to advertise, "Southern-made goods for southern people. Shoe, clothing and everything we handle made in Atlanta or bought through Atlanta jobbers."

Everybody says charity begins at home. Why not practice what you preach? And don't forget that the 5 and 10-cent line will help you sell any line you handle.

If you have not already been convinced that the home industry is the place to patronize, come on and join us. The southern manufacturers and jobbers stand with outstretched hands to make you one of their satisfied customers. Come on, join the ranks and sing, "Lord, I'm coming home."

ROBINSON FACTORIES RUNNING FULL TIME

Atlanta Merchants Are Showing Their Loyalty by Patronizing Home Industries

"Notwithstanding some depression in the general trade, both our overall and shirt factories are running full time," said J. D. Robinson, of the A. M. Robinson company. "At this we are greatly gratified. The local dealers have shown their loyalty by giving both our shirt and overall factories generous patronage. This is, of course, a good policy for them and is greatly beneficial to us. It keeps the factory running and the payrolls in operation, which, of course, puts money into circulation and enables the retailers to hold and enlarge their clientelle."

OCT. 7 IS NAT. COTTON GOODS BARGAIN DAY

W. C. Barnwell Suggests That Georgia Retailers Play Up So. Made Cotton Fabrics

"October 7 has been set aside as national cotton goods bargain day," said W. C. Barnwell, of Ragan-Malone company. "On this day cotton goods will be extensively shown and there will be a special effort by the retailers to put forward their best offerings in these lines.

"It seems like to me that this would be a most opportune time for all the merchants in Georgia and in fact the whole south to make an especial play of Georgia and southern-made cotton goods. Undoubtedly all the cotton that can be retired at the present time and all the cotton goods that can be consumed and bought will aid in relieving the cotton situation. I think the southern retailers would benefit themselves and the country if they were to make a special feature of cotton garments and fabrics made in the south on that date."

TRAVELING MEN OPPOSE CHANGE IN WAR TAX

Think the Proposal to Tax Bank Depositors' Checks Is Unfair

A group of traveling men of Covington, Ga., Friday night were discussing they roposed change in the new Federal war revenue measure from a tax of $3 per $1,000 on bank capital and surplus to a 2c stamp tax on checks drawn by depositors. They voiced decided opposition to this change, thinking the tax should fall rather upon the capital and surplus of the banks than upon the depositors who are less able to bear it. The bill introduced in the house of representatives contained the provision for the $2 tax on bank capital and surplus, but from news dispatches it seems pressure is being brought to bear upon the senate to change this to a 2c stamp upon depositors' checks. The traveling men who voiced their opposition to this change were C. H. Jenkins, O. H. Jordan, N. K. Smith and others.

The coffee roasting department of McCord-Stewart company is now running in full force. As everyone knows, with the approach of cold weather the consumption of coffee increases sharply. This company is now averaging sales of 10,000 pounds of coffee a day.

ATLANTA T. P. A.'S TO HOLD SPELLING BEE ON SATURDAY, OCT. 31

J. C. Harrison and Sam J. Jones Selected to Head Opposing Teams – Dr. Ridley Will "Give Out" the Words

LARGE NUMBER OF LADIES EXPECTED TO BE PRESENT

September Meeting of Post B Proved Interesting One–Attendance Large – Many Enjoyable Speeches Made

An old-fashioned spelling bee is the entertainment feature planned for the next regular meeting of Post B, Travelers' Protective association, on Saturday night, October 31.

The opposing spelling teams will be headed by J. C. Harrison and Sam J. Jones. Dr. Ridley, post chaplain, will be the "teacher" and will give out the words from the old "blue back spelling book." A delightful time is expected, as members of Post B are known as unexcelled merrymakers whenever they gather together. All the Travelers' Protective association ladies of Atlanta will be present to lend their charm to the occasion and participate in the spelling match.

The last regular meeting held Saturday night, September 26, proved to be one of great interest. There were more than forty members present, each one of whom promised to bring another T. P. A. with him to be present on the big occasion at the October meeting.

Among the enjoyable speeches delivered at the meeting on September 26 were those by Sam J. Jones, of Atlanta, and J. M. McDuff, a visiting attorney from outside the city.

New members are gradually being added to the roll of Post B and a year of especial activity is now in prospect under the administration of President A. J. Swann and Secretary J. H. Andrews.

"SOUTH MUST QUIT ONE-CROP PLAN," SAYS FORT

Druggist Returns From Trip Through Several States, Tells What He Saw.

Lynn Fort, of the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co., returned last week from a ten days' trip through the middle west, during which time he attended the convention of the National Wholesale Druggists' association at Indianapolis, Ind. The association discussed a number of matters of interest to the wholesale trade, including the topics of markets, credits, transportation, insurance, legislation and the like.

"Business at present is fair in the grain and meat sections of the west and north," said Mr. Fort. "It is, of course, much better than business in the south, which depends so largely upon cotton, for which there is now a restricted demand on account of the war.

"During my trip through several states I have become more and more impressed with the fact that any section which depends upon one crop alone is treading upon dangerous ground. Through Kentucky, middle Tennessee and Ohio, where grain, hay and stock are raised, there seemed to be an air of prosperity which we of the cotton section lack. I saw some of the finest cattle I have ever seen anywhere in middle Tennessee. All the farm houses in that section looked well-kept, and there are very decided indications of prosperity. I trust present conditions will bring so forcibly to the people of the cotton states the folly of the one-crop system that they will never depend so largely upon cotton as they have done heretofore."

Bell Broke Sales Record

Edwin C. Bell of the Brower Candy company is now heading the sales list of his firm. Week before last he broke all his records for sales, and during the past week he has continued the rapid pace which he set for himself.

One Is Traveler, the Other City Salesman – The Elder Was With Company Before the Younger Man Was Born

The oldest and youngest salesmen at McCord-Stewart company's are respectively H. A. McDonald and A. Y. Williamson. Mr. McDonald is sixty years old and has been with the McCord-Stewart company for twenty-two years contiuously; he was selling the "Farm Bell" brands two years before Mr. Williamson was born. Mr. Williamson is twenty years old and has been with the company three years but has been a salesman only since the first of the present year, being promoted to the vacancy on the city sales staff caused by the resignation of Hal Riviere, who resigned to go into business for himself.

While these two salesmen represent the extremes of age, the yalso represent the extreme of sales ability, because each month usually finds them near the top of the sales records. Mr. McDonald travels the W. & A. railroad and the L. & N. railroad south of Atlanta and the Southern towards Birmingham. As a veteran salesman none stand higher in popularity and ability than he. Both salesmen are indefatigable workers, and wherever they go they make known the "Farm Bell" brands and enjoy a constantly increasing volume of trade.

Tom Elliott, proprietor of the big cash store at Milstead, Ga., was one of the callers last week at McCord-Stewart company's. "Uncle Tom" was feeling in fine spirit. "Not only do I enjoy fine health, but also all my family do," said he. "Each of my six boys got up at 6 o'clock this morning and ate six biscuits as well as a husky portion of ham and eggs for breakfast."

"We received another fine car of 'Sweet Violet' vegetables last week," said Donald McKle, of the H. L. Singer company. The "Sweet Violet" line of canned goods includes beets, tomatoes, peas, squash and succotash.

Harry Gottheimer, of Montag Bros., was in the city for two or three days last week from his territory in Tennessee. During his visit here he was out walking with Mrs. Gottheimer when she was struck by an automobile truck and painfully but not seriously hurt. She has so far recovered as to allow Mr. Gottheimer to return to his territory.

W. R. Simpson, of Jones Bros. & Co., has been ill all the past week and unable to be at the office. C. M. McKain, traveler for this company, is now in Atlanta working the city trade.

George Sneed and W. T. Wooten, Georgia representatives of the Sauer Extract company, of Richmond, Va., last week each individually purchased a bale of cotton to boost the great campaign now in progress.

Saturday was the regular meeting day for the semi-monthly sales conference of Fain & Stamps. Present were W. T. Duncan, Cliff Edwards, S. E. Smith, R. E. Hutchinson and W. Y. Bailey, of the road force, and W. A. Quarles, W. S. Gaston, B. H. Messer and T. N. Wyatt, of the city staff. The meeting was presided over by W. O. Stamps.

W. O. Stamps was exhibiting Saturday some fine apples raised in the apple section of Georgia near Tallulah Falls. Mr. Stamps, on Saturday a week ago, visited the Appalachian apple orchards. He is more convinced than ever that Georgia can raise as fine apples as can be raised in the United States, and the specimens which he was showing on Saturday certainly bears out this claim.

E. P. Lewis, otherwise known as "Opening Bill," of the McClure Ten-Cent company, had some good sales last week. Among the deals which he negotiated is one for a $2,000 stock of 5-cent and 10-cent goods to be opened by a Florida merchant.

S. W. Gunnison, of the John Deere Plow company, after a week's visit at headquarters, has returned to his territory in South Carolina. Mr. Gunnison has just recovered from an illness of several weeks with typhoid fever. He was ill at his home in Columbia, S. C.

Among the visitors at the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co. during the past week were G. W. Delaperriere, Winder, Ga.; Dr. R. L. Tye, McDonough, Ga.; Dr. Bowdoin, Adairsville, Ga.; Mr. Wilson Williams, Woodbury, Ga.; Dr. G. Hathcock, Social Circle, Ga.; Dr. Ella Orr, Riverdale; Dr. J. D. Middlebrooks, Powder Springs; Dr. R. K. Dixon, Fayetteville, Ga.; Dr. J. R. Wyche, Stone Mountain, Ga., and Dr. J. A Combs, Locust Grove, Ga.

On Saturday a week ago all the salesmen of the Capital City Tobacco company met at headquarters for a conference. Among the travelers present were M. J. Delmer, who covers South Carolina and North Georgia, C. C. Phillips, who travels South Georgia, and T. B. Lewis, sales manager.

E. S. Harrison and J. H. Huff, travelers for the S. P. Richards company, were in at headquarters Wednesday but left again for their respective territories after a few hours at the house.

The Capital City Tobacco company has installed a big stove in the lobby of their building at the approach of cold weather. "We are now prepared even more than ever to give all our visitors a warm welcome," said W. H. Carleton, president of the company.

"We are now busy getting out shipments to fill October orders," said B. A. Hancock, of the Dixie Pickle and Preserving company. "Without any more orders, we have a good month's business already booked and with the additional business that is certain to come in, we expect October to be a lively month with us."

O. P. Bennett, of the Brower Candy company, sent in a nice big package of orders Wednesday from Fairmount, Ga. "I hear lots of war talk up here," was Mr. Bennett's comment in sending in his orders, "and the prospects are now that business will be better and better throughout the rest of the fall."

J. M. Jeffreys who travels South Georgia for the John Deere Plow company, has been ill for two months at his home in Coffeeville, Miss., with typhoid fever. The last report from Mr. Jeffreys states that he is improving slowly.

J. H. Roberts, city salesman for John Silvey & Co., copped the sales honors for September. Mr. Roberts ran well ahead of the next highest salesman and his lead over September a year ago was also noticeable.

Among the travelers who were in Friday afternoon at the Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company's were J. S. Cheek, R. V. McWhorter and V. L. Lassiter. They were present clearing the decks for this week's activities after having enjoyed successful trips during the past seven days.

"Sugar" Smith, of the A. M. Robinson company, was at headquarters Friday afternoon from the long staple cotton territory. He brought in a list of orders which were in keeping with the length of the staple grown in that section.

Among the travelers in for the week end at Brown, Perryman & Greene Co., were A. N. Greene, J. O. Chambers and C. D. Dickinson. They were in from the first dash out of the box on their new season's trade in men's spring hats. The mail order business of this company continues steady and satisfactory, with a number of the orders going to purchasers by express.

Among the travelers who did fine work last week for the M. C. Kiser company were S. K. Johnson, who travels Tennessee with headquarters at Hartman, J. Gedd Addy, who travels the Georgia road, and George Burnett, who travels Alabama with headquarters at Montgomery.

Either the people of Georgia do not know that war is going on, or else W. P. Sewell, of A. M. Robinson Co., will not let them think about it. At least that is the conclusion they have reached at the house, judging from the steady volume of orders that Mr. Sewell has been sending in.

M'DANIEL NOW HEADS SILVEY'S NOTION DEPT.

D. P. McDaniel has been promoted to be buyer and general manager of the notions department of John Silvey & Co. Mr. McDaniel is one of the ablest salesmen of the Silvey force and is a specialist in the notion line. His old friends will be pleased to see him in his new capacity and any orders sent the house will have his personal attention. The house is looking forward to a big success for this department under Mr. McDaniel's management.

WOODRUFF FAIR WILL OPEN AT WINDER OCT. 6

Will Last Five Days—Interesting Program Has Been Prepared

The Woodruff north Georgia fair, one of the largest expositions of its kind to be held in the state, will take place at Winder, Ga., on October 6-10. Large and valuable premiums have been offered for all kinds of agricultural exhibits, and likewise for exhibits of women's domestic science, poultry, livestock, flowers, machinery and textiles and exhibits by colored farmers.

The fair is under the direction of the Woodruff brothers, of Winder, G. W. Woodruff, A. J. Woodruff and R. L. Woodruff, who have heretofore conducted a number of successful fairs at Winder. The present fair has been extensively advertised in sixty counties in the county newspapers, and A. J. Woodruff, with a large automobile party from Winder, made a tour through forty counties in the interest of the fair. The automobile was decorated with signs setting forth the merits of the exposition, and the value of exhibiting thereat.

The opening day, October 6, will be "School Day," and there will be a monster parade of school children and two gold medals will be awarded to the successful contestants in the boys' and girls' oratorical contests. Addresses will be delivered by Governor John M. Slaton and State Superintendent M. L. Brittain. All the school children participating in the parade will be admitted free.

October 7, the second day of the fair, will be known as "Agricultural Day" and will be celebrated by a parade of the Boys' Corn club, and also a parade of the Boy Scouts. The speakers on this occasion will be Charles S. Barrett, national president of the Farmers' Union, Hon. J. D. Price, commissioner of agriculture, and Dr. A. M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture.

One of the most important days of the entire fair will be October 8, which will be Good Roads, Automobile and Commercial day. There will be a monster industrial parade in which automobiles and floats of all kinds will participate. All towns within one hundred miles of Winder have been invited to join in the parade with banners setting forth the names of their towns and industries. There will be big automobile delegations present from Atlanta, Gainesville, Elberton, Athens and in fact all the towns within the radius mentioned.

The old soldiers' reunion will take place October 8, which will be known as "Old Folks' Day." There will also be a meeting of the fiddlers' convention, and a home coming celebration of the very first rank will be held, a time when everybody can see and meet their old friends.

The fifth and closing day, October 10, will be the colored people's day and will be devoted to the colored people and their various activities in agricultural and industrial lines. There will be speaking by Prof. Booker T. Washington, Dr. J. R. Butler and Ben J. Davis.

A splendid line of carnival attractions have been secured which will be open day and night and every day there will be aeroplane flights by skilled aviators who will thrill the crowds by their daring feats in the air, and there will be fireworks every night. It will be in every sense a big time and everybody is invited to come and enjoy the five days of instruction and merriment which have been provided.

J. M. McKibben, of Dougherty-Little-Redwine company, was at headquarters last Friday from his territory on the Southern railway to Birmingham.

An Open Letter to All Merchants Hereabouts

Dear Merchant:

It is considered bad judgment and mighty poor policy for a merchant to rise up and abuse the folks in his neighborhood. He simply can't afford to do it if he wants to hold their trade.

And yet there are times when he feels like talking some pretty strong talk.

One of these times is when his customer--his own logical customer, living right there in his own neighborhood--just passes him by and goes off to some other town to trade.

Take Atlanta Department Stores, for example.

Yet the women folks will slip off to the Big Place whenever they get half a chance and leave the local merchant to do the best he can.

True, he may have exactly the things they buy in New York. He may have expended time and thought and the trained judgment of expert buyers in assembling his stocks.

Also he may be much more accommodating and easier to deal with than the stranger merchant 'way off yonder.

And besides he may be doing business with the husbands or brothers or sons of the very women who desert him.

He may be furnishing employment to hundreds of clerks who also make business for these same husbands and brothers and sons.

Yet, not withstanding all these perfectly good reasons for doing her shopping at home, milady will hie her to Bigville, or send there, for supplies that she ought to be buying from her own local dealer.

Perhaps she doesn't really THINK it out. If she did, surely she would stick to the merchant at home who is actually contributing to her own bread and butter.

This is just an example. You get the point, of course.

Department stores are not by any means the only ones affected.

Instances might be multiplied. But we come to the question that we want to ask.

Is it any more logical and defensible for the Merchant to run away from home than for his customer to do so?

We are really very much interested in the answer.

We've got our Main Stake here in this town. We're running big factories here. We're making first-class stuff here. We're carrying big payrolls here. We're trying to build up business here---the town's business as well as our own.

How about it?

Are we right when we say that Merchants Hereabouts are doing themselves an injustice when they pass up Home Industries and go into distant markets for their supplies?

We'd just like to have your honest opinion on this.

ATLANTA GIRLS PICK COTTON, BUT IT'S ONLY FOR THE MOVIES

At the Left At the Top Mrs. E. W. Davidson; At the Bottom Mrs. F. Marion Whitfield. Group At the Top Mrs. E. B. Ivey, Mrs. J. Garnett Starr, Carl Rowntree and Mrs. E. W. Davidson. By the Basket of Cotton Miss Lucile Goodrich and Mrs. Tom Hennessy.

ATLANTA girls picking cotton right in the face of a September sun, regardless of tan and boll weevils, are one of the sights to see in the "Buy-a-Bale" picture, during this week at the Grand.

Miss Lucile Goodrich, Miss Willie Kate Travis, Miss Margaret Bramlett, Miss Margaret Green, Miss Mainer Hardin, Miss Vee Strickland, Miss Mildred Sault, Mrs. J. Garnett Starr, Mrs. Egerston Harris, Mrs. E. W. Davidson, Mrs. Robert Hinton, Mrs. Jack Grey, Mrs. Tom Hennessy.

The "Buy-a-Bale" is a moving picture play written by Mrs. J. Garnett Starr and Mrs. E. W. Davidson, of Atlanta; it is all about the cotton situation; the hero is Harrison Jones; the stern sheriff is Sheriff Mangum; the beautiful society girls who fly to the poor widow's rescue and pick her cotton and have it hauled to the gin are beautiful Atlanta society girls; the dance which will show frivolity in one of its most charming aspects was pictured at the Driving club and one of the dancers was Eugene Haynes; the cotton (as we said) was picked at the spacious Roswell road plantation; it was ginned at a near-by gin, and, as you look, you see it auctioned at Five Points.

For these and other reasons the picture is the most Atlanta-like moving picture that ever showed itself here on the white screen, and will be the most personal and interesting.

Mrs. Starr, who has written other moving picture plays and has acted them and helped direct them, saw in the buy-a-bale movement something no one else noticed—the plot for a scenario.

Why not show in moving pitcures the distress caused by Europe's absorption in war instead of cotton-spining; and the relief brought by individual aid?

In its conception and production—the aptness, the audacity, and the originality of it—the little play is a delight.

Every scene of the first exhibition at the Grand tomorrow, and the following appearances during the week, will have a keen personal interest.

Here are the principal characters:

Mrs. Starr—the society girl; Mrs. Davidson—the country girl; Mrs. Eugene Ivey—her mother; Harrison Jones—the hero; Sheriff Mangum—the stern sheriff; Lew Dockstader—the faithful servant.

The scenes are: C. C. Mitchell's farmhouse on the Roswell road. The gin and cotton field just off the road. Five Points. Pryor street in front of the chamber of commerce. Porch party at Mrs. Davidson's home, 52 Penn avenue. A dance at the Piedmont Driving club. Washington Seminary in the character of a stately mansion. A bridal path over the Habersham hills.

As for the story of the play, it begins with a society girl much a-weary of the gaities of life, who goes for a ride into the green country, where she discovers both poverty and romance—the first, in the shape of a little farmhouse where a poor woman lives, whose all was wrapped up in the cotton that none now will buy. The scene changes to the porch party at 52 Penn avenue.

Enter heroine—tells the story of poor woman—frivolous society hearts are softened, everyone registers determination to help the suffering woman or die in the attempt.

On screen—We will pick her cotton.

Roadside—Cotton being piled into wagon

Gin—Cotton being ginned.

Swiftly the story continues to move. As fast as the cotton changes from field to gin, it flies from gin to Five Points, and there you see leading citizens buying it at 15 and 20 cents a pound with our heroine as auctioneer.

But this is not all. The romance has not been forgotten. It merely has waited while the cotton was picked. The hero enters, the heroine—

But all this is a mere breath of the play. It has atmosphere, simplicity, timeliness, and for all you know, you are in it yourself. Pictures have been made all around. Maybe you chanced along when the crank was turning.

By Frank G. Carpenter

Santiago De Chile.

"AND a vision appeared to Paul in the night; there stood a man of Macedonia, and prayer him, saying: "Come over into Macedonia, and help us!' "

This, from Acts, 16:9, is the text of my letter. Uncle Sam represents St. Paul, and South America, Macedonia. The cry is one of great need, and the sound thereof flies across the oceans from one continent to the other. It is the cry of more than fifty million souls, and it voices a need of thousands of millions of dollars. It tells of the wants created by the warring nations of Europe, and it begs Uncle Sam to send his goods over the seas to satisfy them. It is a composite cry, made up of all our sister republics. Listen a moment and hear how big the cry is. It represents a trade of hundreds of millions of dollars. In 1912 Great Britain sold South America $270,000,000 worth of goods. The sales of Germany amounted to $157,000,000; those of France to more than $100,000,000, and in addition Austria and Belgium each had a large share. These goods were scattered far and wide over the continent. An equal supply is demanded this year, but it is shut out by the war. Truly the cry from Macedonia is loud.

Now stop again and listen more closely. Out of the composite, you can hear the voices of the individual countries. That of Chile represents the loss of $75,000,000 in foreign supplies from Great Britain, Germany and France. The country is alive to its needs, and the government is subsidizing steamers to bring our goods here to make up the deficit.

But what is that shrill, small cry from the top of the Andes? It personifies the wants of Bolivia. It says: "I have been buying goods from Great Britain to the amount of $26,000,000 a year. Germany has been sending me her wares to the amount of $4,000,000, and I have been buying $2,000,000 of France. My wants now are the same, and I rely on the United States to supply them."

And then the voice of Peru! "My needs last year supplied by the British cost me $14,000,000. I got goods to the amount of $3,000,000 from Germany, and of $2,000,000 from France. Where shall these goods come from in 1915?"

The same sounds are heard from Ecuador, Colombia and Venezuela. The imports of each country represent millions; but they are drowned by the megaphones of the mighty republics on the east and southern Atlantic. The needs of Brazil and Argentina are enormous. Last year Argentina paid Great Britain $120,000,000 for her daily supplies; she got $52,000,000 worth of goods from Germany, and $31,000,000 from France. The purchases of Brazil from the same source amounted to more than $125,000,000, and in addition was the enormous trade with Belgium, Switzerland, Austria and other countries, now tied up by the war.

Indeed, the foreign trade of South America bulks large in the trade of the world. Within recent years the exports to that continent of the three great manufacturing countries now at war have been averaging about six times as much as their exports to China. In 1912 their sales to South America amounted to almost a half billion dollars, while their exports to China during that year were less than $80,000,000. Here are the figures: The United Kingdom sent exports to the amount of $245,000,000 to South America, and of only $54,000,000 to China; Germany sent $136,000,000 to South America, and only $20,000,000 to China, while the exports of France to this continent amounted to $54,000,000 in contrast with only $2,000,000 to China.

The imports from South America of the countries at war have been quite as large, so that the trade altogether represents, as I have said, more than a thousand millions of dollars.

I do not like figures. They are a poor medium for the conveyance of thought. They are all right for an Isaac Newton, but they slide from the back of the ordinary intellect like water from the back of the typical duck. Still it is only by figures that we can get an idea of the trade losses caused by this war in Europe, and of the wants which Uncle Sam has now a chance to supply. The warring nations are among the great traders of the world. Great Britain stands first and then comes Germany and France with Belgium and Austria each doing its share. The total foreign commerce of Austria, Russia, France, England, Germany and Belgium amounts to more than $20,000,000,000. That of Great Britain alone approximates $7,000,000,000, and that of Germany is more than $5,000,000,000. France in its trade with foreign nations employs more than $4,000,000,000 a year, and Austria and Russia each more than $1,000,000,000. Little Belgium has a foreign trade which exceeds a billion and a half, and the bulk of this buying and selling and the making of goods for the trade is practically stopped by the war.

Here are some striking figures of the imports and exports for 1913. In that year Belgium sold $715,000,000 worth of goods; Russia $800,000,000 worth and Austria $675,000,000 worth. These were the small merchants. The sales of Great Britain all over the world in that year amounted to more than three billion dollars; those of Germany were almost two billion and a half dollars, while France came in with her share of one and three-quarters of a billion dollars. Each of the warring nations bought almost as much, or more than it sold, making all together, as I have said, a foreign commerce amounting to twenty thousand millions of our money.

This gives some idea of the opportunities offered to the United States in the increase of its shipping and banking and trade. Our foreign commerce in 1913 was more than four billion dollars. We shall have to increase it over 500 per cent to equal the value of the nations at war.

But let us get down to brass tacks. I once had an interview with Mrs. Hetty Green, the richest woman of the world, in which she told me that her mind refused to comprehend more than $1,000,000 at one time. It is the same here. Let us divide the sums and look at the items. Here are some selections from the myriad wants of the individual countries which shows just where the trade is and what we might do.

Take this little republic of Chile, with its population of three or four millions, and begin at the bottom. The nation buys its footgear from outside nations by the thousands of pairs, and the American shoe is so popular with the better classes that out of the supplies sold last year more than eleven thousand pairs came from the United States, eight thousand from Great Britain, six thousand from Germany and two thousand from France. We led in the trade, but we should have to more than double our business to supply the present demand. In babies' and children's shoes we did practically nothing. The sales of such goods amounted to 170,000 pairs, and of these only 1,000 came from our country. On the other hand, France sold 60,000 pairs. Great Britain 54,000 pairs and Germany 46,000. What Chile wants to know is whether the United States can supply the lack of 100,000 pairs of shoes for her babies' bare feet.

There are many other goods which come almost entirely from abroad. This is so with toys. More than two-thirds of them have come from Germany and France, and the Christmas of 1914 will be lean unless Uncle Sam sends the playthings.

And then take our cotton and woolen mills. We have been shipping less than a million dollars' worth of textiles per annum to Chile, whereas the sales of Great Britain and India have amounted to more than $10,000,000; those of Germany to more than $7,000,000, and of France to something like $3,000,000. The total amount of goods of that kind that has come from the countries now at war is twenty-five times as great as that from the United States. This means that an increase of 2,500 per cent in our sales of textiles to Chile is among the possibilities.

It must be remembered, however, that the trade is a special one. These people have their own styles and wants, and they will not stand being made the dumping ground for the American factories. They use all sorts of staple goods such as cottons, woolens, and silks; but at the same time there are many specialties peculiar to the country. One of these is the black shawl or mantas which every woman wears in church and on the street. The most of these have come from Germany, France and Great Britain. All kinds of passementeries sold are from Germany and France, with only a small supply from Great Britain. The bulk of the carpets is from the United Kingdom and Germany, the most of the underwear from Germany and the United Kingdom, and the blankets are from Germany, Great Britain, Belgium and Spain. All the cotton lace comes from Europe and all of the thread. The ribbons are mostly from Germany and France; and Japan is the leader in the selling of handkerchiefs.

As to manufactures of steel, our trade with Chile, thanks to the steel trust, is rapidly growing. Nevertheless, the most of the iron and steel still comes from Europe, and there are opportunities in all varieties of such manufactures. The country is using about 5,000 tons of corrugated iron and 19,000 tons of galvanized iron per year. Of the first, three-fourths has come from Great Britain, and of the second, Great Britain has sold 14,000 tons. We annually sell about 1,000 tons of corrugated iron and something like 4,000 tons of galvanized iron to Chile. In the same line Belgium has done a big business.

I could write a whole letter on the openings for railroad materials, and that not only to Chile, but as to almost every South American country. Chile is now taking about a thousand tons of freight and passenger cars per annum; she buys in the neighborhood of 2,000 tons of locomotives, and also thousands of tons of steel rails, railroad spikes, fishplates and car wheels. In all of these things the United States has a fair trade, but Germany, France, Belgium and Great Britain are doing the bulk of the business. The sales of the steel trust, however, have been steadily growing, and with the present opportunities they should increase many fold. It is the same with the locomotive and car business. I have one statement showing that Chile took last year 341 freight cars from Belgium and 248 from Great Britain, while from the United States it got only 68. In the same year we sold about one-third of the locomotives, the balance of the trade going to Great Britain and Germany. Just now Chile has under way enormous railroad extensions, and her supplies will have to come from our country.

Electrical possibilities are large and they demand all sorts of machinery. Every town of any size has electric cars and electric lights. The country took about 400,000 pounds of electric bulbs last year, of which the bulk came from Germany, less than 20,000 pounds coming from the United States. Many of the big mining companies use electricity to operate their works. The Guggenheim copper plant at Chuquicamata, which will be one of the largest of the world, recently awarded a contract for its electrical supplies to a German company. These included a steam plant on the coast and a transmission line seventy-five miles long from there to the mines. That contract may have to be carried out by Americans. There is a great deal of electricity used in the nitrate factories, and there are big opportunities for additional supplies in the street car lines, many of which are owned by the Germans. Most of the cars are of German construction, the only native thing about their operation being the woman conductors, who take up the fares.

And then the trade for automobiles. This is rapidly opening up not only in Chile, but in every Latin-American republic. There are more than 2,000 automobiles now in Mexico City, there are 3,000 in Rio Janeiro, and so many in Buenos Aires that the dogs there have to cross the street on the run. Many of the machines come from England, Germany and France; but they are being displaced by our cheaper American makes, which are now to be seen in almost every large town on the continent. There is a demand for motor trucks in the cities. And so I might go on country by country and item by item. The field is so vast that there is hardly an industry in the United States whose goods are not needed in some parts of South America. The wants comprehend every variety of manufacture and almost every article that the United States makes.

An almost imperative demand for this trade is American ships and these to be backed by the government that they cannot fail to pay a good profit. It is probable that Chile and Peru will subsidize their lines of steamers, and send them through the canal to our Atlantic ports. Our government should do the same as to American vessels engaged in the South American trade. Until now practically the whole of this trade has been in the hands of the English and Germans, and they have so combined that our steamers could not compete with them. They have given such rebates to the South American exporters that our vessels could not get return freights, and this is especially so of coffee and other large products. We have been buying something like $70,000,000 worth of coffee a year from Brazil; and for every cup on our breakfast table we have had to pay a toll to the German and English shipping trusts, subsidized by their governments. Since 1840 the United Kingdom has paid out about $300,000,000 in such subsidies, France has been paying $8,000,000 a year in bounties of one kind or another, and Germany has built up her enormous shipping through subsidies and bounties. Practically all our exports and imports have been carried in foreign bottoms, and we have been paying taxes not only to the ships, but also to the banks, all the money transactions having been carried on through Europe. As it is now our foreign commerce amounts to more than $4,000,000,000 a year, and of this nine-tenths goes by sea. Our exports last year were more than $2,000,000,000 and only 9 per cent of them were carried in American vessels. Estimating the cost of freight and the banking at only 5 per cent, we have been paying enough in such charges to build a Panama canal every two years.

Our freights to South America should be the cheapest of the world. We take a large part of the exports of that continent and the vessels which bring them should carry back American goods at low rates. We take about 40 per cent of all the exports of Brazil and the ship that brings our coffee and rubber should return filled with American goods. We are taking vast quantities of Argentine meat; and from now on there will be a fleet of chilled beef steamers coming from Uruguay and Argentina to our Atlantic ports. Those ships have to go back and they should be loaded by the American factories. We take a vast quantity of nitrate from Chile, which should give us cheap return freights to that country. The Bethlehem Steel company expects to carry northward a million tons of iron ore every year, and its ships should annually carry down the west coast a million tons of American goods in return. Our tin should come direct from Bolivia instead of going around by Europe as it has in the past; and the cacao we get from Ecuador and Colombia should give cheap rates for our manufactures on their return. In fact, the trade between the United States and South America is at the edge of its beginning, and if our exporters and the government will do their part, it will become one of the great assets of the industrial America of the future.

But the trade is only a part of the business. South America is a continent on the edge of its development. It offers possibilities for many millions in the development of its mines, agriculture and other natural resources. It offers endless opportunities for capital, and the surplus American millions can be sent down here and made to breed like Australian rabbits. As it is now, Europe has more than four billion dollars invested in the various republics, and the most of this is owned by France, Germany, Great Britain and Italy. Some of it is in lands, some in mines, some in factories, some in railroads and a great deal in concessions of various kinds. The Germans own the street cars of Santiago and Valparaiso and they get enormous dividends therefrom. The English have about $200,000,000 invested in Argentine railroads and they have the most of the $200,000,000 of foreign money that has been planted in Peru. The Italians and the French and the Germans have their banks everywhere, and the British have big financial institutions in every capital. The debts of the republics have been placed in Europe, and there are millions of dollars' worth of more bonds to be sold. All this is now open to the United States. Truly it behooves our capitalists, our manufacturers and our exporters to awake to the situation and get on the job.

To Dethrone Mars We Must Enthrone Christ

By Bishop W. A. Candler

After setting forth how our nation has been far too much disposed to ape European nations in the matter of things of a war-like character, Dr. Jefferson says:

"And now Europe, being in torment, calls to us: 'O Republic of the West, do not follow my example! There are ways which seem right to a nation, but they lead down at last to the chambers of death. Do not believe the creed which we have long accepted. Armaments are not guarantees of peace. They are not insurance. They are not instruments of reason or righteousness. They create first suspicion, then hatred, and at last lead young men by the million to the fields of blood. Do not choose the path which we have followed. Work out your destiny along a different line. Make the new world different from the old. Beware of guns. Banish the implements of hate from your eyes. Take your mind off the machinery of slaughter. Cease to delight in the engines of destruction. Trust in reason. Have faith in brotherhood. Believe in love. Build your civilization on the principle of good will. Bind all the nations of the western hemisphere into a federation which by its fidelity to the law of kindness and its devotion to the Prince of Peace shall become at once the inspiration and guide of the world.' "

These ringing words of the great preacher sound a true note. But we cannot put away "the machinery of slaughter" until we put away the disposition to commit unrighteousness. We can have no permanent peace between individuals or nations until all parties are ready to do by all others that which is just and right.

St. James pointed out nearly two thousand years ago the source of all wars and strife, whether between individuals or nations, when he said, "From whence come wars and fightings among you? Come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members?" (James iv:1). Sin makes strife and back of every war there is wickedness.

In another utterance Dr. Jefferson sets forth that the sins of materialism are the springs of militarism. He says:

"I have studied militarism now face to face in every country of Europe, and I came home this last time more convinced thanever that pillitarism is materialism in its deadliest incarnation, that it is commercialism in its most voracious development, that it is atheism in its most devastating form, that it is the most colossal of all extant humbugs, a most gigantic swindle."

In this view also his position is well taken, and we shall do well to lay his words to heart.

Commercialism in our country will lead to a conflagration in the end. All classes, rich and poor alike, are putting too high an appraisement on mere property, and are esteeming too lightly the high things of brotherly love, good neighborliness and holy living. Hence the unrest and strife which marks our feverish social system.

But how shall we cleanse our hearts of these hate-breeding lusts? Nothing but a great revival of pure and undefiled religion can save our country from these pestilential passions.

If mere intellectual culture were adequate to accomplish this result the nations of Europe, who have gone to war with another, would have been dwelling now peacefully side by side as loved and loving neighbors. They are the most cultured nations on earth. But frenzied with hate, they destroy universities, art galleries, and venerable cathedrals. Their rationalistic culture, which has left God out of account, is not strong enough to preserve from destruction even the institutions in which it has been acquired. Education, which is not Christian, cannot be trusted to protect even educational establishments, not to speak of higher things. Godless culture cannot conserve itself, let alone promote interests of a nobler nature.

Nations without God are soon without hope. Doubt brings despair and death.

Piety only can preserve peace. The world must choose between religion and ruin. The nations that forget God cannot escape destruction.

Let us no longer mimick the rationalism of Northern Europe nor ape the ritualism of Southern Europe. Let us embrace with all sincerity the christianity of the primitive church as it is revealed in the Gospels, the Acts of Aposties, and the Apostolic Epistles. Nothing else is worthy to be called christianity.

Let us be mindful especially to have our colleges and universities permeated with the spirit of Christ. The dreadful war in Europe writes in lurid lines this lesson. Materialism in schools means militarism in nations. The Prince of Peace must be the presiding authority in all our institutions of learning. To dethrone Mars we must enthrone Christ.

Anti-Fat Society

GRANITE CITY, Ill.—The fat men—5,121 pounds of them—of this city have organized the Society for the Prevention of Surplus Avoirdupois and each of the twenty charter members has pledged himself to take off at least ten pounds in four weeks.

The organization is open only to men who top the scales at 200 pounds or better. George Link, who started the movement, is the heaviest, weighing 364 pounds, with O. N. Alleger, 205 pounds, the thinnest.

The members have agreed to abstain from her and to take a cross-country run of at least three miles twice each week, and once a month the heaviest will hike six miles over the county's roads.

They will abstain from eating meat more than once a day and promise to work daily in a gymnasium.

By Ward Greene

WHAT is America's most paying amusement?

Football.

Strange though it may seem, this is nevertheless true. Last fall, in three months during which the football season lasted, Yale cleared over $80,000, which beats any three months' clearings of any big league baseball club.

The same is true in comparing the greatest college game with other amusements, theatrical, for instance. What musical comedy can you name whose producer cleared $80,000 in three months? What play of any sort ever appeared once a week for three months and cleared up with an average of $80,000 a performance?

None.

There are many reasons to account for this, but when you come right down to bed-rock, there is but one: that football is after all better than anything the public gets for its money, and the public knows it.

Ask any man in Atlanta which he would rather see, a pony ballet skipping across the stage, or eleven brawny men in moleskin charging at eleven other young giants in the center of a torn field? Nine out of ten will flout the ponies. The tenth will not be a man.

The spectacle of a white-barred stretch of brown field in the last rays of an autumn sunset, banked tiers of black and white and color walling it in, far down at one end a line of gray crouched beneath the gaunt goal-posts, steeling muscle, nerve and sinew against the sodden smash of a second gray-clad line, with ten thousand tense figures ready to go mad or wilt at the erratic twist of an oval toward the sky—what is there to beat it?

Nothing on this side of the Atlantic.

Champion Laborers.

Football richly deserves its prestige, for in no other branch of sport or amusement do its performers expend as much sheer energy and labor as do the moleskin warriors.

True, there are other motives behind all this than simply to please the public. College spirit, ambition, loyalty, mere desire of victory, they play a greater part than anything else. Yet the fact remains that to the football player goes the palm for absolute sacrifice and toil which brings out more people to see him attempt and achieve than ever listened to a prima donna or watched a tragedian.

The football player is the hardest-worked performer in the amusement league. You read that forty men collapsed while crossing the Alps simply to provide a sensational motion picture film for you to see in Atlanta. You understand that Charlie Van Loan's movie man, Buck Parvin, kicked at lying out for an hour in the snow. You hear that Elsie Janis thinks she is working hard because she has to crawl around the floor and climb over the table in her latest play.

Work? What is that compared to the football player? He enters school the first of September to begin three gruelling months during which he must throw off habits that have riveted their chains upon him, deny himself, control himself, hurl himself into sprains and charlie-horses, allow himself to serve as a door for a battering-ram, a mat for a giant's foot, a nine-pin for a bowling ball.

To some it is not so hard—the training. Of late years specially, the football man has come to see that keeping in good condition during the summer months, means an easier time in the fall.

That is why six Tech players sought the wheat fields of the west this summer and toiled like any common laborers. Other southern college men entered engineering work, served as telephone linemen, got jobs in saw mills, anything to harden their muscles and bring them back to college physically fit.

Brickley's Vacation.

Some were lucky enough to draw summer camps. That is Charlie Brickley's way. All last summer the famous Harvard booter spent in the mountains of Virginia, boating, swimming, playing baseball and tramping. Soon we will begin to read how Brickley's toe is still on the job at Soldiers' field.

But in the majority of cases, the college man returns in the fall after a summer of cigarettes, late hours and dancing which has served to weaken his lungs, his muscles and, if his dancing partner were pretty, his heart, rather than to benefit him.

He goes out to the first football practice. They throw a wobbly ball along the ground and tell him to fall on it. Without picking a soft spot, he must lunge at it with all his force, ramming his head in the grass, scraping his ear on a pebble, rawing his elbows into soggy beef, tearing a tremendous strawberry in his tender sides.

After the first three days, his body is just one big bruise. He has smashed his hands into a bucking machine, roweled his shoulders on a tackling dummy, learned what it is to "kanga-roo walk" up and down the field for an hour or so and to top off with two laps around the track.

Probably, he is a bit weary.

He is also told that he must cut out the two packages of cigarettes a day he has been accustomed to regale himself with, abstain from keg parties and the like, retire each night by 10, stifle all craving for delicously thick pies and other sweets.

You would think that this youth who apparently was a tobacco fiend during the summer, who never got up unless with a headache from the night before, who never went to bed before midnight, and from dawn to dawn regarded his stomach as so much crocus sack to be stuffed with anything, you would think that he would find it hard to quit.

Well, maybe he does find it hard, but the fact remains that he quits. He may have broken promises to father, mother and sweetheart, he may have shattered resolves time and again, but when he goes in for football, there is no question in his heart. He simply quits.

He has been quit for three days, three days of abstinence and three days of gruelling "setting up" exercises and practice with the dummy and the bucking machine. That is when he is the sorest.

But then the real work starts. Actual scrimmage has begun. Now he will get a taste of football. This is no charging at an inanimate sawbuck of padded cloth, this is no slinging yourself at a leather man, no hopping around on one foot and pacing about the race track.

This is football. He is in the line, perhaps, when the first team decides to come through his tackle. And they come, too, but not until he has been trampled and scuffed and kicked about and laid on until his very vitals itch.

Perhaps they do it again. Indeed, a hard-hearted coach who thinks he may have quavered a bit, may call that signal over and over, through his tackle, trampling him, scuffing him, once, twice, fifteen times and all over again.

Yet, if but once, he has managed to grasp with twitching fingers the sweaty leg of the halfback and bring him toppling with the full weight of 190 pounds across his own neck, with the shock of the interference across his own back and his own body doubled under a writhing mass of other bodies that have failed to advance a requisite two yards, why he is happy.

Again, they may try him out behind the line. He is nervous and fumbles the first ball. Tired out with repeated battering, weary until his very ribs seem to cave in, beaten, bruised and burning with pain, he fumbles again. Excuse? He has none that will do for the coach. He is ordered to trot around the track five times for every time he fumbles.

Possibly he will fumble three times before the practice is over. And he will trot fifteen times around the track. But—if but once he has managed to elude the end and tear off twenty yards before a flying tackle knocks him into the water bucket—he is happy.

His Hardest Test.

On the first day scrimmage is over, no doubt your player will stumble into the shower bath with the feeling that he has faced the German army. But it takes only the cold sting of the water-needles to revive him, and three hours later he will find sleep at the instant he finds the pillow.

And still he has not encountered his hardest job. Practice may continue for two or three weeks. He makes the team; He plays his first big game, he romps on through the season, and gradually all the stiffness and soreness have vanished and he is in perfect physical condition. But his hardest test is yet to come.

He is a star. The team smashes a victorious pathway to the championship. Only the Thanksgiving game with the school's time honored rival remains to be played. The hopes of a whole season, the doubts and fears of all those weeks of self-denial and punishment, hinge on two short half hours Turkey day.

Trained to a hair's breadth, clean-limbed and hard as tempered steel, confident yet athrill with the knowledge of the approaching battle, nerved to accept anything except defeat, he trots onto the field with ten more alike with him in strength and overweaning desire to triumph, pitted like him against eleven others equally as hard and hefty, equally as keyed to the tension pitch, equally as keen to conquer.

Through two quarters, they clinch without avail, screaming thousands on the side lines forgotten by your man in the thought of the shrill signals, the charge and the crash from the other line, the fiendish determination to the exclusion of all else to "get" the figure tearing down on him, the lustful hope to rip away from those grapple-hooks of the other side and speed down a clear field to the goal posts.

Two quarters, three quarters, perhaps, and no score. And then, your football player, covered with mud and glory, scarred, sobbing, scarcely able to stand, feels the irrevocable bearing down upon him. Foot by foot, yard by yard, his opponents are smashing a way to his own goal posts, now through a guard, now over a tackle, in straight, fierce bucks that will not be denied, no matter how he heave and hurl himself against the breaking line, no matter how he strive to hold, to hold, for a yard, for a foot, for an inch. They are driving through a wedge that cannot be stopped, bitter, unmerciful, invincible. Desperate resistance stays them for two downs in the shadows of the lean posts above him, and then, as the stop-watch clicks above the final minute, the last, desperate brown wave surges forward, quivers for a moment and then rolls on and over for the touchdown which defeats him. And all his hopes and dreams, his triumphs and ambitions, all his toils, are as nothing in the gray, wan face of defeat.

His hardest test?

That is it.

But he meets it like a man, like a football player, one of the performers that you and I pay a dollar to watch from a comfortable place on the stands, where the roughest thing to harass us is a crick in the neck.

"Back There in the Grass"-- Story, By Gouverneur Morris

IT was spring in the South Seas when, for the first time, I went ashore at Batengo, which is the Polynesian village, and the only one on the big grass island of the same name. There is a cable station just up the beach from the village, and a good-natured young chap named Graves had charge of it. He was an upstanding, clean-cut fellow. Don, who dislikes anything Polynesian or Melanesian, took to him at once. He gave us lunch on the porch, and because he had not seen a white man for two months, or a liver-and-white dog for two years, he told us the entire story of his young life and plans for the future thrown in.

The future was very simple. There was a girl coming out to him from the states by the next steamer but one; the captain of that steamer would join them together in holy wedlock, and after that the Lord would provide.

"The usual cable agent," I said, "keeps from going mad by having a dog or cat or some pet or other to talk to. But I can understand a photograph like this being all-sufficient to any man—even if he had never seen the original. Allow me to shake hands with you."

"You haven't asked me my business in these parts," I said, "but I'll tell you. I'm collecting grasses for the Bronx Botanical Garden."

"Then, by Jove!" said Graves, "you have certainly come to the right place. Grass! The place is all grass; there are fifty kinds right around my house here."

"I've noticed only eighteen," I said, "but that isn't the point. The point is: when to the Batengo Island grasses begin to go to seed?" And I smiled.

"You think you've got me stumped, don't you?" he said. "That a mere cable agent wouldn't notice such things. Well, that grass there," and he pointed "— beach nut we call it—is the first to ripen seed, and, as far as I know, it does it just six weeks from now."

"In that case," I said, "expect me back."

"Anything I can do to help you while you're gone? I've got loads of spare time—"

"If you knew anything about grasses—"

"I don't. But I'll blow back into the interior and look around. I've been meaning to right along, just for fun, But I can never get any of them to go with me."

"The natives?"

"Yes. Poor lot. They're committing race suicide as fast as they can. There are more wooden gods than people in Batengo village, and the superstition's so thick you could cut it with a knife."

"They say that if you get back there in the grass' something awful will happen to you."

"As what?" I asked.

"The last man to try it," said Graves, "in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, was a woman. When they found her she was all black and swollen—at least that's what they say. Something had bitten her just above the ankle."

"Nonsense," I said, "there are no snakes in the whole Batengo group."

"They didn't say it was a snake," said Graves. "They said the marks of the bite were like those that would be made by the teeth of a very little child."

Five weeks later I was once more coasting along the wavering hills of Batengo Island, with a sharp eye out for a first sight of the cable station and Graves. And when at last we rounded on the cable station I let off both barrels of my gun.

"That's funny," I said to Don. "He's coming to meet us in spite of the fact that he'd much rather not. Oh, well!"

I left the schooner while she was still under way, and reached the beach before Graves came up. There were too many strange brown men to suit Don, and he kept very close to my legs. When Graves arrived the natives fell away from him as if he had been a leper. He wore a sort of sickly smile, and —— he spoke the dog stiffened his legs and growled menacingly.

"My dear fellow," I said, "what the devil is the matter?"

"You can see for yourself," he said curtly. "I'm taboo."

"I've been back there in the grass," he said, "and because—because nothing happened to me I'm taboo."

"Is that all?"

"As far as they know—yes."

"Well!" said I, "my business will take me back there for days at a time, so I'll be taboo, too. Then there'll be two of us. Did you find any curious grasses for me?"

"I don't know about grasses," he said, "but I found something very curious that I want to show you and ask your advice about."

So we started for Graves' house, Don very close at my heels.

"Graves," I said, "surely a taboo by a lot of fool islanders hasn't upset you. There's something on your mind. Bad news?"

"Oh, no," he said. "She's coming. It's other things. I'll tell you by and by—everything. Don't mind me, I'm all right."

"You say you found something very curious back there in the grass?"

He unlocked the door of his house and stood aside for me to go in first.

"Shut up, Don!"

The dog growled savagely, but I banged him with my open hand across the snout, and he quieted down and followed into the house, all tense and watchful.

On the edge of Graves' writing table, with its legs hanging over, was what I took to be an idol of some light brownish wood—say sandalwood, with a touch of pink. It was about a foot high, and represented a Polynesian woman in the prime of life, say, fifteen or sixteen years old, only the features were finer and cleaner carved. It was a nude, in an attitude of easy repose. The thing was so lifelike that it frightened me. And when Don began to growl like distant thunder I didn't blame him.

When I looked up the statuetee's eyes had moved. They were turned downward upon the dog, with cool curiosity and indifference. A kind of shudder went through me. And then, lo and behold, the statuette's tiny brown breasts rose and fell slowly, and a long breath came out of its nostrils.

I backed violently into Graves, dragging Don with me and half choking him.

"My God Almighty!" I said. "It's alive."

"Isn't she!" said he. "I caught her back there in the grass—the little minx. And when I heard your signal I put her up on the table to keep her out of mischief. It's too high for her to jump—and she's very sore about it."

"You found her in the grass," said. "For God's sake—are there more of them?"

"Thick as quail," said he, "but it's hard to get a sight of 'em. But YOU! I've overcome by curiosity, haven't you, old girl? You came out to have a look at the big white giant and he caught you with his thumb and forefinger by the scruff of the neck—so you couldn't bite him—and here you are."

The womankin's lips parted, and I saw a flash of white teeth. She looked up into Graves' face and the steely eyes softened. It was evident that she was very fond of him.

"Rum sort of a pet," said Graves. "What?"

"Rum?" I said. "It's horrible—It isn't decent—It—it ought to be taboo. Don's got it sized up right. He—he wants to kill it."

"Let me ask you one thing—what would Miss Chester think?"

"Oh, that doesn't worry me," said Graves. "But I am worried—worried sic. It's early—shall we talk now, or wait for lunch?"

"Now," I said.

"Well," said he, "you left me pretty well enthused on the subject of botany but I won't be there twice to look up grasses for you. The second time I went I got to a deep sort of valley where the grass is waist high, and that place was alive with things that were frightened and ran. I could set the directions they took by the way the grass tops acted. There were lots of loose stones about and I began to throw them to see if I could knock one of the things over. Suddenly all at once I saw a pair of bright little eyes peering out of a bunch of grass—I let fly at them, and something gave a sort of moan and thrashed about in the grass—and then lay still. I went to look, and found that I'd stunned—killed—one of the same to bite me, but I had her by the scruff of the neck and she couldn't. Further, she was sick with being hit in the chest with the stone, and first thing I knew she keeled over ih the palm of my hand in a dead faint. I couldn't find any water or anything—and I didn't want her to die—so I brought her home. She was sick for a week—and I took care of her—as I would a sick pup—and she began to get well and want to play and romp and poke into everything. . . . You see how it all happened, don't you? Might have happened to anybody."

"Why, yes," I said. "Take her back where you found her, and turn her loose."

"Well and good," said Graves. "I tried that, and next morning I found her at my door, sobbing—horribly dry sobs—no tears.

I SAW THAT. IN SPITE OF ALL THE SOBBING, HER EYES WERE PERFECTLY DRY.

A week before Miss Chester's steamer was due the situation had not changed. Graves' pet was as much a fixture of Graves' house as the front door. And a man was never confronted with a more serious problem. Twice he carried her back into the grass and deserted her, and each time she returned and was found sobbing—horrible dry sobs—on the porch.

Well, a day came when Graves, who had been up since dawn, saw the smoke of a steamer along the horizon, and began to fire off his revolver so that I, too, might wake and participate in the joy. I went ashore.

"It's her steamer," he said.

"Yes," said I, "and we've got to decide something."

"About Bo?"

"Suppose I take her off your hands —for a week or so—till you and Miss Chester have settled down and put your house in order. Don't say a word to Bo—just bring her out of the schooner, and leave her with me."

In the upshot Graves accepted my offer, and while Bo, fairly bristling with excitement and curiosity, was exploring the farther corners of my cabin, we slipped out and locked the door on her.

Miss Chester was everything that her photograph said about her, and more too, so that the trick he had played Bo was very soon a negligible weight on Graves' mind.

If the wedding was quick and businesslike, it was also jolly and romantic. The oldest passenger gave the bride away. All the crew came aft and sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Ed-den That Earliest Wedding-Day"—to the tune called "Bluegrowrie." They had worked it up in secret for a surprise. I was best man. The captain read the service, and choked occasionally.

As for me, I went back to my schooner, feeling blue and lonely. I knew little about women and less about love.

I went ashore with Don, and had a long run on the beach—in the opposite direction from Graves' house, of course. Toward dusk we returned to the schooner and had dinner, and after that I went into my cabin to see how Bo was getting on.

She flew at me like a cat, and if I hadn't jerked my foot back she must have bitten me. As it was, her teeth tore a great gash in my trousers. I'm afraid I kicked her. Anyway I heard her land with a crash in a far corner. I struck a match and lighted candles—very wary—but no Bo. She had retreated under a chair, and looked out—very sullen and angry. I sat down and began to talk to her.

She hated me, and after a time I got bored. I threw a pillow on the floor for her to sleep on, and left her. Well, the minute the door was shut and locked she began to sob. So I went back—and talked to her as nicely and soothingly as I could.

Now I don't like little creatures that snap—so when I picked her up it was by the scruff of the neck. She had to face me then, and I saw that in spite of all the sobbing her eyes were perfectly dry. That struck me as curious. I examined them through a pocket magnifying glass, and discovered that they had no tear-ducts. Perhaps I squeezed the back of her neck harder than I meant to—anyway her lips began to draw back and her teeth to show.

I forced Bo's mouth wide open, and looked in. Then I reached for a candle and held it steadily between her face and mine. She struggled furiously so that I had to put down the candle and catch her legs together in my free hand. But I had seen enough. I felt wet and cold all over. For if the swollen glands at the base of the deeply grooved canines meant anything that which I held between my hands was not a woman—but a snake.

I put her in a wooden box that had contained soap and nailed slats over the top.

As an extra precaution in case of accidents, I overhauled my medicine chest and made up a little package for the breast pocket—a rubber bandage, and a pill-box full of permanganate crystals.

It was a lovely starry night, and I determined to sleep on deck. Before turning in I went to have a look at Bo. She was gone.

The crew, warned of peril, searched the whole schooner over, slowly and methodically, lighted by lanterns. We could not find her. Well, swimming comes natural to snakes.

I went ashore as quickly as I could get a boat manned and rowed. I took Don on a leash, a shotgun loaded, and both pockets of my jacket full of cartridges. We ran swiftly along the beach, Don and I, and then turned into the grass to make a short cut for Graves' house. All of a sudden Don began to tremble with eagerness and nuzzle and sniff among the roots of the grass. He was "making game."

"Good Don." I said, "good boy—burher up! Find her!"

The moon had risen. I saw two figures standing in the porch of Graves' house. I was about to call to them and warn Graves that Bo was loose and dangerous—when a scream—shrill and frightful—rang in my ears. I saw Graves turn to his bride and catch her in his arms.

When I came up she had collected her senses and was behaving splendidly. While Graves fetched a lantern and water she sat down on the porch, her back against the house, and undid her garter, so that I could pull her stocking off her bitten foot. Her instep, into which Bo's venomous teeth had sunk, was already swollen and discolored. I slashed the teeth-marks this way and that with my lancet. And Mrs. Graves kept saying: "All right—all right—don't mind me—do what's best."

Don's leash had wedged between two of the porch planks, and all the time we were working over Mrs. Graves he whined and struggled to get loose.

Then I turned and freed Don and took him by his leash.

"Hunt close, boy! Hunt close!"

Thus hunting, we moved slowly through the grass toward the interior of the island. The scent grew hotter, suddenly Don began to move more stiffly—as if he had the rheumatism—his eyes straight ahead saw something that I could not see. In the act of taking a wary step he came to a dead halt.

"Steady, boy!"

* * *

"How is she?"

"Seems to be pulling through. I heard you fire both barrels. What luck?"

We Need Hard Blows Not Hard Words, Says Jerome K. Jerome

(Jerome K. Jerome in the London Daily News.)

In one of Shaw's plays—I think it is "Superhuman"—one of the characters hints, toward the end of the last act, that the hero is a gentleman somewhat prone to talking. The hero admits it, but excuses it on the ground that it is the only way he knows of explaining his opinions.

Times of stress and struggle, whether individual or national, confound men and women other methods of expressing their views, and a large number of our citizens are, very creditably, taking the present opportunity to act instead of shout. There are the young fellows who in their thousands are pressing around the door of the recruiting offices. They are throwing up, many of them, good jobs for the privilege of drilling for the next six months for eight hours a day. Their reward will be certain hardship, their share of sickness and wounds, the probability of lying ten deep in a forgotten grave, their chance of glory a name printed in small type among a thousand others on a war office report.

There are the mothers and wives and children who are encouraging them to go; to whom their going means semi-starvation. The old, bent crones whose feeble hands will have to grasp again the hoe and the scrubbing brush. The young women who know only too well what is before them—the selling of the home just got together; first the easy chair and the mirror, and then the bed and the mattress; the weary tramping of the streets, looking for work. The children awestruck and wondering.

There are the men who are quietly going on with their work, doing their best with straightened means to keep their business going; giving employment; getting ready to meet the income tax collector, who next year will be demanding anything from half a pound to 5 shillings in the pound. But there is a certain noisy and, to me, particularly offensive man (and with him, I am sorry to say, one or two women) very much to the fore just now with whom services the country could very well dispense. He is the man who does his fighting with his mouth. Unable for reasons of his own to get at the foe in the field, he thirsts for the blood of the unfortunate unarmed, and helpless Germans that the fortunes of war have left stranded in England. He writes to the paper thoughtlessly suggesting plans that have occurred to him for making their existence more miserable than it must be. He generally concludes his letter with a short homily directed against the Prussian military staff for their lack of the higher Christian principles.

He has spies on the brain,. Two quite harmless English citizens have already been shot in consequence of the funk this spy mania has created among us. The vast majority of Germans in England have come to live in England because they dislike Germany. That a certain number of spies are among us I take to be highly probable. I take it that if the Allies know their business a certain number of English spies are doing what they can for us at great personal risk to themselves in Germany. Until the German army has landed on our shores the German spy can do little or no harm to us. The police can be trusted to know something about them, and if any are caught red-handed the rules of war are not likely to be strained for their benefit.

From a small town in the south of England comes a story I can vouch for. A couple of boy scouts had been set to guard the local reservoir. About noon one sunny day they remarked the approach, somewhat ostentatious, of a desperate-looking character, undoubtedly a German spy! What can he be up to! The boys approached him and he fled, leaving behind him the damning evidence—a tin of sardines! He threw it away and—labeled "Poison!" That the gentleman should have chosen broad daylight for his nefarious design, should have been careful to label his tin, seemed to the good townsfolk under present scare conditions proof that they had at last discovered the real German spy, full of his devilish cunning. The tin was taken possession of by the police. And then the sergeant's little daughter, who happened to know a few lessons in French, suggested that the word on the tin was "poisson," and the town now breathes again.

So long as the war continues the spy fever is among us. I suspect that we face the problem of his activities without blue funk and hysteria. The men and women who are shrieking for vicarious vengeance upon all the Germans remaining in our midst must remember that there are thousands of English families at the present moment residing in Germany and Austria. The majority of them, comparatively poor people, with all their belongings around them, were unable to get away. I shall, until I receive convincing proof to the contrary, continue to believe that they are living among their German neighbors unmolested. Even were it not so, I would suggest our setting the example of humanity rather than our slavishly following an example of barbarity

We are fighting for an idea—an idea of some importance to the generations that will come after us. We are fighting to teach the Prussian military staff that other laws have come to stay—laws superseding those of Attila the Hun. We are fighting to teach the German people that, free men with brains to think with, they have no right to hand themselves over body and soul to their rulers to be used as mere devil's instruments; that if they do so they shall pay the penalty, and the punishment shall go hard. We are fighting to teach the German nation respect for God. Our weapons have got to be hard blows, not hard words. We are tearing at each other's throats; it has got to be done. It is not a time for yelping.

Jack Johnson as a fighter I respect. The thing I do not like about him is his habit of gibing and jeering at his opponent while he is fighting him. It isn't gentlemanly, and it isn't sporting. The soldiers are fighting in grim silence. When one of them does talk, it is generally to express admiration of German bravery. It is our valiant stay-at-homes, our valiant clamorers for everybody else to enlist but themselves, who would have us fight like some drunken fish hag, shrieking and spitting while she claws.

Half these stories of atrocities I do not believe. I remember when I was living in Germany at the time of the Boar war the German papers were full of accounts of Tommy Atkinson's brutality. He spent his leisure time in tossing babies on bayonets. There were photographs of him doing it. Detailed accounts certified by most creditable witnesses. Such lies are the stock in trade of every tenth-rate journalist, who, careful not to expose himself to danger, slinks about the byways collecting hearsay. In every war each side, according to the other, is supposed to take a fiendish pleasure in firing upon hospitals—containing always a proportion of their own wounded. An account comes to us from a correspondent with the Belgian army. He tells us that toward the end of the day a regrettable incident occurred. The Germans were taking off their wounded sailors in the water! They are an insult to our intelligence. At Louvain fifty of the inhabitants were taken out and shot. On Monday fifty had grown to five hundred; both numbers vouched for by eye-witnesses. "Dutchmen who would have had no interest," etc. That the beautiful old town has been laid in ashes is undoubted. Some criminal lunatic strutting in pipeclay and mustachios was given his hour of authority and took the chance of his life. Then the wounded sailors of the German people it will go hard with him when the war is over, if he has not had the sense to get killed. But that won't rear again the grand old stones or wipe from Germany's honor the stain of that long line of murdered men and women—whatever its actual length may have been. War puts a premium on brutality and on senselessness. Men with the intelligence and instincts of an ape suddenly find themselves possessed of the powers of a god. And we are astonished that they do not display the wisdom of a god!

There are other stories that have filtered through to us. There was a dying Uhlan who caught a child in his arms and kissed him. One would like to be able to kiss one's own child before one dies, but falling that—well, after all, there is a sort of family likeness between them. The same wide wondering eyes, the same—and then the mist grows deeper. Perhaps after all it was Baby Fritz that he kissed.

And of a Belgian woman. She had seen her two sons killed before her eyes. She tells of that and of other horrors. Among such, of the German lads she had stepped over, their blue eyes quiet in death. The passion and the fear and the hate cleansed out of them. Just boys with their clothes torn—so like boys.

"They, too, have got mothers, poor lads!" is all she says, thinking of them lying side by side with her own.

When the madness and the folly are over, when the tender green is creeping in and out among the blackened ruins, it will be well for us to think of that dying Uhlan who had to put up with a French baby instead of his own; of that Belgian mother to whom the German youngsters were just "poor lads"—with their clothes torn.

And the savagery and the cruelty and the guiltiness that go to the making of war we will seek to forget.

Why Belgium Has Been Theater of War Since Caesar's Time

Look at the map of continental Europe and it can readily be seen why Belgium has been the theater of European wars from the time of Caesar's invasion and even before. Topographically and geographically it forms a natural gateway. No wonder England, France and Germany always have been jealous over the possession of Belgium. The nation that possesses Belgium would have every advantage in an international conflict. It is due mainly to this very jealousy that Belgium has remained an independent state. "If I can't have it, you can't," has been the attitude of each power; so Belgium, small and weak as it appeared to be, has enjoyed extraordinary independence, and nations have vied with each other to win her friendship so valuable is it esteemed in war time. Today, as often in the past, events that are to decide the future of Europe are transpiring in Belgium.

WATERLOO AND FONTENOY.

In Belgium was fought the battle of Waterloo July 18, 1815 On the same day was fought the battle of Wavre, won by the French. As it was, however, Grouchy's victory was useless; he might have saved the day for Napoleon had he arrived at Waterloo in time.

The battle of Ligny was fought in Belgium on June 16, 1815, just two days before the battle of Waterloo. That was Napoleon's last victory.

On the same day on Belgian soil was fought the battle of Quatre Bras, won by the British and allies; but their success was rendered fruitless by the Prussian reverse at Ligny.

The battle of Jemmapes, November 6, 1792, between the French and Austrians, was one of the most important of the French revolution. It was followed by the annexation of the Austrian Netherlands to France.

Fontenoy, fought May 11, 1745, in the war of the Austrian succession, resulted in a victory for the French over the combined forces of the British, Dutch and Austrians. It was the last victory of France.

OUDENARDE AND RAMILLES.

Oudenarde, fought July 11, 1708, resulted in the defeat of the French by the English and Imperialists. It was one of the great victories of Marlborough and Prince Eugene over Louis XIV.

Ramilles, fought May 23, 1708, was a victory for the English and allies over the French, and was followed by the French evacuation of the chief towns of the Netherlands.

Neerwinder, July 24, 1693, in the wars of Louis XIV., resulted in a brilliant victory for the French over the English.

Ostend was the scene of one of the most memorable sieges in history. It lasted from July, 1601, to September, 1604, and cost upward of 100,000 lives. It was in the war of the liberation of the Netherlands. The siege ended in the surrender of the fortress to the Spanish under Spinola, but the Spaniards lost upward of 70,000 men. Scarcely a house in the town was left standing.

The siege of Maestricht lasted from March 12 to June 29, 1579, and resulted in the capture of the city by the Spaniards, who massacreed 6,000 men, women and children. Maestricht has been the scene of several other disastrous conflicts.

Antwerp and Brussels.

Antwerp, likewise, has been the scene of conflicts. In 1576-7 an engagement between the local German and Spanish troops resulted in the death of 10,000 persons and the surrender of the citadel by the citizens. In 1583 the citizens defeated an attempted seizure of the city by the Duke of Anjou. On August 17, 1585, the citadel capitulated after a thirteen months' siege, one of the most eventful in history, to the Duke of Parma, Spanish viceroy of the Netherlands. The citadel was captured in 1746 and 1792 by the French; in 1793 by the Austrians; in 1794 by the French. In 1809 Bonaparte protected the city against Lord Chatham's attempt to destroy the port and the forts. In 1814 it was defended against the English by Carnot, and surrendered only after the conclusion of peace May 5. In 1830 during the Belgian revolution the city was bombarded from the citadel by the Dutch general, Chasse, who finally was forced to surrender his stronghold December 22, 1832, after a siege by a French army of 50,000 men under Marshal Gerard. This ended the contest with Holland, and on December 20, 1832, the citadel, almost wholly destroyed by the bombardment, was occupied by the Belgian troops.

Brussels, the capital, received its present name in 1044, when it was surrounded with walls and became the residence of the Dukes of Brabant. This city was the principal scene of the tyranny of Alva and the inquisition under Philip II. It was the court residence in the Netherlands under Charles V. The city was bombarded by the French in 1695, when 4,000 buildings were destroyed. It was taken by Marshal Saxe in 1746, but two years later was restored to Austria. In 1789-90 it was distracted by the Brabant revolution, but the Austrian power was speedily re-established. It again fell into the hands of the French in 1792. In 1815 it was made one of the two capitals of the Netherlands, and after the revolution of 1830 the capital of Belgium. A splendid monument erected over the graves of victims of that revolution stands in the Place des Martyrs.

Liege and the Bishops.

Liege, the Pittsburg of Belgium, dates its long record of disasters back to 1212, when Henry I., Duke of Brabant, captured the city and pillaged it for six successive days. The memorable struggle of the Liegeois with their bishops and the dukes of Burgundy are described in Scott's "Quintin Durward." In order to protect the bishop, Louis of Bourbon (Charles the Bold) inflicted severe punishment upon his mutinous subjects by abridging their privileges and demolishing all the fortifications The citizens rebelled again in 1468, whereupon Charles condemned the town to destruction, and all the buildings except the churches and monasteries were burned and many of the inhabitants slaughtered. In 1482 Louis of Bourbon was murdered by William de la Marck, the "Wild Boar of the Ardennes," who wished to obtain the mitre for his son. One of the bishops declared war against Louis XIV., in consequence of which the town was taken by the French. For five days in 1691 Marshal Bouflers bombarded the town and eventually abandoned it to the Duke of Marlborough, who on Octo. 23, 1702, stormed the citadel. At the outbreak of the French revolution in 1789, the bishops were expelled, but were reinstated by Austrian troops soon afterward. Liege was annexed to France in 1794 and was comprised in the department of Ourthe till 1815, when it was included in the new kingdom of Netherlands. In 1830 the Liegeois were the most enthusiastic in advocating the national independence of Belgium and aided greatly in its achievement.

HOW to HAVE SMOOTH WHITE HANDS

Plump the Hands With Olive Oil

Vinegar Counteracts Strong Soap

HANDS, no matter how exquisitely shaped, are seldom beautiful when neglected. While a beautiful hand is not always proof that the owner is a "lady" in the old-fashioned sense of the word, yet a lady, in that same sense, invariably has well-cared-for hands—hands that are manicured daily and protected with gloves whenever possible. I must impress upon you, however, that the manicuring does not mean that the nails are to be polished until they are mirror-like in their luster.

It is possible to have pretty hands, even when one must do housework. All that is required is a little precaution and extra care. I know of a woman whom I frequently find scrubbing the kitchen linoleum and the front steps, and yet has soft, well-shaped hands that are more beautiful than many of her work-free friends. Personally, I would value very little the friendship of any woman whose hands did not perform their share of service to humanity, and, personally, too, I have added respect for that woman who, while contributing her part, keeps her hands well groomed, and a positive admiration have I for the woman whose hands, under the circumstances of service, are beautiful.

"It is never too late to mend" even rough skin, broken nails, gnarled hands and a seemingly impossible cuticle. Do not expect an immediate transformation. With a few minutes' daily care the hands should show a vast improvement within a month's time, while in a year you will think that you have an entirely new pair.

About the first thing to do to an unsightly pair of hands is to whiten them. For this purpose there is nothing better than almond meal that is reduced to a fine powder. There are various ways of applying the meal. A very convenient method is to make a small white muslin bag that may be kept on the washstand and rubbed into the hands before they are dry, immediately after the soap has been rinsed off. Buttermilk, too, is a whitener that is not to be despised. It is a most inexpensive beautifier and a reliable one. If you have a quantity of it, wash both hands and face in it daily, and you will soon notice a great improvement.

Mutton tallow is an old-time remedy for rough and chapped hands. This should be applied at night, and a pair of white cotton gloves worn so that the bed clothing will not become soiled.

In selecting gloves for the nightly softener great care should be taken that they are sufficiently loose. Gloves that stop the circulation redden the hands. This fitting of the gloves should always be considered when buying gloves for street wear or for housework, if you do not wish red, ill-shaped hands. For housework and bedtime the cast-off gloves of the men of your household are ideal. Certainly you should never wear your own gloves, as for this purpose they would be entirely too small.

When it becomes necessary to use strong soap in housework you should counteract the action of it upon the hands by rinsing them in vinegar and then in clear water.

Stains upon the hands can be removed in various ways, and should be removed at once instead of waiting until the housework is finished or the end of the working day comes. There should always be a household bottle of peroxide of hydrogen, so that when one is cut or scratched or injured in any way the wound may be cleansed with it. The peroxide may also be used for stained hands. An excellent formula for the purpose is half peroxide and half water, to which are added a few drops of ammonia. A very small bottle of this can be made up at one time and kept on the washstand for the purpose.

Every one desires plump hands, and there is little or no reason why we all shouldn't have them. A thin hand may be plumped by bathing in warm olive oil, together with a gentle massage. A heavy massage will dissolve the fatty tissue and defeat your object. If the hands are, however, entirely too plump you may succeed in making them less stout by bathing them in a solution of epsom salts and water and a brisk rubbing.

Always file the nails while they are perfectly dry, and always push back the cuticle when it is soft and pliable and yet damp from bathing. Never use a metal instrument for the cuticle. An orangewood stick is obtainable at any pharmacy for a few pennies.

If you will, you may have a hand "as soft as dove's down and as white as it."

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

Mrs. Chester Adams most cordially invites her friends to bring to her Social Problems and Perplexities by letter at any hour

If a personal reply is desired, a self-addressed stamped envelope should be inclosed.)

WHAT AND HOW YOU SAY IT

TODAY I wish to emphasize the importance of a sweet and low voice, which Shakespeare says is "an excellent thing in woman." Have you ever tried to listen to your own voice in a critical manner? Have you taken it for an analysis when you are criticising adversely. Strangers are quick to recognize a man or woman under discussion. Let me suggest that strangers are always interested in conversations held in loud tones. It is your own fault if news is carried. If you tell things so that all can hear, you will have yourself to blame when trouble begins.

Do not tell your own troubles in public places. Keep confidences for your own home. I have heard husbands, relatives, financial affairs, discussed by women, and I am sure that they should not have told their thoughts to all in the car. Another thing that marks a woman as well bred is the way that she speaks to her children. The calling of boys and girls in from the street is a great index to this. Don't stand at the front door and yell to Johnny to come in or you will tell his father. Have some signal that will save your voice and, of course, make your child mind. You will find that your children will imitate your style of talking.

Don't whine when you talk. There is nothing so tiring to your husband or any other listener than a woman who whines. Put sunshine into your words. Put music, brightness, personality into them. Make your voice contribute to the effect that you have on friends and acquaintances. Let me, as one who loves her countrywomen, exhort you to speak in soft, low, musical tones, even to the iceman.

It is just as much a mark of culture and refinement as the way that you use a knife and fork. Be careful of your speaking voice.

A Married Woman's Card

Dear Mrs. Adams,

Should a married woman have her own Christian name on her visiting cards? Should she use her husband's title? READER.

It is customary for a married woman to have her husband's entire name after the prefix "Mrs." She should never use her husband's title.

A Wedding Invitation

Dear Mrs. Adams,

1. When a husband and wife are invited to a church wedding and a reception following at the home of the bride's aunt, but not at the home, should the invitation be answered when the invited ones are unable to accept, the invitation being issued in the name of the bride's parents?

2. How should I introduce a young man to my sister, whose name is not the same as mine?

3. When may a man and wife use a joint card?

4. Is a black velvet dress made with low neck and short sleeves suitable for a young matron to wear at a formal banquet? At other occasions this should be worn over her gloves? J. A.

1. A friend of my husband invited us both by telephone to spend an evening at his home. We went. Soon after he arrived his wife went upstairs to the house to spend the evening elsewhere. She did not ask us to excuse her, in fact, neither she nor her husband made any comment on her departure. Was this not very impolite, even though the husband was the one who invited us? How would you take such treatment if you were in my place?

NANCY M. D.

1. Under such circumstances one of the wife's cards and two of the husband's cards should be posted to the bride's parents the day of the marriage.

2. The simplest way to make such an introduction is to say, "Mr. Brown, this is my sister, Miss White."

3. The joint card is sometimes used when the bride calls after her return from her honeymoon, when sending a gift in which her husband has a share, sending joint regrets in answer to a reception invitation, etc. The joint card is frequently inclosed with a wedding invitation or with an announcement of a marriage, to signify where the bride and bridegroom will make their home.

4. Many evening gowns are made of black velvet. Such a frock and gloves are not removed until one is seated at the table.

5. The behavior of your hostess was very queer. It is difficult to guess her motive for such an act, so the best thing for you to do is to stay away from her home until she has called on you and made it clear that she wishes to have you call at her home.

Domestic Arguments

Dear Mrs. Adams,

I am very unhappy, and since you have helped me several times before I was inclined to ask you for some advice. My husband and I love each other dearly. We have a little girl, and we have always lived a most happy life together. Lately, however, we have had a few disagreements. I try to calm him and myself at those times, but I lose my temper and disagreeable words pass between us. I am sure that he thinks the fault is mostly mine, but I am sure that I have knowledge of life many persons that must come before me, but he will not listen to me. Sometimes I may have peace in our homesick. We have no children. Can you help me? A DISTRESSED WIFE.

It is a case of the "last word" over again. What a baneful accomplishment little fiend it is! Always it will make trouble if it can. If the person whom it tackles is not sufficiently clever and wise to ward it off, two dear friends of my own acquaintance had this same trouble early in their married life, until the one learned how to solve the problem. She and her husband talked it over, and agreed upon a plan. It was this: At the first faint period of an argumentative tone in the voice of one, the other would keep perfectly silent: would be rude enough, and wise enough, to make no reply. It would not be done in a disagreeable manner, but just a little space of silence assumed that one thought of arrested the argumentative one that dangerous ground was reached, and to steer away from it. It was also agreed that no offense was to be taken when the "silence" occurred. The plan worked like a charm, and soon these two dear young people were able to have amicable discussions instead of arguments. It takes two to make an argument, and the "silence," even if assumed most often by one side, is a decided mark of character and a little trait that cannot but command respect from the other.

Wants to Elope

To Broken Hearted: My advice to you is to wait until you are many years older. A girl of 17 is too young to select a man with is to share her joys and sorrows for the rest of her life. Four or five years from now you will have a very different idea of life and will probably find the man you now admire far from being a congenial companion. Listen to your parents. They know what is best for you.

Solutions to Social Problems

The Bride at a Home Wedding

DEAR Mrs. Adams,

1. At a home wedding is it proper for a bride to wear a veil and train?

2. Should the father give the bride away or should it be all right for the bride to walk alone?

3. In what order does the bridal party enter the room if there is one flower girl and a maid of honor?

4. Is it proper to have only one bridesmaid? LUCILLE.

1. Yes.

2. Either would be correct.

3. The bridegroom, clergyman and best man enter the room in which the ceremony is to be performed, and stand, facing the guests, awaiting the arrival of the bride, who enters the room alone or with her father. Immediately before he walks the maid of honor, who is preceded by the flower girl. The bridal party stands to form a segment of a circle.

4. Yes.

Always Had Previous Engagement

Dear Mrs. Adams.

There is a young man whom I admire a great deal. He has called me up several times to spend an evening with him, but I have had previous date. I am afraid he will not ask again, so what do you advise me to do so that I will know I care for his society? VERNA.

Why don't you arrange to have two or three couples at your home some evening, or to go on an outdoor excursion, and invite this particular young man to go along? You really ought to make some advances, so that he will know that you did not refuse his invitations merely to cut the friendship.

Young Lovers

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I read with interest your columns each issue and derive many helpful hints therein. I have a problem that I think perhaps you may be able to solve for me. I am a schoolboy of 17, and have been going with a classmate of 15. I have become very much attached to her and love her very dearly at all times. She seems to be in doubt as to whether she loves me or not. Sometimes she acts as though she did, and then again she is just the opposite and is very indifferent toward me. It grieves me to have her thus. Would you advise me to continue going with her? PUZZLED.

I can well understand that the young woman of 18 is changeable. She is very young, and could not possibly know her own mind. It may be that the man she would select now would be as far apart as the poles from the man she would like at 25. If you love her very dearly, and care more for her happiness than for your own, you will not bind her to you with any unbreakable promises. If you must tell her of your love, do so with the understanding that if within from three to five years, you still care for each other you will become definitely engaged, but that either, in all fairness, must be free to choose another before that time and to freely associate with other young men and women. Men change even more quickly than women, and you have yourself to consider.

I do not underestimate your love. Early loves that are pure and high frequently keep us true to the ideals until the only one in all the world comes to us, when we are older and better able to know what is best for the happiness of two people.

Your own character is, of necessity, yet in a state of immaturity, as is also the young woman's. Trust each other for a few years, remain on friendly terms only, with possibly an understanding of the underlying conditions, and then decide, with the satisfying knowledge that each has been more considerate for the other than for self.

The Nose

Dear Mrs. Symes,

Will you kindly print in your invaluable columns a way to reduce the size of the point of the nose? Mine stands out quite prominently in a bulb shape.

READER.

I do not think you can do anything to change the shape of your nose, but you should be most careful in your selection of your hats and your hair dressing so that you make the best of your nose.

Thin Face and Fat Body

Dear Mrs. Symes,

I wonder if you can help me out. My body is just as plump as I could possibly wish, and yet my cheeks are hollow and my face thin in general. Is there no way that I can make my face as plump as that of my body, so as to make it matched the rest of my body? DISTRESSED.

Whenever the opportunity offers, try blowing out the cheeks as you sometimes see little children do, holding them in this position for the space of a minute or so. Do this night and morning and several times during the day. Besides this use the following method:

To Fatten the Cheeks

To make the thin cheeks plump with a good skin food in with the following movements: Try to use the muscles of the thumb of the left hand just beyond the corner of the mouth on the left cheek. Make rotary movements upward and outward, beginning at the corner of the mouth and making three diverging lines of manipulation, using the thumb. With the right hand treat the left cheek.

In three months' time your face should show a decided improvement.

Lotion For Enlarged Pores

Dear Mrs. Symes,

Much to my alarm, the pores of the skin upon my face are becoming very large. I wish to have such beautiful skin. Can you tell me how I can manage to make them less in size? If so, I shall be very grateful. You have helped me several times before and I wish to thank you.

ELIZABETH H.

I am glad to hear that I helped you in my columns before this opportunity of service was offered me. If you will use the following lotion I think you will find an improvement:

| | |
|---|---|
| Boric acid | 1 dram |
| Distilled witch hazel | 4 ounces |

Cucumber Wash

Dear Mrs. Symes,

Several weeks ago you gave in your columns a formula for cucumber wash. If not too much trouble and against the rules, will you kindly reprint it? LILLY L.

The formula for cucumber wash is as follows: Cut 1 or 2 cucumbers into rather small chunks without peeling. Put these into a mortar and pound with a pestle (or use a heavy potato masher and a heavy earthenware bowl) until the mass is pulpike in consistency. Now strain through a piece of cheesecloth or very coarse muslin, squeezing out as much of the juice as you can. Now put the refuse and filtered juice into a clean enameled saucepan and simmer (don't boil) for ten minutes.

Then re-strain and when cold add alcohol to the proportion of 1 tablespoonful to half a pint of the strained liquid. Bottle and use to sponge your face instead of washing it during the day.

The alcohol should preserve the juice.

Porcelain Fillings, Etc.

Dear Mrs. Symes,

Will you kindly tell me of some good tooth powder that will not injure the teeth? I wish it to be something that can be made up by my druggist or by myself at home. Would you advise me to have gold or porcelain fillings in my front teeth?

WILLIAM T.

At the present time people of good taste are not having gold in their front teeth. Porcelain has become so perfected that it can be used as safely as metal. By all means have your front teeth filled with porcelain, that is, after you have consulted your dentist as to which he thinks would make the better filling for your particular teeth.

Tooth Powder

|---|---|
| Powdered orris root | 2 ounces |
| Powdered camphor | 1 ounce |

Inflamed Skin

Dear Mrs. Symes,

My skin is extremely tender and becomes inflamed upon the least provocation. Can you suggest anything that would correct this? It causes me much annoyance.

N. O.

The ointment for which I am giving you the formula below should help you. When washing the face take great care that the face cloth or towel is not rubbed too briskly over its surface:

Resorcin Ointment

(For inflamed skin)

| | |
|---|---|
| Resorcin | 60 grains |
| Zinc oxide | 120 grains |
| Starch | 120 grains |
| Petrolatum | ½ ounce |

Apply at night after washing the face. Do not let the ointment get near the eyes and nostrils. Wash off in the morning with bland soap and warm water.

A Foot Lotion

Dear Mrs. Symes,

I am very clean, and take a bath each day, yet I am dreadfully embarrassed about the odor that seems willing to my feet. I have been told by people say that this odor can be overcome in some people. Do you think this is so, and can you tell me anything that will help me?

ELLA W.

You are right in taking a daily bath. Every one should do this, or they cannot call themselves really clean. In your case you must be careful to change your hose every day, rinsing the hose out overnight if necessary. After each bath brush the feet over with the following lotion. Also use this often if you have occasion to change your hose during the day. Be careful in applying the lotion that no space between the toes escapes. In extreme cases it is sometimes necessary to place bits of absorbent cotton wet with the lotion between the toes.

Lavender Foot Lotion

|---|---|
| Distilled water | 1 pint |
| Bichromate of potassium | 2½ ounces |
| Essence of lavender | ½ dram |

After Reducing

Dear Mrs. Symes,

I have recently reduced my weight and my skin is consequently flabby. Can you tell me of an astringent that would help me? ANXIOUS.

The following hardening pomade should correct the defect you mention. Also, do not fail to use cold water after hot when washing the flabby parts. I should thing that some brisk outdoor exercise and deep breathing would make your remaining flesh firm:

Hardening Pomade

(An Astringent)

This pomade should be applied after massage, to restore shrunken or flabby skin.

| | |
|---|---|
| Oil of sweet almonds | 6 ounces |
| White wax | 2 ounces |
| Tincture benzoin | 1½ ounces |
| Pulverized tannin | 6 drams |

To Clean the Teeth

Dear Mrs. Symes,

Can you tell me of a good antiseptic tooth wash that will keep my teeth clean? MABEL.

The following is an excellent tooth wash that any druggist will make up for you. However, I advise you to use prepared chalk in connection with the wash if you wish the teeth to be entirely free from tartar. To use the two, first wet the brush with the wash and then apply the powder:

Tooth Wash

| | |
|---|---|
| White castile soap | 1 ounce |
| Tincture of cardamon | 2 drams |
| Tincture of assafrum | 2 drams |
| Oil of peppermint | ½ dram |
| Oil of cloves | 6 drops |
| Oil of cassia | 6 drops |
| Glycerin | 4 ounces |
| Alcohol | 4 ounces |
| Water | 14 ounces |

An Old Lady's Plea

Dear Mrs. Symes,

Being old is a natural state, I suppose, but being old with bunions is a double curse, so far as I am able to make out. I have tried several remedies, but without relief. Can you tell me of something that will at least take away the pain?

Mrs. L.

I am glad that you have written to me, for I think that the following treatment will afford you great relief if persistently applied. Do not be discouraged, however, if at first you do not see any improvement.

Bunion Remedy

|---|---|
| Carbolic acid | 2 fluid drams |
| Tincture of iodine | 2 fluid drams |
| Glycerin | 2 fluid drams |

To Prevent Bunions and Corns

Bunions and corns are due to improperly fitting shoes. Have the shoes and stockings a trifle too long for the feet, so as to relieve the pressure on the toes. Soak the feet night and morning, wipe dry and rub with a mixture of spirits of turpentine and lard (equal parts of turpentine and sweet oil (1 to 3 parts) until the soreness subsides. Dust between the toes with talcum powder and place a little cotton between toes, so as to absorb any moisture.

Treatment for Bunions

Get a bunion plaster from the druggist and nick with the scissors around the inside circle or opening. Moisten the plaster and put it over the bunion. Put a small wedge of felt between the great toe and the second toe, which will throw the foot more into shape. It will greatly relieve the pain. Wear it at night.

Draw the stocking on carefully. When you put your shoe on you will discover that the enlarged joint does not begin to show as much with the plaster on as without, and all pain and irritation is prevented by wearing the plaster, which makes it impossible for the leather to come in contact with the sore joint or to irritate it.

Perspiring Feet

Dear Mrs. Symes,

My feet perspire so freely that my stockings stick fast, and I notice a slight odor caused by the dampening of the leather in my shoes. Is there anything I can do to stop my feet from perspiring?

ELLIS O.

Foot Powder

| | |
|---|---|
| Burned alum | 5 grams |
| Salicylic acid | 2½ grams |
| Starch | 125 grams |
| Violet talcum powder | 50 grams |

Camphor Ice

Dear Mrs. Symes,

Is it true that camphor ice can be made at home, and if so, can you tell me how to make it? CURIOUS.

Camphor ice is very simply made and very inexpensive, if you will follow the given directions:

|---|---|
| Refined mutton or lamb tallow | 2 ounces |
| A piece of gum camphor as large as an English walnut | |

Mr. Hercules, Age Six

THROUGH exercise begun when he was a baby, this boy of six is stronger than companions of twice his years.

He is the son of F. B. Magee, of Sells avenue, a physical culturist, whose business is developing strength and who began to train his son when the boy was only one month old.

The result is a dexterity and endurance which make the little athlete almost physically perfect. But at the outset he had no more than his stock of health. His physical perfection today is due to the training began in his babyhood, and continued daily.

Bernarr McFadden, the physical culturist, decided after as complete study as possible of the country's infant athletes, that none is as strong and as enduring as the six-year-old boy who is being trained at his father's home on Sells avenue.

The baby, at his birth, had been named for MacFadden, and the goal laid down for him was attainment of such strength as the great physical director has developed.

So, at one month his training began and has continued daily until now he can lift heavy weights, and has such toughness of body that he can be tossed, like a ball, in the air by his father, and find nothing but pleasure in the game.

Infant Tug-of-War.

When he was one month old his father would hold out two forefingers for the baby to grasp, and would let the mite of humanity test his infant muscles. The fingers would be drawn slowly back, the baby would hold to them tightly, and a tug-of-war would follow between the father and his one-month-old son.

At the age when other babies are not allowed to sit up unless their backs are supported, Bernarr could take a position as straight as any school ma'ams. A few weeks more, and his father was holding him outstretched in the palms of one hand. Before he could walk he was taught to hold himself suspended for a moment from a horizontal bar. After he had begun to walk he was given dumbbells for playthings.

Now, he can join with his father in tumbling feats that would be the death of another child. But the only reason for his greater strength is physical training begun early.

Bernarr Magee and his Father

How to Exercise

BY PROF. F. B. MAGEE.

Begin early. You can't begin too soon. But of course you must be very careful with a baby. At first, never give it a sudden pull or twist. It is such a wrench or jerk that is apt to cause injury. If you are careful, the baby can't be hurt. Instead, his muscles will be strengthened, he will be made heartier and healthier.

Each of my five children has been trained just as Bernarr is being trained. None has been quite so apt as he is at exercise, but all have been made hearty and strong, and none has ever been injured. Two are girls, but they have been taught after the manner of the boys, and are heartier for it.

One exercise I have tried with my babies has been to hold them up by the arms, and then to straighten out their arms. People have said to me, why you'll injure their muscles, you'll displace their shoulder joints. Instead, each is as straight and strong as any child you can find.

Don't Over-do.

The chief care in exercise for children as well as for grown people is to avoid over-doing the thing. A little rough and tumble play for children does them good, roll them on the floor, teach them to box, but don't over exert them.

When men take up physical culture they so often go to an extreme. They wish to begin with heavy weights, and become athletes in an instant. One result is that they sometimes do injury to the heart.

The man who realizes that he is not in prime physical condition and who wishes to build himself up, should first discover whether his heart is sound, and even though he finds himself to be in normal health, he should take only simple, easy exercises in the beginning.

Gymnasium apparatus is not necessary, neither do you need to spend any great while each day over your exercise. Simply be persistent. Make exercise as important as your business, and fifteen minutes a day will serve to keep you in good shape.

How Muscle is Built.

By a course of exercise in which no apparatus was used, I have, within two weeks' time, added 1-4 to 3-4 of an inch of muscle to the biceps of pupils, and 1-2 to 2 inches to the chest expansion.

As for gymnasium, any room large enough to stretch your arms wide will suffice. You don't need a spacious place. All that's necessary is an average-sized room, well lighted and ventilated. Air and light really are the most important considerations. Exercise taken in a dark, airless place is as good as no exercise at all. You must have plenty of light and air, exercise taken out of doors is the best. But I don't mean by that you must have golf and tennis to keep in shape.

Fifteen Minutes Daily.

Fifteen minutes' exercise a day, taken right in your own room, will make your muscles sound and will develop you surprisingly. But it is hard to continue a routine, no matter how good its effect, unless you have the stimulation of companionship.

Class work in a gymnasium is easiest to continue, and has the best effect. This is particularly true of one who is attempting to regain health through exercise.

Such a one should, first of all, determine just what weakness he is trying to correct, and should decide that he will be persistent but not excessive in the exercise that he takes.

My theory is that, if the muscles are strengthened the whole body will begin to gain in health. A dyspeptic, for instance, can be treated by strengthening the muscles of the stomach. And so it is with other sufferers. Exercise daily, carefully, persistently, intelligently, and health may be recovered, a surprising amount of strength may be developed. All this can be done in just a few minutes' time each day, and in your own room, if you are sufficiently determined.

I know that consistent, regular exercise will add to the health, strength, business efficiency, and happiness of any individual.

Why the South Should Raise Beef

WASHINGTON.—Officials of the department of agriculture are taking advantage of the war in Europe to emphasize the possibilities for the production of beef cattle in the southern states. With a largely increased demand for beef for export, combined with the dwindling supply in other sections of the country, the cheap land, fine grasses and moderate climate of the south offers many inducements to the stock farmer.

According to beef cattle experts of the bureau of animal husbandry, of the total land area of the south, 73.1 per cent is made up of grazing land, woods, waste or waste lands, and a very large portion of the latter would produce excellent pasture for cattle. The types of soil and nature of the land vary widely in each state, but in each one are found soils which produce abundant grazing.

The stiffer soils usually produce better grazing and better cattle than do the light or sandy soils. The lime lands, black prairie lands and alluvial lands furnish the best pastures.

A joint report made by W. F. Ward, senior animal husbandman in beef cattle investigations, and Dan T. Gray, chief of the animal industry division of the North Carolina experiment station, has the following to say about the south as a beef producer.

Can Raise Cattle Cheaply

"There is no section of the country which can produce cattle more cheaply than the south, for the lands are still cheap, the grazing is good, the pasture season is long, feed can be produced at a minimum cost and inexpensive shelter only is required for the animals during the winter months. The native cattle throughout this section are poor in quality and small in size, but they are also cheap in price. They are not worthless, however, and their cheapness is their redeeming feature, for they are good foundation stock, from which may be produced an excellent herd of beef animals by judicious selection and by the continued use of purebred beef bulls.

"Cheap lands combined with cheap cows for foundation stock make it possible to start in the cattle business in the south with an outlay of far less capital than in most other sections of the country. The only shelters required are open sheds facing south, under which young cattle may take shelter from cold, rain or wind. Mature beef cattle usually need no other protection than that afforded by trees, hedges, underbrush, canebrakes and other natural shelters.

"Corn grows well throughout the south and is the principal crop grown for grain for feeding purposes and is more generally used for silage than any other crop. Because of its adaptability to almost all soils, the wide variation of time during which it may be planted, and its luxuriant growth in southern latitudes, it is considered the most important silage crop. Sweet sorghum can be planted later than corn and often makes a heavier yield. The cost of growing sorghum and corn is about the same. A combination of corn and sorghum makes a silage that is greatly relished by cattle."

War on the Cattle Tick.

For many years the department of agriculture has realized the importance of the south as a field for beef cattle. Investigations in breeding and feeding cattle in the south were begun in 1904. Two years later war was declared on the cattle tick, which was found to be a tremendous drawback to the live stock industry in that section. The battle line against this troublesome disease carrier was extended from the Atlantic to the Pacific in a zigzag line across the south and southwest, the lines being tightened gradually in an effort to push the tick back into the Gulf of Mexico and across the Rio Grande. While 215,908 square miles of territory had been actually freed of cattle tick before the close of the last fiscal year, the war is being continued more systematically and effectively now than ever before.

Any standard breed of beef cattle will do well in the south. Following this extensive tests and experiments, the bureau of animal industry is in position to advise prospective cattle raisers on this point. Some breeds do better in given sections than others. Generally speaking, the Shorthorn, Hereford, Aberdeen-Angus and Galloway, belonging to the beef type, were found to do well, while the Devon and Red Polled are considered the most important breeds of cattle, at least for the south.

While slavery existed in the south cattle, hogs and sheep were to be found on every plantation, and on many of them were very good beef animals, some herds of which contained a large infusion of Shorthorn blood. At that time the south produced all the beef, pork and mutton required to meet its demands. At the close of the Civil War few cattle were left, and these were bred among themselves without the addition of any new blood, except an occasional cross with the Jersey, and the result was the present small and unsatisfactory native type.

Something Wrong

LONDON.—An old soldier, who fought in South Africa, propounds rather a nice problem in arithmetic. We are told that our expeditionary force—their numbers do not matter—held up 300,000 Germans for four days, and it is said officially that our loss is 6,000 men killed and wounded. A fair estimate of killed to wounded is 10 per cent, but double even that, and say we have 1,200 men killed. Then it takes 25 Germans four days to kill one British soldier. Either the official figures are wrong, which one cannot decently suppose, or the Germans are doing rather worse than we did in South Africa, whenever we had a fair fight.

WHO STARTED THAT NIBLICK STORY, ANYWAY?

PERHAPS you have heard it.

A leading business man played golf for his health; so that, if he ever again had a few minutes to spare for purely commercial industry, he might devote to it full force and enthusiasm.

But from the clubhouse he noticed it was a cloudy day, and, since he was playing for his health, he delayed to prepare against rain. The treacherous look of the clouds led him to emphasize this preparation.

Feeling an innocent elation because he was sure now not to have his health affected, no matter how the dun clouds dropped rain, he frolicked over the first four holes. When he met a bunker it seemed humorous; when he over-ran a putt it was wit clothed in a new aspect.

True, humor had begun to fade at the eighth hole; the irritable and the annoying, like unbidden guests, had begun to thrust forward, and by the ninth he was looking with lowering eyes at the caddy.

But a moment's delay at the club house and he was back with the old twinkle in his eye. There was a Pickwickian glow about him. Did he mind two balls in the lake? Did he complain at two more out of bounds? Did he grumble at 15 on the hole?

Why, he was smiling more than ever when he teed up for No. 11. He dropped in the ditch, asked for his mashie, regulated his stance carefully, missed the ball, swung again, hit it and the caddie, just near enough to be in the way, but far enough to save himself from danger, gasped in a gurgling, choking fashion; and, without being told, started toward the flag.

Plump, the ball had hit on the green, and, rolling, rolling, rolling—plump, into the cup.

The careful golfer struggled out of the ditch, mud on his shoe tops but unquenchable humor in his eyes.

The fire of humor for a moment paled in the bright eyes of the golfer. Acrid words checked themselves at his lips. But again the smile broke over his face, and he stretched out an eager hand.

What follows here is as seasonable as quotations that speak of the "sear and yellow leaf" and "ruined choirs where late the sweet birds sang."

A hunter with empty bag but brave tongue (a very Tartaran of Tarascon) met a silent man one tender afternoon in the gay greenwood (despite it was autumn) and, in excuse for the empty bag, began:

"Ah," said the stranger, and also spread out his hands.

For a moment there was a pause.

"Do you know who I am?" asked the stranger.

For a moment there was another pause.

"Do you know who I am?" asked the hunter.

"No," answered the stranger

"I am the biggest liar in Fulton county."

This which follows is not an anecdote, but the expression of a condition In Italy, in addition to sun and fleas, there is also hard water. On Italian ships, in addition to odors and spaghetti, there is briny water. Both on land and sea under the Italian flag soap is but a broken crutch. The brine of the water is a trial to the body as fleas are to the soul. (As you know, fleas are chiefly a spiritual annoyance, particularly in Italy, where the encouragement of climate gives them interesting growth to a size a degree less than that of small donkeys seen on the street). One Atlanta party which had known Italy in unfavorable moments and an Italian ship in a condition of keen maritime distress (actually the coffee was cold in the morning) arrived in New York, rejoicing in the return to home. They sang songs of joy that a happy Pan could not have piped. But only one told the true transition from dejection to joy.

Our heroine was guest at a country home, a mile from town. But the morning of our adventure, no six-cylinder auto was waiting at the door-stoop to whirl her into the city's delights. There wasn't even a spring wagon to ride in. And there she and a gallant courtier, whose gallantry had been equal to the walk out from Washington, sat and pondered ways and means.

In the dilemma a cloud of dust like a golden haze appeared in the road, and, jouncing toward them, out of the morning, came the regal Georgia chariot—a two-mule team, three bales of cotton, and a driver with one gallus and a chew of tobacco.

"There's our chance, are you game?" said the courtier in our courtly language of today.

After a moment, the heroine decided she was. After another, the wagon was at the gate. And after a third our heroine, perched on a cotton bale, was riding through the fresh morning, past fields of green and turning leaves, which had begun to wear the blazing colors of autumn.

She was like a queen of the snowy cotton. Such thoughts found a place with the business worries of the rushing crowds of the city. It was the mayor himself who stopped the wagon, it was the chief of police who began the bidding. It was the city council that dared 15 cents a pound, and it was half the city who clamored for the sale on which our very own heroine rode into the city of Washington, Ga.

She smiled on the man who paid 16 cents, and straightway fared forth to shop.

The custom of shaving to Chopin seems an evidence of that increasing interest in music which has made dancing a popular indoor sport. It is a bare, that is, a simple, downright fact not a few, particularly the artistically inclined, now wind up the phonograph as they take out the safety razor. This may apply to you or it may not. You may simply prefer to whistle as you start the lawn mower going. But others fall of the proper rhythm without a note of Wagner or a bar of Verdi. Even the barber shops are taking it up. Barber Joe says he expects in time a tonsorial opera will arise to supplant grand opera.

"Give the play thy ear."

Now, could "thine" be used without offense?

At the Athletic club an aquatic chorus is being organized. But the question is, how can arrangements be made for the chorus to appear in public? It can achieve its lyric note only when bathing.

Last week, when Atlanta veterans were recalling war experiences and their emotions in battle, one had a commentary to offer on "Bob" Toombs' disdain of his enemy.

"Why there isn't a Yankee" explained Toombs, "who knows which end of his gun to aim with. Shoot. Why, they could do just as well with pop-guns."

Two Atlanta "Rebs" were thinking this over in a rifle pit in Virginia, with bullets flying thick as hail.

"Yep."

"And he said these fellows couldn't shoot."

"Yep."

The Prophetess of Paris

The prediction last week of Madame de Thebes, the Paris prophetess, that Emperor William would be killed, has brought her again into notice. As far as France is concerned, the fact that she foretold the San Francisco earthquake, that she predicted the death of Felix Faure, president of France, about which there still exists a mystery; that she warned Chavez not to attempt the Alps and Colonel John Jacob Astor not to travel the ocean is of small moment. The prophecy that France would be drawn into war in 1914 is the prediction that has increased Madame de Thebe's prestige throughout her own country.

In 1913 a correspondent called on Madame de Thebes in her apartment in the fashionable Avenue Wagram, where she lives like a princess. She granted the correspondent an interview of considerable length, the results of which covered an entire page.

The interview was devoted chiefly to what would occur in the United States in 1914. After covering this point comprehensively Madame de Thebes made this startling statement: "France will be drawn into war and emerge victorious. An era of love, peace, great hopes and great labors will date from 1914."

Madame de Thebe's prophecy is all the more remarkable because at the time it was made there were no indications that France would be drawn into war for a good many years to come. Of course, like all other countries of Europe, she was prepared for trouble if the occasion should arise, but there were no signs on the surface that a great struggle was impending and would break in less than a year after the prophetess' prediction.

It appears now as if Madame de Thebes knew what she was talking about when she predicted war for France, and even Americans, who are considered too practical to trust even Madame de Thebes, may in future treat her prophecies with more respect. However, Madame de Thebe's prophecies did not end with her statement that France would be drawn into war. She made some prophecies which directly concerned this country, and now that she has proved herself a reliable prophetess in foretelling the drawing of France into war Americans will be liable to display more interest in her statements in regard to this country.

Apropos of what would happen in the United States in 1914, Madame de Thebes said: "President Wilson will have a wretchedly delicate role. After being very sympathetic they will fall on him from all sides. Too loyal, too honestly attached to what he believes his country's good, he will be found not sufficiently of his century. The danger will not come from the Mexican imbroglio. The United States will overcome Mexico and there will not be a war."

Once again Madame de Thebe's prophecy proved to be correct, for the United States has not been drawn into war with Mexico.

Those affected by the high cost of food will agree that Madame de Thebes was right when she predicted that "farmers will receive high prices for wheat and corn." Apparently Madame de Thebes did not foresee that the war in which France was to be involved would seriously interfere with the shipping of the world. At least she did not predict that it would affect the United States, because she issued this warning to farmers: "Do not sell your wheat and corn to Europe. It will be needed at home, because the seasons will not remain in their place."

The fact that Madame de Thebe's prestige has been increased by her prophecy in regard to France, it is interesting to know that she foresaw the fatal accidents and the failure of the exhibition of 1900. She predicted the death of King Humbert, and cautioned the Marquis de Mores not to go to Africa. She has read the hands of kings, princes, diplomats, generals, ministers, party leaders, great ladies, bankers, speculators, manufacturers, actresses and jockeys.

It is also interesting to learn how she acquired her popularity. Many years ago Alexandre Dumas, the younger, invited a dozen psychologists and physiologists to dinner one evening.

In an adjoining room sat a young woman, and after the dinner the twelve men of science were requested to go into the room by Mr. Dumas and have the young woman read their palms. One by one the men entered and the palmist read their hands so successfully that an account of the seance was published a few days later by the enthusiastic Dumas, giving all the details. Madame Thebe's success was assured.

Atlanta's Million Idle Hours—Are Half Of Them Wasted?

The Average Ferson Has Five Leisure Hours a Day---Atlanta Has 200,000 Inhabitants---What Do We Do With All This Spare Time?

THE average human being has five leisure hours a day. Atlanta has 200,000 inhabitants. Atlanta, then, from sunset to sunset, has a million unoccupied hours—a million hours to waste or a million hours to gain.

The Playground Association of America makes this estimate. It was not gathering astonishing figures idly. Its business is to tell cities how to spend their hours after work.

It is a new time-saver. Business requires systems that use each hour. The man and the woman who work have the hours divided. Factories count even the motions the body makes in manual labor. Waste nothing, they caution, get its value from each minute.

But of the five hours when work ends and play begins, nothing is said. With these hours, as Atlanta wastes or utilizes them, the association is engaged. Fifty per cent of the time we spend in idleness. We do nothing to build up the body, or add to the brain's capacity. Atlanta wastes half these hours.

Why?

Insufficient means, explains the association, is offered for recreation, no place for people to meet.

Furnish gymnasiums, using school buildings for the purpose. Have adults meet there in the afternoon and evening. Continue playgrounds during winter and summer, and make them for men and women as well as children.

The Whole Answer.

Atlanta was first of southern cities to begin playgrounds, but in the opening year it appropriated more than it appropriates now.

It does less for recreation than Macon, Savannah, Birmingham, Memphis, Richmond. It is behind southern cities which it preceded in the beginning.

But the association asks not merely larger playgrounds open during the year. After an examination by a field secretary of the way we spend our idle hours, it points out the number the city wastes and how we could avoid the waste.

Such a survey never before was made here. Leisure hours of the city have been treated as the dollars of a store. How many? Where are they spent? How are they wasted?

We need, decides the association, places where adults may play. Men who have membership in clubs are outside this consideration. They have gymnasiums, swimming pools, golf courses, books, magazines.

The association is considering the working men and women who have imperfect means of utilizing their leisure hours To prevent the enormous waste that now goes on, such people must be reached. The way is simply for the city to provide further means for recreation.

We now have eleven playgrounds for children Four of these are at schools. Our means of recreation for adults are confined to organ recitals Sunday afternoon, and, in summer outdoor concerts, and the parks.

We Need Social Centers.

What we should have, in the belief of the association is this:

A sufficient number of playgrounds, so that no adult or child in the city would be more than half a mile from one of them. Next, a definite recognition that men and women must be included in the playground system as well as children. Thirdly, playgrounds all the year.

The recognition we should make of the right of men and women to recreation is the use of schools for meeting places, where games may be arranged, where books and magazines may be provided, where gymnasiums may be housed.

We should have in short, social centers. We should have municipal clubs that offer people the means of gaining profit from their leisure hours.

T. B. Settle, who is in Atlanta as secretary of the Playground Association of America, said last week:

"Before this Atlanta has provided chiefly for the child. Now, we wish also recreation plans for men and women. In extending the plans we want the number of playgrounds increased and authority for all to be kept open during the winter. Children need playgrounds in the winter as well as in the summer. But the chief departure urged is providing for adults.

Example of Macon.

"In Macon, they have municipal baseball leagues. In Birmingham they are arranging for soccer, which men and boys can play during the winter. They also have arranged for games for working girls.

"This is what Atlanta should do. If better provision were made here both for men, for women and for children, the health of the city would be better, a contribution would be made to the happiness of your citizens, you would develop the character of your city.

"In Chicago and Cleveland, the amount of juvenile crime has been decreased 30 to 70 per cent through playgrounds.

"It has been proved that 80 per cent of all crime is committed from 6 to 10 o'clock in the evening—the leisure hours that now are wasted. Every city should have recreation centers open at night. In Richmond, such a place, last year, was attended nightly by an average of 700 people over fifteen years of age. That shows the demand.

"Undoubtedly, Atlanta should use its schools as social centers. There should be gymnasium classes at those schools, there should be other athletic features, there should be dramatic and literary clubs, and these opportunities should be carried to all the people.

"Atlanta should recognize the problem of the leisure hours. It is one of the great problems. It is negatively a prevention of unwise employment of time, it is, positively, the utilization of that time so that the individual shall be happier, more useful, and the city more prosperous.

What Mayor Baker Said.

"Mayor Newton Baker, of Cleveland, said that he never thought of public funds for public recreation as money spent, but as money invested.

"Our surveys in a number of other cities show that 40 to 70 per cent of the children who are supposed to be at play but who have no one to direct them, are simply idle. A great many children form the habits of idleness, merely because they never are taught games to play. More playgrounds, open the year round, each presided over by an instructor, would be the means of teaching them games, which would be a training to the muscles, to the brain, to the character.

The association of which Mr. Settle is field secretary, is a philanthropic institution. It offers its advice and aid to cities, when that advice and aid are requested.

"Uncle Bob," Ninety Years Old, Wants a Seventh Wife

"Woman's kind heart and gentle hand,
In God's eternal plan,
Were made to comfort, soothe, refine,
Exalt and comfort man."

So sings "Uncle Bob" Knox, of Dalton, Ga., Mexican war veteran, farmer poet and marrier of women.

But it is of this last title that "Uncle Bob" is proudest. He will tell you that, while he served twelve months in the United States army, in the thickest of the fighting at Vera Cruz, and while he possesses no mean talent as a bard, he considers his record as a willing emissary of Cupid the greatest achievement of his lifetime. Six times he has been present at weddings in the capacity of bridegroom, and he freely acknowledges that he is going to assume the role a seventh time.

"But I am in no hurry to select my seventh wife," he says. "I'm going to let the Lord direct me in making a wise choice. While I have no definite prospect at present, I'm only ninety years of age, and hence have plenty of time."

The fact that his sixth venture in the dual existence proved far from happy, resulting in the severance of home ties and divorce and alimony proceedings would naturally lead to the belief that his faith in woman would give way to cynicism; but it hasn't. "Good women—and they are legion—are better than the best men," he insists.

Of his six matrimonial ventures, four have brought him happiness. He became a benedict first at the age of twenty-four years, his first wife dying after four children had been born of the union. He was also the father of four children by his second wife, and, after her death, he found that all marriages are not supremely happy. From his third wife he secured a legal separation. According to "Uncle Bob," it was the old, time-honored case of "mother-in-law," which caused dissension in the third home he established. He made himself so plain in his manner of viewing mothers-in-law in general that his third wife deserted him.

Mrs. Knox, the fourth, and Mrs. Knox the fifth, were his congenial companions until death took them.

At a recent session of superior court in Dalton, he obtained his divorce from his sixth wife, following a bitterly contested case. Desertion was the ground on which he based his suit; but his wife made a counter claim that he had driven her away. Prior to this, she had brought suit against him for alimony, but not divorce, and had won a verdict in Murray superior court. Her case was taken to the supreme court, where the decision was reversed, and in the second trial she was given a verdict, which is now pending in superior court.

But the jury accepted "Uncle Bob's version of the matter, and legally placed him in a position to marry a seventh time.

When the presiding judge attempted to get the old man's promise not to "commit" matrimony again, he was laughed at for his well-meant advice.

"Home, without a woman in it, is a mighty poor place," said "Uncle Bob," and, upon obtaining the court's permission he created merriment in the courtroom by singing one of the many songs he has composed:

"I'm looking for my seventh wife
And a jubilee,
Where there'll be no ills or strife—
Happiness we'll see.

"Robbers then will cease to pluck
Labors of my life,
With a loving wife.

"Then we'll soar to realms of bliss,
There to find our rest,
With no tangle jar or miss,
Our lot will be blest.

"Like prophets I am hated,
Without cause I know;
I'll trust in God, and mated,
On my way I'll go."

"'Uncle Bob" can't begin to remember the dates of his six weddings. He knows he was twenty-four years old when he married the first time; but his age and the dates of his subsequent weddings he is unable to tell. As he remembers it, however, he was about eighty-five years of age when he contracted matrimony the last time.

During his unusual career he has been a wagon maker, mechanic, farm overseer and soldier; but his present life is of a most quiet nature. He has a small farm where he gardens, milks his cow, cooks and does his own housework. What time he has for leisure, he drives around in his automobile.

But this existence is beginning to tell upon him, and it is because of the monotony of it that he wants to marry again.

"Woman was made for man's helpmeet," he says. "God intended for man and woman to live together. A man without a woman is a mighty poor excuse, and a woman without a man is little, if any, better."

Asked as to the age of the woman who had a chance to become the seventh Mrs. Knox, the old man smiled. "I want the Lord's direction in my selection; but," and he closed one eye expressively, "I don't intend to take any old woman that I will have to wait on."

Happiness.

And "Uncle Bob" doesn't want any of the "new women." He has pronounced views on woman's place in the world. He has no patience with the one who is chasing the ballot. "I can't see why they are not content to remain in the sphere God intended for them," he says. "Woman controls everything; but she does it by kindness and not by mixing in politics and trying to run the government. And that reminds me of a song I once wrote; it explains clearly my views along this line."

He quoted:

"Woman's kind heart and gentle hand,
In God's eternal plan,
Were made to soften, soothe, refine,
Exalt and comfort man.

"And win from Pleasure's poison cup
Life's purest fount above,
And rule man as the angels rule
By deeds of peace and love.

"Man—he could never live alone,
Not ev'n in Eden's bow'rs;
He pined for woman's smiles to cheer
His task of tending flow'rs.

"But now he has a higher aim,
Since she, his blessings shares,
And oft her hands will roses strew,
While his will scatter tares.

"Just like a light within a vase
His soul enshrines her form,
Which brightens o'er his world-tost mind,
Like sunshine over storm."

Aside from his numerous matrimonial ventures, the old man has never been a "jiner." "I don't belong to any church or creed; but I trust in God, and that is my religion," he says. "I don't belong to any other organization," and his eyes fairly sparkled, "and I don't even belong to an old woman."

"Uncle Bob" considers his poetic talent as a God-gift. He has never possessed the advantages of any education to speak of; but he has the spirit of the poetic muse in his soul. His poetry first comes to him in the way of music. Composing as he goes along, the musical notes somehow summon the words to fit in, and his poems result.

While he sings all his poems, he has written the music for only one of them, which has been published in sheet music. Feeling that his varied experience as a home-maker gave him the right to put the song "Home," on the market, he composed the song, the words of which are as follows:

"Tell me not of dreams so happy
That are found beyond the home.
Tell me not of all the sadness
While through Life's rough world we roam.
We may travel this world over,
And we'll find, where'er we roam,
Tiring of the life of roving,
There's no place like home, sweet home.
"Home's the place for rest and pleasure;
There's no place on earth I see
That can offer half the measure
Of pure happiness to me.
When I leave this world of sorrows,
Then with Christ I want to be.
Where there'll be no sad tomorrows—
Home throughout eternity."

While "Uncle Bob" is ninety years of age, he is unusually active and strong. He has never been seriously ill in his life. Asked how he managed to attain such an age and hold his own so well, he gives all the credit to the Lord. "God is preserving me for a grand purpose," he says.

As to his habits he has never been a "tee-totaler." He states that while he has used whisky to excess but once in his lifetime, he has been accustomed to taking his "dram" whenever he feels like it. As to tobacco, he has been a habitual user of this practically his entire life.

And he has determined to reach the century mark and marry one more time before he dies. These two matters represent the sum and substance of his ambition.

He doesn't care for his war record and has little to say of it. "I've been married more than any other man in the state of Georgia, and I can write good poetry. That's honor enough for any man, to my way of thinking," he says. "I've tried to live at peace with all; have fought little and have never been implicated in any criminal proceedings in the courts. I don't look upon my past life with regrets, and will be ready to go after I have found that seventh wife I am now seeking."

By Angus Perkerson

THEY are as rough, coarse, gnarled as any hands that plow the fields. Fingers thick, palms calloused, skin the color of brick-dust.

The fingers are short, the palms are broad, the skin has the looseness of age.

Really, they are hands that preach the gospel, that penetrate an unbroken silence, a tongue that speaks to the deaf.

As I entered from West Mitchell street, the evangelist was the first figure I saw—a little man, in a cane-bottomed chair, his hands on his knees, waiting for his congregation. A Wednesday night prayer meeting, which was to sing and hear spoken words, arrived, chattering.

There was utter silence in the small room, where three members of the congregation had joined the preacher. He beckoned, and offered me a pad and a pencil—hesitated, took back the pad, and wrote first.

"I can see from your expression you can hear."

He waited a minute and wrote again:

"I'm going to preach an hour tonight. If you get tired, don't mind leaving, the noise won't bother me."

He said good-evening with a nod to a girl with bright eyes who seemed to take in the whole room with a glance; then turned to a man who followed—a man who not only was deaf, but was half-blind and who peered about him in a groping, pathetic, and at times, a half-desperate way. It seemed he couldn't bear the thought of missing expressions and gestures that are one of his few remaining links with the world.

The Preacher's History.

The preacher suddenly remembered an unanswered question on his pad and began to write. His head was bent to one side and his knees crossed. As he wrote he smiled, but it was more with his eyes than with his lips. They were deep blue eyes, and in the very heart of them a smile seemed to nestle. But it was not so much a smile of humor as a smile of goodness.

"I am John Walter Michaels," he wrote, "and I am 56 years old. I live at Fort Smith, Ark., and the Georgia Baptist board employs me to preach to the deaf.

"I became deaf at the siege of Richmond, Va., in the Civil war. Cannon explosions are supposed to have destroyed my ear drums, and I have been stone deaf since. I was seven years old then. To be educated I was sent to the Virginia School for the Deaf, and then to Washington, D. C. I was teacher afterward in the Virginia school and for 25 years in the Arkansas School for the Deaf at Little Rock. I resigned to preach in the south. I am the only preacher working [illegible] the board among the deaf. There are 30,000 mutes in the south, and we greatly need other preachers for them."

A man and a woman entered with two little children, the man and the woman silent, the boy and the girl talking. The children made no effort to lower their voices as others would entering a crowded room. They knew no one but themselves could hear. They had come to believe only a few in all the world could hear.

Talked About the War.

But a group in the corner gesticulated with the earnestness of conversation. The preacher wrote industriously and offered the pad.

"The mutes are discussing the war," he explained.

"Who do they want to win?"

"They are divided," he wrote back. "The little man is for Germany, while the others are for the allies."

"How do you preach—just with the fingers or partly with the lips?" I asked.

"All with the fingers. Some can read the lips quite well. But none are able to keep up to the spoken sermons. I speak too rapidly."

He smiled at the word "speak," and raised his fingers to show that to him they are tongues.

The room was filling and the people seating themselves, not to hear, but to see. The windows were raised, and the noise of the cars which passed on Mitchell and on Washington entered the room. Further down the hall the prayer meeting was singing. There was some compensation in being deaf.

The preacher put up his pad and settled his necktie. He had chosen for his pulpit a place beside the movable blackboard at the front of the room. Where he stood the light shone glisteningly on his bald head. His shoulders were rounded, his feet were spread apart, and he looked over the top of his spectacles.

The Silent Prayer.

He cleared his throat as though to speak, and the fact that he didn't was tantalizing. It seemed that he must. It was so out-of-keeping with the order of things for him merely to raise his hands, for the people to rise, and for him to begin to pray without a word being spoken. It was so unusual. It did not seem the way a prayer should be led in church.

The people stood with their heads raised, not lowered, for they were looking, not listening. They were seeing the appeal he was making to God. The whole of it was in pantomime. With a gesture he indicated the heavens, by raising one, two, three, four fingers he uttered a petition that the worshipers be blessed, with a sweep of his hands, a shrug of his shoulders, a bend of his head, he expressed their faith. All this time they stood with their eyes fixed on his hands. Occasionally, a head for a moment would be bowed as though in humble acquiescence. Lips would move as though striving in vain for words. The preacher would raise his eyes upward beseechingly.

The noise from the street was irritating, the clatter of cars appeared ceaseless; the hymn of the prayer meeting grew more fervent. Two of the children edged in, and, with attentive faces, began to talk to each other from the corners of their mouths.

The Two Children.

The preacher raised both hands in signs of a blessing and the congregation sat down. He motioned the little boy and little girl to seats in front of him and with a severe expression belied by his mild eyes, he talked to them in the language of signs, which is the only utterance they have known from father and mother.

"He's talkin' to you," accused the little girl.

Everyone shifted his feet, and through the congregation went the stir preparatory to an hour's sermon. The preacher, with the light shining on his bald head, stood with his neck craned forward, his shoulders stooping, and his hands behind his back. He rubbed one hand across his mouth, drew back his alpaca sleeves, as though he meant to do a feat of dexterity with his hands and—began to preach.

So swiftly moved his fingers the eye scarcely could follow them. They were closed, or held up, one or several. The arms were thrust out with a sweep, into the face came the tenderness that neither words nor gesture could speak. The eyes glowed, the preacher's lips opened, the people leaned further forward, and as blind as I was to the words of the "speaker," I felt some of the force of his feeling.

At one end of the room was the girl with such quick, comprehending eyes; by her a man with heavy brows and that look of wistfulness the deaf often wear; then, the little German, who had maintained the Fatherland against all comers; another man, six feet of brawn, yet deaf to all the world's voices, sweet and harsh alike; and by him a figure bent over, one hand pressed tightly to the cheek, the other shading the eyes with a piece of cardboard—the man whose sight has almost failed, striving for the dim words, feeling the fear of utter isolation that is growing on him.

His sermon in pantomime, as he wrote it in synopsis for me, was:

"A deaf friend, something of a braggart, come to me with a question; he said he had asked many ministers without a sound answer:

"'Why should God let some who become religious, go insane?'

"My first thought was that if he let any go insane it was for His glory and the poor man's good.

"The Jews asked Christ concerning a blind man, whether he was born blind because of his parents' sin. And Christ said neither, but for the glory of God. Then he made the blind man see. The Jews, the Pharisees and the scribes saw and believed and brought others to believe.

"The talk with this deaf braggart led me on to seek something to preach on mental and moral insanity.

"Solomon says: 'Madness is in their hearts while they live.' What a man's mind seems, from outward evidences, to be normal, we say he is sane. When his mind appears disordered we begin to speak of madness.

"But there is an insanity so common among men as scarcely to be noticed; yet, it is worse than any mental sickness catalogued by medicine. It is the cause of the troubles of the world, and the loss of souls. I mean moral insanity. And by moral insanity I mean:

"To live in opposition to the dictates of judgment and conscience, and in accordance with feelings and passions.

"To be engrossed with the concerns of time and neglectful of those of eternity.

"To consider the body more valuable than the soul. Read what Jesus says in St. Matthew 16:26.
